QUIZ IN FLYTHE HOME RAID DUE BY GRAND JURY

Rover Orders Inquiry on Thursday to Learn Facts in Case.

PERJURY IS CHARGED TO POLICE INFORMER

NEGLIGENCE ALLEGED IN EXECUTING FORAY

Attempt Not Made to Link House Owner With Man Named in Warrant.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday ordered a grand jury investigation of the "liquor" raid made by police last Saturday afternoon at the home of William P. Flythe, newspaperman, at 1806 G street northwest.

The raid was made on a search warrant issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on the oath of J. M. Burke, said to be an erstwhile informer who worked for Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman when Letterman was head of the police vice squad. At that time informers were paid a fee of $2.50 for each warrant they swore out against a citizen, but the system was thought to have been abolished by official orders issued by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, and, police said, Burke no longer is a paid informer.

Burke swore that he "saw" a man purchase one-half gallon of white whisky and "saw" him pay $2.50 for it in the basement of the Flythe home on Friday, where a still was in operation. The warrant was made out against John Doe, white, name unknown, about 5 feet 9 inches, 160 pounds, 31 years old, at 1806 G street. When police raided the home there was no evidence of a still nor was any liquor found, and the warrant was returned marked on the back, "no arrests," "no seizures."

Perjury Is Charged.

At a conference with Mr. Rover yesterday afternoon Mr. Flythe protested that perjury obviously had been committed in connection with issuance of the warrant. Mr. Rover declared that "we are as intensely interested in discovering and punishing perjury as any one," and asked Mr. Flythe to appear before the grand jury Thursday morning, when the full facts in the case will be presented.

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby earlier in the day ordered investigation of the part the police played in the raid on the Flythe residence. Maj. Pratt immediately summoned Inspector T. R. Bean, commander of the centralized liquor squad, and Sergt. N. O. Holmes, who led the raiding party, and Sergt. George M. Little. Sergt. Holmes made a report to Inspector Bean, who transmitted it to Maj. Pratt as his preliminary report, and this was immediately turned over to Gen. Crosby, who said that he wanted a full and complete report before he made it public.

Gen. Crosby visited police headquarters to get detailed information about the raid and received a verbal report from Sergt. Little in the absence of other police officials familiar with the case.

Little Flies Report.

Sergt. Little said that he had accompanied Burke to G street yesterday and asked him to point out the house in which he saw the alleged liquor transaction. Sergt. Little said that he thought that possibly Burke might have made a mistake in the address but that the informer had pointed out 1806 as the house in the basement of which he saw the alleged liquor sale take place.

Burke also told him, Sergt. Little said, that he did not know the name

Says: The November elections held in the even years afford the only direct, formal and legal method for the regular Nation-wide expression of the sovereignty of the people. These days are a test of self-government. Their results do not give us absolute perfection and security but they do give us the safest and best government that it has ever been possible for a great Nation to provide.

We need to exert ourselves to live up to the ideal of a sovereign, self-governing people. We need to think for ourselves. That means voting our own convictions. We need to act for ourselves. That means going to the polls without having to be dragooned by a ward committee.

By this time all voters should know what candidates they want to support. Plans should be made to vote as early as possible. Everything else is subordinate on election day.

There is nothing new or complicated about the duty of the voter. Every one can understand it. The cheapest and best way is to meet it. The cost to the people of enfranchised indifference is one of our heaviest taxes. The public welfare requires but a little thought and time of the average citizen.

PLANS TO END DEATH TRAP AT SPAN BEGUN

RESULT OF CONFERENCE

Immediate action to prevent further traffic casualties at the death trap on the Washington-Richmond highway at Four Mile Run between Washington and Alexandria was decided upon yesterday at a conference of Virginia State highway engineers, councilmen of Alexandria, and officials of Arlington County.

The spot where several serious accidents have occurred is at the bridge over Four Mile Run where a 32-foot highway suddenly rises over an 18-foot bridge. A barrier has been in place running at right angles from the end of the bridge and it is this barrier which will be changed in order to give motorists more warning that a narrow bridge is ahead.

A new barrier will slant into the "bottle-neck" at the bridge, for a distance of some 200 feet and at the far end of this barrier will be a sign reading "Danger—Narrow Bridge Ahead." Both the sign and the barrier will carry bright blinkers as an additional warning.

The conference of officials yesterday was the result of a request from Arlington County supervisors at their last meeting. Those attending included J. C. Albright, district highway engineer; R. I. Mount, resident highway engineer; Edward Duncan, chairman of the board of supervisors of Arlington County; William C. Gloth, Commonwealth's attorney of that county; C. L. Kinnier, Arlington County engineer; Mayor Carroll Pierce, of Alexandria; Carl Budwisky, attorney for Alexandria, and Edward C. Ticer and C. C. Lamond, councilmen of Alexandria.

Efforts to further improve the spot by widening the bridge over Four Mile Run are expected to be made November 11 at Orange, Va., when allocations on State highways are made. Engineer Albright urged the Arlington County and Alexandria officials to have a delegation present at the meeting of the Virginia Highway Commission in Orange on that date.

Mr. Albright holds that first requests for improvement of the bridge should come from the City of Alexandria whereas Councilman Ticer contends that in making plans for the road, the State highway depart-

DUPONT HEIRS SUED ON KINSHIP CLAIM

Youth, Says He Is Son of Col H. A.; Is Seeking $100,000 Fund.

CHARGES BAD FAITH

Charges that he is the son of the late Col. Henry A. Dupont, former millionaire who lived at 1711 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Wilmington, Del., and allegations that the colonel's heirs have failed to provide for him as they promised, are contained in a suit for $100,000 damage filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court against the heirs, Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield and Harry Dupont nd David T. Marvel, as their agent.

He claims that he was born March 1, 1914, and that Col. Dupont admitted he was his father, and during life gave his mother money for the support of him and herself. Young Hudgins also asserts that Col. Dupont often declared that he would make provisions in his will so that educational and maintenance needs would be provided for.

Col. Dupont died December 31, 1926, apparently leaving as his only heirs Mrs. Crowninshield and his son, Harry, according to the plaintiff. After the colonel's death conferences were held with Mr. Marvel, who represented the two heirs as agent, the suit charges, and in consideration of Hudgins refraining from filing a claim against the estate was promised $6,000 a year, it asserted. The first payment, he states, was due November 1, but so far has not been paid.

Atlanta Loses in Fight Over Census Figures

The City of Atlanta, Ga., lost another round yesterday in its fight for a population of 360,331 when Justice William Hitz in District of Columbia Supreme Court refused to sign a preliminary injunction to restrain the Director of the Census from publishing Atlanta's population at 270,366. No further action is expected until the hearing is had on the merits of the petition, and by that time, it is believed that the Census director will have thoroughly circulated the lower figures.

Atlanta tried to compel the director to give it the high figure, but failed when Justice Frederick L. Siddons held that the Census director was not authorized to take a census of cities and could not be compelled to take one.

MASS SELLING URGED TO HELP JOBLESS HERE

Relief Plan Is Embraced in Report to City-Wide Unemployment Body.

DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM DECLARED ESSENTIAL

GROUP TO STABILIZE BUSINESS INDORSED

Slump Called More Acute Than Earlier Ones, With Peculiar Problems.

Mass distribution of manufactured articles and mass consumption as the first essentials in aiding mass production toward the relief of unemployment were recommended yesterday in a report by the organization committee of the city-wide committee on unemployment. The organization committee was named Thursday at a preliminary meeting in the Y. W. C. A.

The report reviewed the unemployment problem in all its aspects, outlined the committee's first objectives and suggested the set-up of a permanent organization for stabilizing business in the District.

"The committee accepts as a simple statement of the unemployment problem that mass production must be accompanied by mass distribution or consumption," the report read. "But it suggests that while mass production has been achieved and an excess of facilities of production has been created, the problem of mass distribution has not been achieved or even brought into the first foreground of the unemployment problem.

Unemployment More Acute.

"The committee believes that it is not enough that wages and consumption standards shall keep pace with actual production, but that standards of living shall keep pace with the capacity of society to produce, so that production may not outrun purchasing power and thus create a system of mass underconsumption, where many are still inadequately housed, meanly clothed and undernourished."

Explaining that the purpose of the committee was to assist the national administration in dealing with the unemployment problem, the report classed unemployment as "a recurrent characteristic of modern industrialism, that has existed in some degree ever since we entered the competitive system of production. The only difference is that at present we are faced with a more acute situation having some special and unique features of its own."

System of Organization.

The report emphasized the necessity of maintaining existing standards of living among the actively employed population, and urged adherence to President Hoover's opposition to reduction in wages and unfavorable changes in working conditoins.

The structure of the permanent organization recommended by the organization committee revolves about an executive group including the chairman, vice chairman, secretary, treasurer, counsel and heads of subcommittees. Creation of the following special committees was suggested: Fact finding, employment exchange, public works, employment stabilization, temporary employment, legislative, vocational guidance, publicity, finance and membership.

Membership of Committee.

The membership of the city-wide committee on unemployment comprises the following:

LLOYD GEORGE PLAN OUTLINES 650,000 JOBS

GOVERNMENT COSTS WOULD BE SLASHED

Industry Also to Lower Production Charges, Under Scheme.

REDUCTION IN DOLES SOUGHT BY LIBERALS

Proposes Relief Program Be Financed by Loan of $1,215,000,000.

London, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Compulsory expropriation of land to revive agriculture in Great Britain and to furnish employment for 650,000 of the country's idle is advocated by former Premier David Lloyd George and Lord Lothian (formerly Philip Kerr) in a memorandum submitted to the Labor cabinet during the parliamentary recess and made public here tonight.

To carry out the radical and far-reaching program outlined in detail in the memorandum, the Liberal leaders demand the floating of a government loan of 250,000,000 pounds ($1,215,000,000).

Simultaneously with reorganization and recapitalization of agriculture, the Liberal program urges that production costs in England be reduced 10 per cent, that Great Britain may be able to compete in world markets. An emergency conference by representatives of employers, trade unions and banks, to procure this reduction by the most drastic methods, is demanded.

The government simultaneously should reduce its expenditures by 10 per cent partly "by drastic revision of the dole," the Liberal leaders boldly declare, as part of their comprehensive program.

This reduction in production costs and government expenditures, it is stated, is designed to obviate the necessity for tariffs on foodstuffs, demanded by the dominions at the imperial conference.

Backed by Lloyd George.

These startling Liberal proposals, new to British political thought, are entitled "how to tackle unemployment" and are issued over the signatures of Lloyd George and Lord Lothian.

Paying tribute to Prime Minister Benito Mussolini's land reclamation program in Italy, but passing over the example of Russia in silence, the authors of the plan assert that expropriation of land is essential to the revival of agriculture in this country.

"In the first place," the memorandum says, "inasmuch as the landlord is no longer able to discharge the functions properly belonging to the ownership of land, the state, over a considerable and steadily expanding area, should assume those functions, for in no other way does it seem possible to initiate that reorganization and recapitalization of British agriculture which is necessary if it is to produce efficiently for the British market.

"In the second place, the state should, both as a social and an unemployment measure, undertake the responsibility for developing the family farm system as rapidly as possible, taking the creation of 100,000 family farms as the first installment of such a national policy."

Must Itself Blaze Trail.

There is no possibility of rationalizing agriculture, Lloyd George states, "unless the state undertakes the functions of the landlord and itself blazes the trail."

The former Liberal premier envisages compulsory expropriation, stating that the government should be empowered to acquire any land needed "either (a) in lieu of death duties, (b) by paying to the owner an annu-

GIRL, 17, FOUND SHOT DEAD; YOUTH IS HELD

AT EAST STONE GAP, VA.

East Stone Gap, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The body of Bertha Hood, 17-year-old daughter of William M. Hood, postmaster here, was found near the Southern Railway tracks on the outskirts of East Stone Gap early today. She had been shot through the heart.

Earl Runion, 17, of Irondale, Va., was arrested soon after finding of the body and sent to the county jail at Wise charged with knowledge of the girl's murder.

Mayor T. H. Kennedy, of Big Stone Gap, said tonight that Runion had confessed to Sheriff Skeens that he shot the girl, but maintained it was accidental.

The body was found by a section hand a short time after the girl's father had visited the youth's home to question him concerning the girl's absence. She had been missing since last night and was the object of an all-night search.

Hood said he went to the youth's residence because his daughter had dates with Runion. Another friend of the girl's, "Shorty" Hopkins, was arrested as a material witness.

Incendiary Blamed in Hill Fire.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 3.—Several score of fire fighters extinguished a serious mountain fire on Red Hill, 12 miles south of here, today. The fire had burned most of the night. It was the third fire in the same section and is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

AL CAPONE OFFERS TRUCE TO JUSTICE

Gangster Would Withdraw From Labor Racket if Unmolested on Beer.

JUDGE TURNS HIM DOWN

Chicago, Nov. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Al Capone desires is to slake the beer thirst of the public and some one else may continue the labor rackets. He has made diplomatic approaches to law enforcers to the effect that he will drop labor racketeering if allowed to sell and distribute his beer unmolested by law.

Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the criminal court, made the statement in his instructions to the November grand jury. Standing before the jury on his rostrum the judge said:

"With cool effrontery overtures have been very recently made to the end that the most widely heralded and powerful gangster leader in Cook County will withdraw from labor activities if permitted to conduct, unmolested by the law, his racket in beer. His most formidable competitors have been ruthlessly exterminated and his only apparent obstacle toward undisputed sway is the law. Such a truce is unthinkable. There must not be any compromise with lawlessness. This is my answer.

"It is a time when every citizen should manifest his sense of responsibility to his community and his willingness to unite in establishing a rule of law in Cook County. Labor unions and business, by giving their cooperation to the law-enforcing Control of Congress Claimed by Both Parties.

PROHIBITION GIVES INTERESTING ISSUE

House, Third of Senate, 32 Governorships at Stake.

20 STATES TO PASS ON PUBLIC WORKS

(Associated Press.)

The hurly-burly politics of this troubled year come to a climax today in election of the House of Representatives, more than a third of the Senate, and 32 governors.

For weeks the thousand candidates have had their say. Now, after listening quietly through it all, the electorate speaks.

The forum is the polls. It is the seventy-second such expression of the popular will since the Constitution became effective in 1788. The decision will take a place in history beside the others as registered in years midway between elections to the Presidency.

Paramount among the questions to be answered is whether Republican dominance in Congress, which dates back twelve years, shall continue. Leaders of that party reiterated confidence to the last. None the less, Democratic spokesmen stood by their predictions that they would gain a majority in the House and possibly in the Senate.

Must Score Big Gains.

To do this, Democrats must capture 53 House and 10 Senate seats at present Republican, while holding what they have—163 and 39, respectively. That they will reduce the Republican numbers—269 and 56—is agreed by some party leaders, but the extent remains to be seen.

The only other party with congressional representation this session is the Farmer-Labor, having one member in each branch, both from Minnesota. It has made a determined bid in that State to increase its delegation. Socialist candidates have campaigned strenuously, especially in New York and Wisconsin.

No evidence has been recorded of any issue having inspired a rousing national reaction of itself alone. Administration acts or accusations of failures to act, slack business, sporadic prohibition disputes, local problems and the like have shared the public notice in varying degrees.

Interest in Personalities.

Interest in political personalities, on the other hand, has been almost uniformly tremendous. The citizenry, in the main, whether in villages, on the mountains and plains or in cities by the seas, is watching the stars of a few candidates.

They have read the names again and again, names such as Borah, Morrow, Walsh of Montana, Pinchot, Longworth, Heflin, Norris, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ruth Hanna McCormick. Hundreds of thousands wait eagerly to learn whether their hopes for some to win and others to fail will come true.

Another feature of the campaigning these last days has been the topsy-turviness of situations in a number of States. Instances of Republicans supporting Democrats and vice versa have intensified uncertainty over the outcome of several outstanding contests. The public consensus seems to be "Anything can happen."

Prohibition Is Factor.

Still another vital element of interest has been provided by the frequency and the character of developments affecting the issue of consti-

Fall From Horse Years Ago Put Tom Mix in Hospital

TOM MIX

Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The hazards of hard riding in filming Western thrillers during his early screen career today had placed Tom Mix, film cowboy, in the Hollywood Hospital for treatment of his back, injured in a fall from his horse several years ago.

Last Thursday Mix was at Agua Caliente, Mexico, preparing for a fast aerial trip to Natches, Miss., to face a $50,000 breach of contract suit there Friday. He said severe pain in his back forced the cancellation of the flight and postponement of the trial.

Mix returned to Los Angeles and Saturday night Dr. R. Nichols Smith sent him to the hospital.

The film cowboy was able to undergo X-ray photographing and was declared much improved. Dr. Smith said no serious condition had been found and the trouble will be determined definitely tomorrow.

The Mississippi suit was brought by the owner of a wild cat show, who charged Mix broke an asserted agreement to stage an act with the company.

Tammany Leader Arraigned For Third Time Denies Guilt

Healy Released on Bail Under New Charge of Job-Selling.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Martin J. Healy, former deputy city commissioner and Tammany district leader, pleaded not guilty today when arraigned for the third time on charges growing ont of his alleged acceptance of payment for influencing appointments to public office.

He was released on $1,000 bail. The latest indictment charges that he received $2,000 and an $850 diamond-and-emerald bracelet from Jacob Cash for influencing Cash's reappointment as City Marshal in 1927. The bracelet, the indictment said, was presented by Cash to Mrs. Healy at Healy's instigation.

The new indictment was returned last week by the special grand jury investigating the appointment of former Magistrate George F. Ewald and other alleged examples of a "system" of bartering appointments to judicial office. Last September, tutional prohibition. Forces favoring repeal expect their cause to gain great ground.

Aroused, but expressing no worry, six dry organizations, headed by the Antisaloon League, served notice they would not compromise. The notice called for support of candidates who back the existing laws.

The eighteenth amendment will be passed upon in two of the 162 referenda before voters in 31 States. While Illinois and Rhode Island obtain the sentiment on repeal, Massachusetts does the same on its State enforcement act.

Not alone in those States has the prohibition controversy caused dissension. Ticket-topping candidates in New York and New Jersey declared for repeal. The issue has figured as well in other campaigns, especially in Ohio, Montana, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Referenda on Public Expenditures.

In 20 States the referendum also is to be used to determine the public attitude on public works proposals calling for a total expenditure of $450,000,000. Unemployment relief authorities have asked support to those found sound, since decision to go ahead with construction would provide much work.

Every State votes except Maine. There the customary September balloting returned the customary Republican governor and sent a solid Republican delegation to Washington, a senator and four representatives. They will join today's victors when the new Congress convenes a year from December to sit until March 4, 1933.

The governors and legislators wielding power through that period must be reckoned with in the struggle for presidential nomination two years hence. That's one reason for the importance attached by politicians to the campaigns just closed.

Radio Brings Final Pleas.

Labor of the party speakers and penmen to drive the vote their way ended last night. The voice of the radio was relied upon for the final speeches by two Democrats and one Republican active in the national party efforts.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, running mate of Alfred E. Smith in the last presidential election, displayed the Democratic confidence of victory. His topic was "Why We Are Going to Win." James Francis Burke, counsel for the Republican national committee, spoke on the theme, "The Time for Serious Thinking."

Jouett Shouse, executive chairman for the Democratic national committee, reviewed the situation. His statements indicated expectation of winning more than 65 House seats now Republican, and also of increasing strength in the Senate.

On the other hand, the Republican committee director, Robert H. Lucas, has said he not only looks for continuance of a Republican House majority, but also for the gain of some seats now Democratic. He does not expect Democratic Senate gains to threaten the Republican numerical majority there.

Moses Discusses Coalition.

On the very eve of the vote, Senator George H. Moses gave expression to the speculation in political circles on the possibility of a coalition-controlled Congress resulting from the election. He is chairman of the Republican senatorial committee.

A Democratic-Republican independent majority often has prevailed in the Senate of late years. Senator Moses last winter called the Independents, who hail from the agricultural Northwest, "sons of the wild jackass."

Close House Predicted.

At Concord, N. H., yesterday, he said the Republicans would suffer reverses, but would hold the Senate by a majority not greatly reduced, adding:

"However, in the House it will be extraordinarily close, and it may be that the Seventy-Second Congress will present coalition control in both branches."

The total vote probably will not approach the 35,000,000 cast in the Hoover-Smith decision of 1928. Apathy exists in a number of sections, as compared with the widespread political energy of two years ago. To an extent this is balanced elsewhere by fervid interest sprung from candidacies clashing on prohibition, factional differences and other questions.

The polls stood ready for activity from sun-up. The forecast was for sunny and warmer weather generally over two-thirds of the country. Occasional rains probably will fall in the other third, the South Atlantic States.

Seats at Stake Today.

Thirty-one States are electing Senators to the full term, and eight more to interrupted terms. The seats involved are held now by 28 Republicans and 14 Democrats. Excepting Maine again, the country is naming representatives to make up the House membership of 435, a biennial requirement.

Of these totals, the cases on which the line-up in Congress depends are comparatively few. Only a rough fourth of the senatorial posts being filled are in much doubt, party nomination having amounted to election in some of the remaining instances and opposition to incumbents being weak in others. Similar circumstances account also for a great majority of House seats being considered virtually filled without the marking of a vote, notably in the Democratic South.

The offices about which the most questions have been raised are located particularly in Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana, Illinois and Massachusetts. Should the results be extremely close, there is a possibility the victorious party may not be known until Wednesday. Kentucky has a new law under which the votes can not be counted until the next day. This State has eleven seats in the House, of which eight are now Republicans.

The governorships to be decided now are held by Republicans in 21 States and by Democrats in eleven. Minor offices are at stake in eight additional States.

Interesting State Fights.

The New York and Pennsylvania gubernatorial battles have attracted the greatest attention. Friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt see his chances to become the next Democratic presidential nominee much enhanced in case he is reelected in the Empire State. The Republican nominee, Charles H. Tuttle, and Roosevelt both have advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Gifford Pinchot, seeking to become the Pennsylvania governor, as he was once before, has been bolted by a number of fellow Republicans who prefer John M. Hemphill, the Democratic-Liberal nominee. The latter opposes national prohibition, and has been bolted in turn by some dry Democrats. The State is preponderantly Republican, but the party strife has resulted in the outcome being called decidedly uncertain. Pinchot is looked upon by many drys as one of their outstanding champions.

The President and Mrs. Hoover, who voted by airmail to California on Saturday, have invited some friends to the White House tonight to receive the returns.

Administration Widely Debated.

The work of the Hoover administration was one of the few subjects debated widely during the campaigns. In general, Republican laudation was matched by Democratic condemnation. The Smoot-Hawley tariff, unemployment, poor business and relief measures were among the talking points.

In discussing these points, speakers generally divided on party lines, but there were some exceptions. On the tariff, for instance, some of the Republican Independents berated the act and some Democrats emphasized their votes for protection on industries in their States.

Odd Problems to Face Voters at Polls Today

(Associated Press.)

Massachusetts voters will decide today whether to forbid the use of the so-called steel trap in capturing fur-bearing animals.

Citizens of Arkansas will ballot on whether to require that the Bible be read each day in State schools.

Eligibility of women to the office of Governor of Oklahoma will be determined by voters of that State.

An anticigarette bill will be balloted on by Oregon voters.

SUPPORT PRESIDENT, G.O.P. COUNSEL SAYS

SPEAKS ON RADIO NET

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—James Francis Burke tonight appealed to the American electorate to give President Hoover a Republican Congress and thus leave his hands free to provide a steadying influence to a world beset with political and economic difficulties.

Speaking over a Nation-wide radio hook-up of the National Broadcasting Co., the general counsel of the Republican national committee said the United States was the last country of importance to feel the world-wide depression.

He recalled the business survey conference of the President, which he said had resulted in an agreement between industrial and labor leaders that had prevented wage cuts and silenced strike agitators.

World Influence Seen.

"What we do at the polls tomorrow is bound to have a direct bearing upon the welfare of the world because every one knows that what the world needs most tonight is the restoration of political and economic stability," he said.

"Not since the feverish period immediately preceding the World War has the outlook been so ominous, and the spirits of unrest, uncertainty, suspicion and apprehension so widespread. * * *

"The domestic peace and prosperity of this Nation and the early return of world-wide economic stability are at stake as a result of tomorrow's ballot. * * *

"Our first duty is to restore confidence at home; to protect and give life and confidence to our great home market and then turn our attention to lending a willing ear and a helping hand to the people of other nations who look to us for leadership.

Restoration of Confidence.

"Shall we fortify the President in the Senate and support his policies by reelecting a Republican House of Representatives, which has been the bulwark of confidence during the last few years, in order that we may bring confidence and start the blood flowing with new vigor through the arteries of commerce?

"Or shall we prolong our present uncertainty and postpone the return of prosperity by placing in the control of the House of Representatives those whose plain purpose is to repeal the tariff, revolutionize farm relief, bedevil business, and harrass the President of the United States in his efforts to rescue the American people from their present plight?

"If you elect a legislative branch of the Government whose main purpose is to embarrass and undermine the Executive, you will have a situation little short of legislative anarchy for the next two years, and history has proven that nothing is more fatal to business than to be kept guessing as to what is going to happen."

Repeal Advocates Aid Wet Candidates

Bulkley, of Ohio, Is Given $11,000; Lewis, Bayard Also Gets Funds.

(Associated Press.)

Eleven thousand dollars was sent into Ohio to help Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic candidate for the Senate, by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment between October 22 and October 29.

The association, making its report to the Clerk of the House yesterday, said that it also aided other candidates for the Senate who favor repeal or modification of the Volstead act.

James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, who is running against Ruth Hanna McCormick in Illinois, was given $1,000, and Thomas F. Bayard, Democrat, former senator from Delaware, was given $2,395. Part of the money sent to Bayard, however, was used to aid the candidacy of John P. La Fevre, who is seeking a seat in the House from Delaware.

The Republican senatorial committee reported yesterday it had expended $2,500 between Octobr 15 and October 30 in the interests of Senator McCulloch, of Ohio. Senator Keyes, of New Hampshire, was given $2,500, Senator Robsion, of Kentucky, $5,000, and Senator Hastings, of Delaware, $5,000.

Hoover to Hear Only Early Election News

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover plans to wait until tomorrow to hear the results of today's election. It was said yesterday at the White House that he would not remain up past his usual retiring hour tonight and did not expect to get more than scattered returns before the following day.

Plans had been made for the Chief Executive to come to his office after dinner and there, with special press association wire connections, get the results as they come in. Mr. Hoover has decided, however, to remain in his study with a few intimate friends and depend upon the radio and telephone communications from the Republican national committee headquarters. He expects to retire about 10:30 o'clock.

ROBINSON, SHOUSE HIT G. O. P. IN TALKS

Arkansan Says "Nothing Is Being Done" to Help in Return of Prosperity.

AIR CARRIES SPEECHES

(Associated Press.)

A final barrage of criticism of the Hoover administration went out over the air last night from Jouett Shouse, the chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Senate minority leader, to wind up the Democratic radio campaign for the congressional elections.

Speaking over the National Broadcasting system, Mr. Shouse gave assurance that if the Democrats are given control of Congress, every one "may be of good cheer," because every action taken would be "solely with a view to the betterment of the American people."

Senator Robinson, in an address over the Columbia Broadcasting System, asserted that "the agents of the administraitno have merely stood by and looked on with fear and trembling while conditions have grown from bad to worse and that "nothing is being done, nothing is proposed that any one seems to believe promises a return of prosperity."

Meanwhile, the Republican radio campaign was brought to a close tonight in Pittsburgh with an address by James Francis Burke, the counsel for the Republican national committee.

Democratic House Seen.

Mr. Shouse predicted "without question" the election of a Democratic House and expressed the opinion "there will be such Democratic gains in the Senate that control of that body also may possibly pass into the hands of the Democratic party."

Promising that if this happens there will be no attempt to embarrass Mr. Hoover, Mr. Shouse said the Democrats, "whether in control of one or both of the legislative bodies, will formulate and carry through a constructive program, seeking only to serve the best interests of the country and hoping for the cooperation of the executive in writing such a program into law."

Mr. Shouse said the record of President Hoover was "as much an issue as any other single factor" in the congressional election.

"It is in effect a referendum of the success or failure of the whole administration, even though we are not voting directly on the Presidency," he added.

Legislative Work Failure, Claim.

Both Mr. Shouse and Senator Robinson said the major legislative accomplishments of the Hoover administration were the farm relief and tariff acts, which they described as failures.

Senator Robinson asserted that "the electors now fully understand the fraud and deceit which run through and underlie the claim to a patent on prosperity by means of which the victory for misgovernment was won in 1928."

"does not the present," he continued, "afford opportunity for the just rebuke of those arrogant leaders who have either falsely claimed powers which they do not possess, or have wilfully neglected to exercise their authority to the advantage of the public?

"One thing is certain, if the Republican party is capable of abolishing poverty and promoting prosperity, as its platforms have declared and its spokesmen have asserted, that party should be denied a vote of confidence and should be condemned for its failure to afford relief from the distressing conditions which have long prevailed.

"On the other hand, if economic depression and the decline of prosperity are beyond the control of partisan politics, what possible justification can be urged for continuing in authority those who have fraudulently claimed miraculous powers?"

GIBSON'S MISSION IN ITALY FINISHED

Envoy Silent Upon Progress Toward Rome-Paris Naval Accord.

SCENE SHIFTS TO GENEVA

Rome, Nav. 3 (A.P.).—Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate on the League of Nations' Preparatory Disarmament Commission, tonight completed his conversations with government officials here looking toward an adjustment of Franco-tIalian naval differences.

No indication was given whether the American Ambassador to Belgium had made satisfactory progress, but he conferred again today with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, and it is understood that he hoped, at this talk, to obtain favorable comment on an idea he had suggested last week for Italo-French naval agreement.

Mr. Gibson also had a final talk with Gen. de Marinas, Italian delegate to the league's preparatory commission, before leaving for Geneva, where there will be further opportunity for discussion of the problem with both French and Italian experts.

France Offers Proposal.

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—France will agree to parity in naval tonnage with Italy in the Mediterranean, it was said in official circles today, on condition that Italy allow the French to have sufficient tonnage stationed elsewhere to protect communications with her colonies.

must have 140,000 tons for any eventualities in the Atlantic, while she can take care of her colonial routes with 100,000 tons.

This, it was said, was only a prospective hypothesis but it might take the form of a definite proposal at an opportune moment.

Negotiations Reported.

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today that informal negotiations had taken place between France and Italy since adjournment of the naval conference. He said he understood no agreement had yet been reached upon their naval construction program up to 1936.

The prime minister's statement was in answer to a question whether he was in a position to make any announcement regarding the negotiations.

FOUR CASES LISTED BY SUPREME COURT

TAX DECISION REFUSED

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday granted itself a three week recess after agreeing to review four cases, refusing to pass on thirteen others, and issuing a number of orders.

Two cases involving the validity of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring railroads to charge regular rates on private passenger cars of other roads were advanced for hearing on January 12.

The court again refused, in a case brought by the Bankers Reserve Life Co., to review a demand for the refund of taxes paid on tax exempt securities. The company had signed an agreement with the Treasury approving the final settlement of its tax account without knowing that a case was pending in the Supreme Court which resulted in a decision that certain securities of the kind it held were tax exempt.

It consented to pass on the authority of Minnesota to tax an automobile owned by an Army officer serving on a military reservation, which will affect all States in which there are military reservation.

The cases the court refused to review included one by the St. Louis Cardinals to have their taxes reduced by having the earnings of their Syracuse, N. Y., Baseball Club covered as a part of the tax return of the St. Louis Club.

Trade Commission Power Before Supreme Court

(Associated Press.)

Two suits designed to measure the authority of the Tariff Commission and the Federal Trade Commission came before the Supreme Court yesterday.

The first, brought by commercial concerns, sought a wide review of the activities of the Tariff Commission to determine if it were acting within constitutional limitations. It met with a refusal.

The second was a request by the Trade Commission for a review to determine its jurisdiction to suppress alleged misrepresentations in advertising. It was granted.

Prischer & Co., Inc.; the Transatlantic Clock & Watch Co., Inc., and the Western Briar Pipe Co., importers of a commodity competing with a patented article, urged the highest court to pass on the validity of the act creating the Tariff Commission, insisting that it unlawfully delegated to the President certain legislative functions.

The court previously had refused to review the case and again refused yesterday despite the declaration by the importers that the controversy was certain ot reach it in such form that it would have to dispose of the issue on its merits.

The Federal Trade Commission controversy arose in an order of the commission directing the Raladam Co. to cease advertising a certain medical preparation.

RITES FOR DR. ELLIOTT.

Editor of Methodist Review Succumbs in Michigan.

Dr. George Elliott, editor of the Methodist Review, of New York City, and at one time pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church, of this city, died Sunday in Flint, Mich.

Dr. Elliott was stricken with the fatal illness on September 14 while preaching at the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church in Flint. He was considered one of the most prominent figures in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was chosen editor of the Methodist Review by the general conference of the church ten years ago.

EMPIRE TRIBUNAL WILL BE FOUNDED

British Imperial Conference Plan Will Deal With Dominion Disputes.

SUBJECT OF ENVOYS UP

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Definite agreements on a number of important questions including establishment of an empire tribunal have been reached by the imperial conference.

The empire tribunal will be for disputes between the dominions and the proceedings will be in the nature of voluntary arbitration. The tribunal will not be a permanent court, but will be established for each dispute.

Under the agreement the tribunal will deal with cases involving the dominion governments rather than with individuals and can meet at any place in the empire. It is not looked upon as a substitute for the privy council, which now is the supreme court of appeal in the British empire.

.. .. System of Envoys Praised. .. ..

The system of the appointment of dominion diplomatic envoys such as the Canadian and Irish ministers at Washington, is considered highly successful and this will be extended wherever the dominions deem necessary. Such personal representation also was urged among the dominions, not only for dealing with foreign affairs but for conducting imperial affairs.

The delicate subject of the channels of communication between the dominions and foreign powers has developed a step further by the decision today that in cases of emergency the dominions have the right to communicate directly with a foreign government instead of through the government in London.

Where the dominion has its own envoy in a foreign country, as in the case of Canada's relations with the United States, a communication with the government in question will go through him. Where there is no such dominion representative the negotiations will be made through the British representative.

Cotton Growing Reviewed.

Today empire cotton growing was under review. During the last decade there has been a marked increase in cotton growing throughout the empire, particularly in Australia and South Africa. India produces 6,000,000 bales annually, which is fifteen times what is produced in all the rest of the empire. The conference will recommend cotton growing only as a rotation crop and no extension in empire production until the world price improves.

Sir Arthur Shirley, who has been spokesman of the Federation of the British Empire Chambers of Commerce, today appeared with the delegation before the economic section of the imperial conference and said wide extension of the system of imperial preferential tariffs would be the most effective means of bringing about imperial economic unity.

Cannon Continues In Serious State

Physician Asserts, However, No Immediate Danger Is Apparent.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South continued in a serious condition yesterday at Sibley Hospital, where he has been suffering from arthritis, neuritis, and extreme nervousness since his admittance there ten days ago. Dr. R. Lyman Sexton, his physician, issued a bulletin yesterday declaring that while Bishop Cannon's condition was serious, there was no immediate danger.

"Bishop Cannon's condition as a whole remains unchanged," Dr. Sexton declared. "He slept very poorly Sunday night due to the continuance of pain in the joints, which is more severe now than at any time during his illness. His temperature and pulse, however, are normal.

"Saturday he was visited by his son, Dr. Benjamin Cannon, physician, of the Veterans' Bureau, stationed at Charleston, W. Va., and another son, Prof. James Cannon, of Duke University, who has arrived in Washington for a short visit."

GAYETY

Undoubtedly, the name of the latter part of this week's attraction, "Dimple Darling," has been applied to each of the twenty pretty girls who form the female portion of this cast. Combining their efforts with Hickman and Startzman, two of the leading Mutual comics, and Harry Connors, I. J. Irving and Jack Strouss, these dimpled lassies made this cast bubble over with talent. Fritzie White, singing featured feminine specialties, knocked them out, while Evelyn Du Boise tired herself out answering encores. Jean Rich and Miss Day, blonde and brunette team, put over some clever numbers. The well-dressed I. J. Irving was feeder in chief to the comics. The bright light of the entire performance was the appearance of Jack Strouss, dynamic performer, whose specialty, "Seven-Eleven," had the audience tensed during his entire number. Much credit to Kloud, the former producer of the Columbia Theater, in the steps he has introduced into this week's show. Auction and amateur nights this week.

Women Senate Candidates Tell of Campaign Strains

Ruth Hanna McCormick and Lottie Holman O'Neill, Opponents, Have Stumped Illinois From End to End; Both Tired, But Well.

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Woman's place may be in the United States Senate, as both Ruth Hanna McCormick and Lottie Holman O'Neill want to demonstrate tomorrow, but getting there, they both agreed on election eve, is a man-sized job.

It is w-o-r-k, spelled in capitals.

Looking back over the campaign—

Both women, being veteran campaigners, knew what was ahead. They have paid careful attention to their diets and general health and are "feeling as good as can be expected" considering the strain.

Mrs. McCormick, tall and exceedingly slender, has held her weight to an ounce. She keeps a weather eye out for indigestible foods and combinations. Her diet contains meat once a day, and she is particularly liberal with milk, eggs and vegetables. She partakes carefully of desserts. Most of her hurrying around is done in an open car. One rule she tries to keep is nine hours rest.

After the election she said she is going in for long slumber.

Mrs. O'Neill laughingly told her cohorts the other day that though it might be a little hard on the public's ears a good way for women to reduce would be to run for the Senate. Mrs. O'Neill is less slender than her opponent and the scales show a loss of 12 pounds, unmourned by the candidate. She does not pay particular attention to her diet, but attempts to get good "squares."

Exclusive of oratory expended in winning the Republican nomination, Mrs. McCormick in the past two months has argued her cause for a total of 168 hours, or the equivalent of one week's continuous speaking, day and night.

Mrs. O'Neill did not yet in the running until September 18, but she has talked the equivalent of more than 5½ days on end telling the voters why they should put a check by her name as a dry independent candidate.

Riding behind a chauffeur, Mrs. McCormick has traveled 30,000 miles by automobile in her campaign. She has twice stumped the State from end to end and in high spots a third time. Mrs. O'Neill does her own driving and has covered about 4,000 miles.

Mrs. McCormick talked from three to four times daily down-State, and from five to seven times a day the last two weeks in Chicago. Mrs. O'Neill got in from two to three hits daily down-State and from three to four in the Chicago area. Each spoke about three-quarters of an hour each time.

Mrs. McCormick's first political harangue was 34 years ago, when one night at the age of 16 years she spoke for her father, Senator Mark Hanna, whose voice had given out on a political tour. Later she spoke over the country, sometimes from a soap box, in behalf of women's suffrage. Prior to winning the Republican nomination for senator, she was elected congressman-at-large.

Mrs. O'Neill is likewise experienced in platform speaking. She did her share in promoting woman's suffrage. In 1922 she won election as the State's first woman lawmaker, and she campaigned herself back into office three times. She stumped Illinois for State senator last April, but lost the Republican nomination. Then she pitched her voice for a bigger office on a dry independent platform.

AL CAPONE SUBMITS PEACE TERMS TO CHICAGO JUSTICE

"The time has come when the public must choose between the rule of the gangster and the rule of law.

"Gang rule is not being broken up. One by one small gangs are being wiped out, but complete control of protected vice and crime is concentrated in a single big organization.

"In my charges to the October and September grand juries, respectively, I called their attention to those organized criminals known as racketeers, whose deadly blight has alike fallen upon business and organized labor. I now call your attention to them.

"Continue, fearlessly and impartially, the investigation of organized crime carried on by the September and October grand juries."

After the grand jury retired, Judge McGoorty was asked who he had in mind in speaking of "the most powerful gangster leader in Cook County," he replied, "I mean Capone."

Alleged Go-Between Named.

Michael Galvin, head of the Coal Teamster's Union, is the man who approached Judge McGoorty and State's Attorney Swanson with the scheme for the Capone organization to quit racketeering, if allowed immunity in selling beer. This is the union to which George "Red" Barker, now in prison for violated parole, and Jack "Three-Fingered" White, now held for murder, acted as union agents.

Affiliated with the coal teamsters are seven or eight other drivers' unions. They are not members of the American Federation of Labor. Another group of teamsters and drivers in several unions are members of the American Federation of Labor.

Galvin is the power in the unions outside the American Federation of Labor and the unions have been the tagret of State's attorney for racketeering methods.

Capone's Terms Outlined.

According to Galvin, this is what Capone promised:

To quit his labor racketeering.

To surrender on a vagrancy warrant.

To leave Chicago and operate by more or less remote control.

His demands were:

No interference with his beer business.

Dismissal of the vagrancy charges as soon as he surrenders.

Conversation Reported.

When the proposition was made by Galvin to Judge McGoorty, several persons are reported to have listened to the conversation. Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse was among those present at this conversation. He confirmed the general topic of conversation.

"Now, if we could get a representative of the Association of Commerce, the Crime Commission and other organizations together in a meeting we could perhaps straighten out this union question," Galvin is reported to have said on his approach to the judge.

"I can talk for Al Brown and Capone; I am in a position to say that if he is not bothered in the beer business, if the State's attorney's office will leave him alone, that he will withdraw his fellows like White, Barker and others from the unions," he is reported to have said.

Galvin, so it is reported, was promptly invited to leave the judge's chambers and it was emphatically impressed on him by both the judge and the assistant prosecutor that no compromise would be made with Capone.

17 PLACED ON TRIAL AS MAN'S LYNCHERS

SHERIFF IDENTIFIES TWO

Walhalla, S. C., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—South Carolina today began an effort to convict seventeen men, including the mayor of this town, of participation in the lynching last spring of Allen Green, 53-year-old Negro.

Sheriff J. L. Thomas, the first witness, testified that he recognized two of the defendants among the masked mob that seized the prisoner and took him a short distance from the jail to a tree, where he was hanged.

John Sanders and John Stevens, both of Walhalla, were named by the officer as the two he had recognized.

His son, Eugene Thomas, also testified to recognizing Sanders among the crowd at the jail.

Among the seventeen defendants are Mayor R. L. Ballentine and Alvin Jones, the town's night policeman.

In addition to the murder charges, the defendants are under indictment conspiracy to murder and assault and battery with intent to kill. The latter charge grew out of an attack upon Sheriff Thomas, whose skull was fractured when he was felled by the butt of a pistol as he attempted to prevent seizure of the prisoner.

The State offered in evidence two coats which, it contends, Sanders and Stevens wore on the night of the lynching. A. E. Power, pathologist, of Columbia, testified that stains on the garments had been made by human blood.

Green was accused of attacking a white woman. Under a South Carolina law, Oconee County recently paid Green's family $2,000.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

ONE will be glad when today's country-wide vote is in and counted for two reasons especially. The first is that maybe Minority Leader Jack Garner will get over his obsession about Mr. Mellon and tax refunds.

It is the one thing on which he harps. Every time there is a refund Mr. Garner insists that it is to a heavy contributor to the Republican campaign war chest.

It was only a short while ago that he grabbed a list of important contributors and said they had all been given large tax refunds. And they had. But Mr. Garner very blithely overlooked the fact that refunds had been made to Democrats, even to Jouett Shouse.

THE thing that struck me about the list at the time was that all of the heavy contributors or the $10,000 boys were recent appointments as ambassadors, and if I had been a politician, engaged in the game of give and take, I would have made my play upon this and upon the fact that there were some heavy contributions from what are affectionately termed the power interests.

It would seem that these two points of attack would have afforded enough fun for anybody. But not Mr. Garner. He had to twist the thing around to reflect his obsession about Mr. Mellon.

So strongly does Mr. Garner feel that Mr. Mellon is always wrong, that there is a sinister purpose in everything he does, one wonders how in the name of goodness, if he should become Speaker, he would be able to sit quietly in the chair without having the opportunity to occasionally vent his spleen against him.

* * * *

BUT just as absurd as these demagogic attacks upon Mellon and to my mind, far more questionable as to decency, is that campaign poster which the Republican national committee circulated inferring that Mr. Raskob manipulated the stock market to embarrass Mr. Hoover.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, has been charging this for some time and no one has been surprised. It is what one expects of him, Tom Heflin and that kind.

For the Republican national committee to pick it up causes one to wonder about the upstandingness and uprightness which have heretofore been the unquestioned attributes of Chairman Fess.

There will be a lot of fellows around here who will gloat over the Republican losses today. And it will be larger because the national committee has resorted to such things as this.

PUBLISH 'GREEN HAT' LIST, CARAWAY ASKS

CALLS SELF ABSTAINER

Any executive department of the Government, now in possession of the customer list of George L. Cassidy, "The Man in the Green Hat" and also known as the Capitol bootlegger, should make that list public, Senator Thaddeus P. Caraway, of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate lobby committee, said yesterday.

The senator made his plea for publication of the list following a series of stories concerning the planting of an undercover prohibition agent in the Senate Office Building to trap Cassiday. Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol and former prohibition commissioner, and Vice President Curtis have admitted that such an agent was placed in the Senate building.

Prohibition agents seized Cassiday's customer list when the arrest was made.

"I hope to have this list made public," said Senator Caraway. "I should be very much surprised to find that it contained the names of so many senators as claimed. Perhaps I can comment on the matter because as every one knows I am one member of the Senate who never took a drink of whisky in my life and will therefore not be suspected as a patron of 'The Man in the Green Hat.'

"The placing of a prohibition agent in the Senate Office Building during the last session was execrable bad manners on the part of the Treasury Department. It is not entirely unprecedented, however.

"It is refreshing to find that this administration has made a particularly zealous effort to enforce prohibition in at least one spot."

WARRANTLESS RAIDS UPHELD BY DECISION

SIGHT OF LIQUOR ENOUGH

Police and prohibition agents who enter a public place and see liquor have a right to seize it even though they have no warrant.

This was the substance of an opinion handed down yesterday by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals in holding legal a liquor seizure made by agents and police in a raid on a restaurant operated by Enos Croce in the basement and first floor of a five-story building on H street northwest near Thirteenth street. The opinion was written by Chief Justice George E. Martin and was concurred in by Justice Charles H. Robb and Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the District Supreme Court, who sat in the absence of Justice Josiah H. Van Orsdell.

The opinion pointed out that the officers had entered the place to ascertain if intoxicants were being sold, and that one of them looking through an open kitchen door saw four bottles of liquor on a table in the kitchen. The agent seized the liquor and arrested Croce, despite the latter's plea that it was for his own use, the opinion stressed. It also was pointed out that while the officers were present a man came in and ordered a highball.

Chief Justice Martin pointed out that under common law officers could make arrests for crimes committed in their presence and without a search warrant could seize the instrument of the crime, and held that the fourth amendment to the Constitution, which forbids unreasonable search and seizure is to be construed in conformity to principles of the common law.

Chief Justice Martin held that the basement restaurant was a public place, pointed out that the public had free access, and stressed testimony that a man had ordered a highball in the presence of the officers.

"It therefore appears," wrote the chief justice, "that while the officer was standing in a public place he saw the bottles of liquor in the kitchen, to which he had access through the open kitchen door. In these circumstances he was authorized to seize the liquor without search warrant."

TAMMANY LEADER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Tommaney, on charges that Ewald's appointment to the bench had been paid for.

Soon after the charges against Ewald were uncovered, in a federal investigation of Ewald's connection with a stock-selling enterprise, a Federal Grand Jury indicted Healy for alleged failure to file an income tax return for 1927 or to supply information concerning his income for that year. It was in 1927 that Mrs. Ewald loaned Healy $10,000 without security, just before her husband was made a magistrate.

Healy is free on $2,000 bail pending trial on the Federal charge and has posted $2,500 on that accepting the $10,000 in consideration of Ewald's appointment.

Two "blue ribbon" panels of talesmen have been ordered to report November 17, for the selection of juries to try the Ewalds, Healy and Tommaney on the first indictments of the extraordinary grand jury. Justice McCook gave Healy's attorney until November 17 to file motions in connection with the new indictment.

Tunney Suit Plaintiff Finds Judge Relation

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The discovery that Timothy Mara, sports promoter who is suing Gene Tunney for half a million dollars, is distantly related by marriage to Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hatting, who is hearing the case, interrupted but did not terminate trial of the suit today.

After counsel for Mara and Tunney had conferred with the justice the former's counsel explained that Mara's uncle had married a woman whose sister married Justice Hatting. Both Mara's uncle and his wife are now dead.

"We wouldn't care if your honor was Mara's uncle," said Emory R. Buckner, Tunney's counsel, to the court—and the trial was resumed.

BLAZING RIVER OIL BURNS 2 BRIDGES

GUSHER FED STREAM

Oklahoma City, Nov. 3 (3A.P.).—Flaming oil on the North Canadian River east of here, which destroyed two bridges and threatened the Harrah plant of the Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co., apparently was under control late tonight.

The oil, floating down stream from the wild C. E. Stout No. 1 gusher, which was capped yesterday, caught fire near Spencer today after petroleum in the river a few miles nearer Oklahoma City was consumed last night after burning most of the day.

The Shawnee, Okla., Fire Department was called into action and was guarding the river near McCloud to safeguard a large bridge half a mile west of McCloud.

Led by A. J. Ownby, Pottawatomie County commissioner, a score of workers dammed the river with a drift near McCloud, halting oil that floated down stream after missing the fires above. The drift will be set fire purposely if enough oil accumulates, Ownby said.

The first bridge destroyed was near Spencer, a short distance down stream from the scene of a spectacular fire yesterday afternoon. It was not known whether the latest conflagration was a new fire or a fresh outburst of yesterday's spectacle.

The Stout well, harnessed yesterday after flowing wild since Thursday night, belched forth an estimated 60,000 barrels of oil and 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. The quantity of oil being much too great to be stemmed by the hastily thrown up earthen dykes, much of it went into the river. In places the oil floating on the water was 3 inches thick.

Billowing black clouds of smoke made a curtain on the eastern horizon of Oklahoma City today.

Fear of fire on the eastern side of the city was not entirely removed as houses, grass and trees still were saturated with the volatile petroleum that sprayed a residential district as far as 2 miles north of the well.

National Guardsmen who had been on duty since Saturday were relieved today, however, and the work of guarding the district rested again with city firemen.

The oil-soaked soil immediately surrounding the well was plowed up, making it possible to resume oil operations in the northern end of the oil field, suspended during the well's rampage.

VICE CONSUL GEST DESCRIBES HOW HIS COLLEAGUES DIED

Fishermen found Mrs. Jackson's body four miles from the foot of the cliff from which she had fallen. A crew of searchers from Havana today were making an extensive hunt for the other two bodies.

Vice Consul Sydney Gest, of the American Consulate at Havana and near-victim of the tragedy, returned to the Cuban capital today, suffering slightly from exposure following his rescue by Mrs. Gest after being carried under by the strong waves. He had leaped into the bay in an attempt to save Wainwright and the Jacksons.

Mr. Gest, whose home is in Philadelphia, tonight gave the first direct version of the tragedy.

"Seven of us, including Sherbourne Dillingham, vice consul in Havana; the Jacksons, Wainwrights, my wife and myself had gone to Buey Vaca for a day's outing," Mr. Gest told the Associated Press.

"A strong wind was blowing and the waves were dashing against the rocks near the beach. Mr. Dillingham and Mrs. Jackson and my wife donned bathing suits and seated themselves on a ledge over which the spray leaped. The rest of us were in a cabin some distance away.

"A high wave lifted Mrs. Jackson from the ledge and carried her into the bay. Dillingham plunged after her, but could not reach her side because of the heavy waves. He was dashed up against the base of the ledge. Mrs. Gest, using a long silk scarf as a rope, pulled Dillingham to shore and ran to where we were.

"Jackson, Wainwright and I rushed to the edge of the rocks and could see Mrs. Jackson rising and sinking in the waves some little distance out. Dillingham, exhausted, was clutching at the rocks below us.

"We leaped in but were overwhelmed by the force of the water. Jackson and Wainwright were carried away from Mrs. Jackson, but I was thrown against her as she came to the surface.

Dashed Against Rocks.

"I reached for her as she again sank and succeeded in touching her, but before I could seize her a wave took me away and I found myself being dashed against the rocks, where Dillingham was clinging.

"I tried again to swim out, but the tremendous force of the waves was too much for me. If I had succeeded in bringing any of them toward the shore I doubt if I could have managed to get them up the side of the ledge—it was so steep and slippery.

"My strength was going fast when I saw Mrs. Gest dangling the scarf in my direction, as she had in Dillingham's case. I seized it. A few minutes later Dillingham and I were on top and summoned assistance, but it was too late. If it had not been for my wife's presence of mind and the nervous strength which became hers for the moment, there would have been two more victims."

Dillingham in Havana.

Mr Dillingham also returned to Havana today. Outside of being badly bruised and suffering slightly from exposure, he and Mr. Gest seemed none the worse for their experience.

Consul General Frederick F. Dumont has sent Vice Consul Taylor M. Gannett to fill Mr. Wainwright's post at Matanzas temporarily and is awaiting word from the State Department as to the successor of Mr. Jackson.

Both the men who were drowned lived in Washington at one time, Mr. Jackson at 1333 Fifteenth street, and Mr. Wainwright at 2017 O street northwest. Mr. Jackson was formerly a student at George Washington University, while Mr. Wainwright attended the State Department's Foreign Service School.

Men's Careers Sketched.

A native of Waterloo, Ill., Mr. Jackson was employed in the Treasury Department following his college course and later entered the War Department. After service with the Army during the World War, he entered the foreign service in 1920.

Assignments included that of vice consul at Bahia and service at Montreal, Torreon and Agua Prieta before Havana. Survivors are his stepmother, Mrs. J. W. Jackson, of Madison, Ill., and a brother, Henry P. Jackson, of Waterloo.

Mr. Wainwright was a graduate of Princeton and Cambridge Universities. He was the son of Mrs. Clement Biddle, of Philadelphia. After becoming an instructor at Princeton University he entered the foreign service in 1927 and was consular officer at Sao Paulo, Guayaquil and Havana.

Church Pew Bares Cash Belt of Pious Bankrupt

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A. Nicholas, bankrupt merchant of Yazoo City, whose alleged hiding of assets from creditors was revealed as he knelt in church, was sentenced today by Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes to serve three years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta.

When Nicholas kneeled in church his coat tail caught on a pew and one of his creditors saw his money belt. Police who searched the merchant said that they found $14,000 in ten and twenty dollar bills.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Lima Locomotive.

S. T. E.—Please tell me something about the earnings of Lima Locomotive and whether dividends are being paid on the stock.

Answer—Company earned in 1929 $2.37 a share, reported moderate deficits in 1928 and 1927 and earned $8.08 a share in 1926, which was the last big year for locomotive buying. Now believed company booked sufficient business to enable it to operate at a profit this year, though to what extent has not yet been disclosed. No dividend is paid at present, last quarterly distribution of $1 having been made June 1, 1928.

Lima is one of an increasing list of inconspicuous stocks getting so low as to be regarded as a purchase for the long pull on assumption that all adverse features have been discounted, and that the next change will be in the nature of improvement.

Savage Arms.

C. R. T.—I am a holder of some Savage Arms and in doubt as to the maintenance of the present $2 dividend. Can you enlighten me on the aubject?

Answer—While no early change in the dividend has been discussed so far as can be ascertained, its permanency appears to be in doubt, unless a decided gain in earnings occurs. Company in first six months of this year reported a deficit of $52,662 comparing with net income in the opening half of 1929 of $266,337. Sales for the third quarter are reported to have improved, though not reaching levels of the same period in 1929. In that year $4.32 was earned for the stock. This year's earnings, it would now appear, will fall far short of that amount.

'WOLF' LAMAR FACES STOCK MARKET BAN

One of Trio Accused of Wash Sales Owes Prince & Whitely, Is Claim.

COURT ORDER IS SOUGHT

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—David Lamar, George C. Van Tuyl, jr., former State superintendent of banks, and Martin A. O'Mara, who until last week was president of the Brockway Motor Truck Corporation, have been named in a Supreme Court order to show cause why they should not be enjoined from further stock deals, the State Bureau of Securities announced today.

The order was signed by Justice Fawcett.

Deputy Attorney General Davis, who moved for the order, accused the defendants of using wash sales to manipulate and raise the price of Brockway Motors on the New York Stock Exchange.

The State bureau's motion asked that the men be enjoined pending trial of an action brought by Attorney General Hamilton Ward.

The alleged manipulation, Davis said, involved brokerage accounts in O'Mara's name in which Brockway common stock was to be purchased and accounts in Van Tuyl's name in which the stock was to be sold. Under Lamar's instructions, he charged, the Van Tuyl accounts would sell the stock short and would cover the short sales with stock purchased from the O'Mara accounts.

"It is apparent," Davis said, "from the entire transaction that Lamar was engaged to manipulate the stock so as to raise the price and to induce the public to purchase it. The fictitious activity created by Lamar had the tendency to make the public believe that a real demand for the stock existed, thereby inducing the public, itself, to buy the stock."

Davis said that when the operation was suddenly shut off O'Mara was left with more than 15,700 shares in his account with the brokerage firm of Prince & Whitely, against which he owed more than $311,000.

Assistant Attorney General Washburn, in charge of the State Bureau of Securities, said he "wished to make it plain that this action did not in any way involve the Brockway Motor Truck Corporation itself."

of the man who had purchased the liquor nor where he lived, but had struck up an acquaintance with him in a lunch room on Pennsylvania avenue near Twentieth street and that after the purchase had been made he and the unknown purchaser had several drinks of it.

Subsequently, Sergt. Little reported to Gen. Crosby, Burke had informed Policeman T. M. McVearry, of the liquor squad, of the transaction. McVearry, in turn, informed Sergt. Holmes, who said that he had inquiry made at Police Court as to Burke's reliability and then took him to Commissioner Turnage. Commissioner Turnage said that he knew Burke and issued a search warrant to Policeman R. A. Williams.

Policeman Pulls Gun.

At least seven policemen took part in the raid at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Flythe had just reached his home from the White House to take lunch and was conversing with his wife and some women friends of Mrs. Flythe when he responded to a ring of the doorbell to be met by the raiding party, the first of whom thrust a pistol against him and shoved him aside while other police ran through the house.

The policeman who pointed his pistol at him also threatened to shoot his small dog, Mr. Flythe said. He had no complaint to make of the conduct of Sergt. Holmes, who treated him courteously, or against other policemen in the party Mr. Flythe said.

Mr. Flythe said that seven police were in the first group entering his house and that three others followed. Inspector Bean reported to Maj. Pratt that seven took part in the raid. They were named as follows: Sergt. Holmes and Privates J. K. Baker, R. A. Williams, T. M. McVearry, H. G. Bauer, W. C. Wrenn and G. E. Thornton.

Outcome of Raid in Doubt.

What will be the outcome of the raid was still doubtful yesterday. Instructions issued by Maj. Pratt in the past have forbidden policemen to make raids or seek warrants against citizens on the word of informers unless they had "covered" the informer the while he made a liquor purchase.

"Cover," in police parlance, means that the informer was searched before he entered a premises, was watched entering and leaving and searched immediately after, the supposition being that under such arrangement an informant could not get liquor at one place and say it was purchased at another. This was not done in the Flythe case and raiders admit that they raided the Flythe residence immediately on a "John Doe" warrant without making any effort to ascertain who lived in the house or whether the description given by the former fitted Mr. Flythe.

Mr. Flythe pointed out that the description does not fit him. He is shorter in stature, of slight build and several years older than the age ascribed to John Doe in the warrant.

Los Angeles, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Jack Noonan, brother of Sallie O'Neil and Molly O'Day, film actresses, escaped today from a county prison road camp, where he was serving a one-year sentence for burglary. Noonan was accused a year ago of robbing the Hollywood home of Ted Lewis, orchestra leader, of $10,000 in furs, jewelry and clothing.

RITCHIE, BROENING RADIO LAST TALKS

Governor Asks Opponent, Who Raps Administration, to Bare Liquor Policy.

MANY POSTS AT STAKE

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie tonight had the last word to say in his campaign for reelection to a fourth term in Maryland's executive chair, broadcasting an appeal to voters from radio Station WCAO two hours after Mayor William F. Broening of Baltimore, his Republican opponent, had concluded his campaign with a radio address from Station WBAL.

The two gubernatorial candidates took to the air in closing the most strenuous stumping campaign in many years, which took them to every section of the State, but lacked in fireworks that it made up in intensity, while their running mates went to their homes to await voting time tomorrow.

In his final personal address, Gov. Ritchie "called for the last time for Mayor Broening to make clear his stand on the prohibition question," which he has charged throughout the campaign the Republican nominee ignored, though he considered it the main issue. Mayor Broening himself continued his broadside at the Ritchie administration which he charged had been used to build a personal political machine.

Sixth District Contest.

When the electorate goes to the polls tomorrow, besides electing a new governor, it will express its preference for all six of the State representatives, an entirely new Legislature and local candidates.

The three State-wide offices outside of the governorship are attorney general, comptroller and clerk of the court of appeals. The Republican candidates for these offices are David A. Robb, Cumberland; William N. Jackson, of Salisbury, and Dr. Charles Warner, of Belair, respectively. They are opposed by W. Preston Lane, jr., Hagerstown; William S. Gordy, jr., of Salisbury, and James A. Young, of Cumberland. All the Democrats except Lane are incumbents.

The chief congressional fight centers in the Sixth District, where Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican incumbent, chairman of the District of Columbia committee and as such the "mayor" of Washington, is opposed by David J. Lewis, Democrat, who served two terms in the lower house and was defeated last year. Democrats in this western Maryland district have been centering their attention in the election of Lewis, who is conceded an even break, though he faces a Republican majority of more than 10,000 on the registration books.

Cole Versus Clark.

In the First District, the dry Eastern Shore, T. Alan Goldsborough, Democrat, is looked upon as the choice to succeed himself. He again is pitted against A. Stengle Marine, whom he defeated two years ago. In the Fifth District, comprising part of Baltimore and southern Maryland counties, Stephen W. Gambrill, the Democratic incumbent, is opposed by A. Kingsley Love.

William P. Cole, jr., Democrat, is given an even chance to take over the seat won in 1928 by Linwood L. Clark, Republican, who is seeking reelection. J. Charles Linthicum, Democrat incumbent from the Fourth District which he has represented for ten terms, again seeks election against dry William O. Atwood. Linthicum is the leader of the wet bloc in the house.

Task Before Ritchie.

Vinvent L. Palmisano, Democratic incumbent, who an election subcommittee of the house said was elect ed in 1928 through fraud, is again seeking election against John Philip Hill, former Representative, who contested Palmisano's 1928 victory. Final election never has been taken on the contest by the House Elections Committee.

Gov. Ritchie is faced with the necessity of returning a Democratic majority to the legislature, where last session he held an advantage of 48 in the house of 103 members and 21 in the Senate of 29 members. The speaker of the last house, E. Brooke Lee, of Montgomery County, is not a candidate for reelection, though David G. McIntosh, jr., president of the Senate, is seeking to return after a futile attempt to wrest the gubernatorial nomination from Gov. Ritchie.

Otterness, secretary of the South Dakota Society, as second vice president; Miss Gertrude M. Louise, former secretary treasurer of the Iowa Society, as secretary; Thomas W. Cain, first vice president of the Alabama Society, as treasurer, and A. R. Bailey, vice president of the Illinois Society, as historian. Lee Lamar Bailey serves as honorary president of the society.

The organization voted to hold a ball in the middle of January. James Lee Bost, former vice president of the North Carolina Society, was named chairman of the general committee, and Edward J. Lang, treasurer of the Connecticut Society, was appointed chairman of the music committee for the event.

FOUR SCHOOLS SHUT FOR LACK OF WATER

Frostburg Supply Depleted and Officials Seek New Piping Method.

OTHER CITIES AFFLICTED

Frostburg, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The municipal water supply put out of commission by a four months' drought, four schools in this Western Maryland town of 7,000 were forced to close today and restrictions on consumption in a number of other cities in the State continued.

One of the schools is the State Normal School. The others are public high school, a graded school and a parochial school.

Except for a supply hauled from two nearby springs, and what can be obtained from wells, the town was without water today. City officials started a study of means to bring by pipes the water from a spring six miles away which is estimated to have a flow of 800,000 gallons a day. Municipal reservoirs on both sides of nearby big Savage Mountain were dry and two artesian wells also have been exhausted.

Although other Maryland cities have been hard hit, and have been threatened with water famines, the situation here today was believed to be the most serious reported. Schools closed for several days at Brunswick, Frederick County, until water could be piped from the nearby Potomac River, and pupils of two schools near Hagerstown had a temporary holiday, but water for drinking has been supplied there from springs and wells.

Cumberland, largest city in the western section, Frederick, Frederick and Annapolis, the State capital have been on a restricted consumption basis since midsummer, but officials of each have expressed the opinion that no immediate danger of exhaustion of drinking water exists, but use of water for lawns and gardens and washing automobiles has long been prohibited. The situation at Annapolis was relieved somewhat today with a new artesian well, flowing at the rate of 144,000 gallons a day. All restrictions on water consumption probably will be abandoned in two weeks, Mayor Walter Quensted announced.

At Frederick, girl students at Hood College have been prohibited to take more than one tub bath a week. They were instructed by President Apple to confine their ablutions at other times to sponge baths.

A fire emergency reservoir containing 500,000 gallons remained in reserve here today, but Municipal officials said this would not be tapped except in case of the most serious emergency. It would last less than two days at the present rate of consumption in the town, they estimated.

Maryland, by official figures, is one of the three States hardest hit by the drought. The precipitation thus far has been less than half of normal for the year, and considerably less than this since the formal beginning of the present unbroken drought, June 26.

NEW $25,000 HOME VOTED BY FIREMEN

Falls Church Volunteers Hope for Solution of Funds Problem.

ELECTION ISSUES CITED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department of Falls Church voted unanimously to erect a new and modern engine house which will cost approximately $25,000, providing necessary arrangements can be made to finance the building. The board of directors and trustees are now considering financial questions involved and will make their report at a later meeting.

The department has grown so rapidly with the increase in the town's population that it now owns three modern motorized pieces of fire fighting apparatus and it is necessary to extend the department's housing facilities immediately. Realizing this some time ago, President R. E. Kendrick appointed a building committee to investigate the best method of procedure. The question confronting members of the department is whether it will be best to enlarge and repair the present engine house or to exchange the present site for a larger lot on the boundary line between Fairfax and Arlington Counties on the Lee Highway a short distance from the present location.

Tentative plans, drawn by a Washington architect, have been approved by the department. These plans are based on the most modern fire engine house designs available. The building is to be 44 feet wide and 96 feet long with two stories of brick construction. It will serve both the business and social needs of the department and as a community hall.

The apparatus room on the first floor will be 75 feet long and 36 feet wide. The first floor will also contain an assembly room 23 by 23, sleeping quarters for several men, watchman's room, storage room, electric control room, lavatories, workshop and boiler room. The second floor will be an auditorium seating 358 persons, a stage 16 by 32 feet, coat rooms, dressing rooms, lavatories and a large kitchen.

While the estimated cost was about $25,000, the actual cost to the department is expected to be somewhat less because of many donations. No solicitations have been made to date but many members have volunteered to donate labor for painting, laying brick and concrete and for electric wiring, as well as supplies.

The election today will have a special interest to citizens of the town of Fairfax as they are to vote on whether or not the town is to be bonded for installation of a municipal water system. The bond issue to not exceed $50,000 and is to be guaranteed by a maximum tax of 80 cents on each $100 valuation of real estate within the corporation limits. Proponents of the movement point out that a water system would be a revenue producing utility and it is expected that but very little tax will be necessary to help finance interest and maintenance charges.

A poll of voters taken by several leading citizens seems to indicate that the bond issue will be carried by a vote of approximately 162 for and 65 against. Fifty persons who voted against the bond issue for water and sewer last year have indicated that they favor the present plan. Mayor Thomas P. Chapman, sr., points out that reduction of fire insurance rates will offset any increase in taxes due to increased valuation. Judges in the local election today will be Samuel W. Sission, jr., H. M. Gibson and Marion E. Earle. The polls will open at sunrise, 6:37 o'clock, and close at sunset, 5:06 o'clock.

The trial of Thomas J. Van Pelt, of Cheverly, Md., and James H. Colbert, of D street near Sixth street northwest, Washington, for alleged violation of the State prohibition law, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock before Justice of the Peace A. C. Ritchie. Charges grew out of the automobile accident Sunday morning on the Little River Pike, about 2 miles west of Fairfax, when Mrs. Gladys Starr, of Washington, was killed. Additional charges of having obsolete tags on the car and driving without a permit have been placed against Van Pelt, owner of the wrecked car.

Sheriff Kirby stated that he had received detainers from the Prince Georges County (Md.) authorities for both of the men. The Maryland warrants charge Van Pelt with reckless driving, colliding, and leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known. The warrant for Colbert charges housebreaking and grand larceny. It is also stated that Colbert is now on parole from the Maryland State House of Correction, at Jessups, Md., where he was serving a sentence for assault and battery.

Mrs. Starr's father, George Christ, of North Liberty street, Baltimore, was in Fairfax yesterday making arrangements for removal of her body to Baltimore for burial.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow in the boardroom of the county courthouse. County Engineer F. Norvell Larkin has received a list of supplies needed by the five recognized fire departments of the county, which he will submit for the board's approval. Representatives from the five companies will also be present to ask the board to take out firemen's compensation insurance.

The Fairfax Garden Club will hold its meeting this morning at the home of Mrs. John S. Barbour, on Payne street, in Fairfax.

The Keene Class of the Southern Methodist Church at Falls Church will hold its annual chicken supper and bazaar this evening from 5:30 to 8 o'clock in the Sunday school rooms of the church. Mrs. Ella Adsitt will be in charge of arrangements; Miss Viola Hoskinson and Mrs. Mary Birch will be in charge of the fancy work and Mrs. R. P. Shaffer and Mrs. C. B. Prebery will have charge of cake and candy.

The Holy Name Society of St. James' Catholic Church at West Falls Church will hold its meeting this evening in the rectory.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Church has elected Arthur Cushman, president; George S. Thompson, vice presidentiff Miss May Thompson, secretary; Edward Redington, treasurer, and Miss Martha Thompson, pianist.

There will be a meeting of the Franconia School and Community League this evening in the school house at Franconia.

The Community Library Association at McLean will serve a chicken pie luncheon at noon today in the library building at McLean. This will be followed by card playing. Miss May Walters, vice president of the association, has been appointed chairman for the affair.

DEMOCRATS GIVEN MONTGOMERY EDGE

Republicans, However, Assert Opponents' Ranks Are Badly Divided.

LEE ISSUES STATEMENT

Montgomery County's political fate rests in the hands of its voters today. Either the Democratic administration, which has served the county for ten years, will be returned to power, or the Republican party, for the first time since the Civil War, will hold the reins. There also is a possibility, regardless of which ticket wins, that one or two of the opposing party members will lalip through to civtory.

Political observers give the Democratic party the edge in the election because of several factors. The main factor is declared to be the satisfaction of the people of the suburban sections with the present government. Democrats claim that 40 per cent of the suburban registered Republicans will vote the Democratic ticket.

On the other hand, Republicans point to disaffection in the Democratic ranks and claim that the Progressive Democratis will vote with the Republicans and sweep that party to victory.

Democrats, however, deny that the entire Progressive bloc can be swung to the Republican banner, although they admit that several of the Progressive leaders are supporting the Republican candidates. The Democrats claim that the largest portion of the Progressive wing will remain under the banner of Democracy.

Maj. Lee Makes Statement.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, found time yesterday from his labors as chairman of the Democratic State campaign committee, to issue a statement on Montgomery county.

Maj. Lee stated that he expected the Democratic party to carry Montgomery county with a majority of 3,000, with former Representative David J. Lewis, who is opposing Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, Republican, for House of Representatives, leading the ticket. That Lewis will carry Montgomery County is admitted very generally, even Republicans not being very loud in their objection to the belief.

Maj. Lee said:

"Existing county-wide public sentiment seems more certainly to approve the continuation of the county administration than in any general election in the past.

"The taxpayers generally fear the governmental chaos that would follow the election of the present opposition ticket with its support from groups of voters who differ so widely. The people of Montgomery County are convinced that the county now enjoys the best government of any suburban section that they know about. They will not risk a change.

Sees State and County Victory.

"I believe that the State and county administration candidates will carry suburban Montgomery County by more than 2,000 majority and will carry the northern end of the county by more than 1,000. The average county administration majority will be more than 3,000 votes. Kensington and Rockville look like our only bad districts.

"Zihlman is weaker than ever before. The voters regard his difficulties as of his own making and are not sympathetic. Zihlman is reported strong only in the business section of Cumberland City.

"David J. Lewis will lead his ticket in Montgomery, Washington and Frederick Counties with a substantial majority in each county and has a decided edge on Zihlman to carry the Western Maryland district.

"Ritchie and his State running mates will sweep Maryland by more than 75,000 majority, or more than the 1928 majority of 61,000."

Last minute campaigning was in full swing yesterday and last night byworkers of both sides.

Democrats Quote Coolidge.

One of the most interesting developments of the campaign was the use by the Democratic organization in Takoma Park of the message of former President Coolidge carried, in yesterday's issue of The Washington Post, to give emphasis to a circular which had been prepared for distribution to voters in Takoma Park, which is considered a Republican stronghold.

Quoting former President Coolidge as follows: "The great body of our people are thoughtful, serious, unselfish and patriotic. They are not easily deceived because they contemplate both the future and the past. Demagogues and false issues do not move them."

The pamphlet then proceeds under "The Past" to outline the public improvements in the past ten years made in Takoma Park without special assessments. They cite the construction of the Takoma graded school, the Takoma-Silver Spring High School, paving of Flower avenue, widening of Carroll avenue, concrete bridge over the railroad opposite the Bliss Electrical School, separate Takoma Park police and location of a county police force at Takoma Park, restoration of the North Takoma town parks and establishment of the Sligo Creek Parkway.

Pledges For the Future.

Under "The Future" is listed pledges to construct a new concrete bridge over Sligo Creek at Carroll avenue, extension through Takoma Park of the East-West Highway; construction of approaches to and Maryland's share of the Fern street underpass, extension of this highway through Takoma Park to connect with roads to Baltimore and completion of the development of Sligo park.

It is expected that approximately 70 per cent of the registered vote will go to the polls today. If this prediction is a fact, it probably will be late Wednesday before definite results of the election will be known.

The heaviest burden on election officials probably will be in the Bethesda district, which includes Bethesda precinct and Chevy Chase precinct. In both of these precincts the books show heavy registration and about 1,000 voters in each of the four polling places are expected to cast ballots.

Rockville, Wheaton and Takoma Park officials also will have a busy time after the polls close at 7 o'clock tonight.

It is probable that more polling places will be provided before the next election, but it is too late to provide them now.

If all of the voters of Bethesda district attempt to vote it is probable that some of them will be turned away.

Sterling Cooley, son of former Chief of Police Charles C. Cooley, of Kensington, was arrested yesterday by police of the Bethesda substation on a warrant charging reckless driving sworn out by Lawrence Burdette, a truck driver of Boyds, Md. Cooley was released on bond to appear in court Saturday.

Police received a report that two men were beating a man on Wisconsin avenue near the District line. When Cooley, Burdette and J. M. Ganley, owner of the milk truck driven by Burdette, arrived at the substation, Burdette swore out the warrant.

Cooley's lips were swollen and bleeding and he appeared much the worse for wear. Burdette and Ganley told Justice of the Peace Christopher that Cooley had been trying to stop them all the way out from Georgetown Hospital. They said that Cooley had attempted to block their truck with his light coupe and had nearly caused an accident on several occasions.

When they stopped the car, they said, Cooley attempted to strike Burdette, with whom apparently he had a long standing feud, with a crank handle and they claimed that they had struck him in self-defense while taking the crank away from him. Cooley declined to swear out a warrant for Burdette.

The rescue squad of the Gaithersburg Volunteer Fire Department will meet tomorrow night in the firehouse for a review of first-aid work under the supervision of Dr. W. D. Barnett, who is fire department physician. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

The squad has twenty members who have completed the standard and advanced courses in first aid of the American Red Cross. Actual bandaging and other practical work will be included in the review. A chief of the rescue squad probably will be chosen at the meeting.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

ELECTION EVE QUIET IN PRINCE GEORGES

G. O. P. Attack on Sanitary Commission Feature of Last-Minute Activities.

HUNT TRIALS OPEN TODAY

Light skirmishing in the vicinity of the sanitary commission was the main activity on the Prince Georges County political front yesterday. Customary next-to-last-minute charges were made by the Republicans, and the Democrats made the usual last minute answers. The courthouse was virtually deserted as party leaders went out among the voters, and those officials who could be found were immersed in political discussion.

The attack on the sanitary commission was opened by S. Gardiner Coale, chairman of the Republican State central committee for the county. He charged that work on the Northwest Branch sewer was not done when it was necessary, and that it is being done now only as a political measure. He wants changes in the method of appointing members of the commission, as outlined in the Republican county platform. Adopting a plan sponsored by the independents, he wants the annual audit of the commission to be a matter of public record.

This onslaught, while issued by Coale, is backed by all the members of the committee, who have approved it.

Reply to Charges.

T. Howard Duckett, chairman of the berated commission, answered a part of the charges. The Republicans said that employes of the commission, which has its offices in Washington, were not liable under Maryland laws for misdemeanors which they might commit here.

Duckett countered by saying that all employes are bonded, that most of the money taken in by the commission was collected and banked in the county, and that there had never been a loss in the twelve years of the commission's existence.

Twelve millions of dollars is the sum which has been handled by employes of the commission, and none of it has been lost. The Washington office of the body collects only about $15,000 a month anyway, Duckett said.

The Sanitary Commission is considered probably the weakest point in the Democratic line-up. It has been attacked from all sides for its alleged arbitrary attitude toward taxpayers and for the charges it makes. The location of the offices in Washington is another sore point with the objectors. Nearly as much berated is the more or less subsidiary Park and Planning Commission, which is supposed to have stepped on at least one set of toes with its zoning regulations.

Mystery Ballot Controversy.

No further information concerning the two "mystery" ballots which have appeared in the campaign could be dug up yesterday. Or, rather, what was dug up was earnestly denied. One of the officers of the Taxpayers' Association said that a candidate was responsible for the change in some of the ballots put out by that body. The candidate, William R. Smallwood, denied that he had anything to do with the change, or knew anything about it. Anyway, the taxpayers and the other independents indorsed neither Lansdale G. Sasscer, the Democratic candidate for reelection to the State Senate, nor Smallwood, his Republican opponent. And then somebody, who is carefully anonymous, stamped out Sasscer's name, leaving it to appear that Smallwood is the choice of the independents.

A pile of the other mysterious campaign literature was found yesterday in a restaurant in Upper Marlboro, together with an attack on Ritchie sponsored by Alden A. Potter, of Bethesda. The proprietor of the eating place said that the ballots, which are illegal, were left in his establishment. It is unlawful, in Maryland, to issue campaign material which does not bear the name of the organization issuing it.

Reward Offered in Vain.

Incidentally, both the mystery ballots are strongly Republican in their recommendations, although one of them leaves off a Republican leader and indorses his opponent's candidacy. Neither party plans to carry on any investigation to determine the origin of the illegal pamphlets.

Although Pinkney Magruder offered $100 Saturday night to any person who would give him evidence that the Democrats were buying votes, no notice that any person has been so rewarded has been made. Magruder, an active member of the taxpayers' group, offered the reward after he had charged that Democrats were buying votes for $5 apiece.

John H. Fetty, Republican candidate for clerk of the circuit court, said yesterday that after a careful canvass of the county, he was confident that he would win by a majority of 2,000 votes. His opponent, Summerfield D Hall, has been in that office so long that he has almost become a tradition, and observers do not share Fetty's optimistic outlook.

The Maryland Fox Hunter's Association's field trials start today on the farm of Whitney Atcheson, near Laurel, and will continue until the end of the week. A derby stake, and all-age stake, and horse-racing will feature the program. Other less technical activities will be an oyster roast, a community ball, and a horn-blowing contest.

More than a hundred of the best hounds in surrounding States are expected to be entered in the various events. D. C. Sands, of the Middleburg hunt, will be judge of the bench shows, and will award the silver trophies and ribbons in each of the six classes.

Two roads near College Park will be turned back to the county for maintenence, if the plan of a group of citizens of the community goes through. This body will petition the commissioners to take over Dartmouth avenue from Calvert avenue to the point where it joins the Baltimore boulevard.

The other road the townspeople want to get rid of is College avenue. The stretch between Dartmouth avenue and Columbia avenue will probably be taken over by the county.

Helen Louise Brooks, of Berwyn, asked absolute divorce from Thomas I. Brooks, of Colmar Manor, in a suit filed yesterday in circuit court. In her motion, the woman says that she was married to the defendant in 1911, and that she was driven from his home in 1923.

In the interim, she charges, he was cruel to her, and he has not contributed to her support since he drove her away. The couple have no children. J. Ridley Shields appears as attorney for the woman.

CHANGE IN COUNTY REGIME ADVOCATED

County Commissioner Green of Arlington, Makes Last-Minute Plea.

HENDRICK'S VIEWS GIVEN

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Whether Arlington County is to go forward with a more progressive form of government as advocated by the leaders of the Arlington County Civic Federation, Arlington County Bar Association and the chamber of commerce will be determined at the polls today.

While at no time during the campaign which has been going on for the past month has any organized opposition made its appearance until yesterday, from a general survey of the county among political leaders it is found that strong efforts are now under way for its defeat.

Despite the opposition which has developed, the supporters of the movement are satisfied that they will carry the election.

Overshadowing any opposition which has come forth at the eleventh hour, County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green, a recognized political power in Arlington County, in an interview yesterday concerning the proposed change in county government, said that, "In my opinion I can not see anything radical or dangerous in the proposed change. Radical and pronounced changes in government are always serious and should be made with extreme caution, but a conservative change such as proposedto keep abreast of new developments is helpful and progressive. Arlington County, with an area much smaller than many cities, and with a rapid development in all sections of the county, should no longer be governed by imaginary lines such as magisterial districts, but should be treated as a unit that the improvement of one section not be made to the determent of the county as a whole.

Change Seen as Businesslike.

"The proposed change of government," said Mr. Green, "is simply a proposition to put the county on a business basis with a business head and coordinate the several branches of government. It should not increase the county expenses a single dollar and if properly managed should mean a saving of many dollars to the taxpayers of the county. The claim that a change in county government will impose a local license tax on automobile tags, business concerns and professions, is without foundation and can not be levied under existing laws. The privilege to impose local license taxes is accorded to cities and incorporated towns only under section 296 of the tax code of Virginia, and no county in Virginia can impose such taxes under existing laws."

Mr. Green further said "that one of the finest features of the proposed change is the fact that if such a change is voted for by the people thereafter no part of our territory may be annexed by any city unless the whole county be annexed, and then not until the question of annexation has first been submitted to a referendum of the voters of the county and approved by a majority of those voting thereon. This provision would safeguard Arlington County from further annexation by the City of Alexandria."

Statement by Hedrick.

Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, from Arlington District, in a statement given out last night regarding the proposed change in county government, said:

"It being generally admitted that the proposed manager form of government will increase the cost of government, the only question is whether or not the revised form would be worth the additional cost or whether the same amount of money would do more good if expended directly for water mains, streets, sewers, schools and similar county improvements.

"From my experience as a member of the county board of supervisors during the past three years I feel strongly that whether the form of government be supervisors or commissioners, it would be a great mistake to do away with the election by wards or districts. It is an inalienable right of the people to be represented. A person who represents every one represents no one. Representation by separate territorial units is not only the fundamental principle of democratic government, but is the only practical working basis on which such a government can function."

J. Lloyd Byars, independent Democratic candidate for the United States Senate from Virginia, on the eve of the election said: "I have conducted an educational campaign, devoid of sensational charges, advocating constructive and progressive economic policies on the part of the present fiscal system, rather than radical change in the system itself, which some students of finance deem necessary, to avoid periodic depressions. The present low per capita circulation, less than at any period since the contraction and deflation of 1920, must be increased before we can hope for a full measure of prosperity.

"If I get the vote I am expecting from the various groups who have suffered most from contraction and deflation—the farmers, merchants and working people, including organized labor and the anti-Tammany element in Virginia—neither of my opponents can be elected.

"My victory will be a victory over organization—without organization."

In addition to the voting on the question of a change in the form of county government the voters will vote for member of Congress and the United States Senate. Judge Howard W. Smith, the Democratic candidate for House of Representatives, will, it is claimed by political leaders, carry every voting precinct in the county over his Republican opponent, Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax. Likewise Senator Carter Glass, Democratic candidate for reelection, it is claimed, will carry Arlington County by a handsome majority over his opponent, J. Cloyd Byars, Independent candidate.

The polls will open at 6:37 and will close at 5:06 p. m.

With more than 6,000 qualified voters indications are that the vote today will be in excess of 4,500.

Due to today being election day, the Arlington County Civic Federation meeting scheduled for tonight will be held on Thursday night in the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. This is the last meeting of the organization prior to the annual election of officers and President Hull has urged a full attendance of the delegates that all standing matters may be cleared away before the new officers are voted on.

Meeting in the auditorium of the Washington-Lee High School tomorrow night at 8 o'clock delegates from the various Parent-Teachers Associations of the local schools will discuss plans looking to the organization in Arlington County of the Arlington County School Federation. The object of the proposed body will be to get together on matters of vital interest more rapidly than it has in the past.

Ballston Council No. 36, Order of Fraternal Americans, will meet in the Junior Order of American Mechanics hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Ballston Presbyterian Church announces that it will give a benefit chicken dinner in the Sunday School rooms of the church tomorrow night from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

Citizens Are Urged To End Textile Strike

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 3.—An appeal to business men and citizens to step in and end the prevailing strike of textile workers was issued today by J. P. O'Connell, of Salem, Mass., business agent of the United Textile Workers, who said that the labor tieup is "wasteful and uneconomical" and that it is costing the mill company and the union thousands of dollars each day. The situation was unchanged today.

Labor officials, however, took cognizance of the fact that many workers are being housed and fed within the mills by stating that they are being charged board and lodging by the mill company.

Teacher Shot in Nose Goes On With Classes

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Although shot through the nose, Miss Jennie Walters, 21 years old, continued teaching her pupils at the Grass Run School today.

As she was following a path through a woods on her way to the school, some huntsman fired at a running rabbit. The bullet pierced her nose. After checking the flow of blood with handkerchiefs, Miss Walters went on to school, asked her pupils to remain quiet for a while, had the wound dressed by a doctor and then resumed her classes.

ORPHANAGE AUDITOR ADMITS 71 ERRORS

EMBEZZLING IS CHARGED

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—J. M. Culbreth, defense accountant in the embezzlement trial of J. P. Jones, former treasurer of the Virginia Methodist Orphanage, this afternoon admitted that his audit of the Jones orphanage books was in error in 71 instances, amounting to $7,594.13, he had erroneously credited to Jones.

On the basis of hypothetical questions propounded by Commonwealth's Attorney Dave E. Satterfield in cross-examination, Mr. Culbreth figured that Jones owed the orphanage $21,185.36. When he began his testimony as the principal defense witness Friday he asserted that the orphanage owed the former treasurer more than $24,000. Jones is charged with embezzling $37,000 of the orphanage funds.

The Commonwealth resorted to hypothetical examination when Judge John L. Ingram ruled that figures in the line of questioning could not be used with the particular denominations involved in the case.

In the hypothetical examination Mr. Satterfield asked Mr. Culbreth to take into account his own erroneous figures, an amount corresponding to the $23,000 for which Jones has made a settlement, figures amounting to $14,000 paid the orphanage by Jones since the audit began, figures equaling $18,000 in unidentified disbursements which he had credited to Jones without knowledge of what bills were paid with the money, and other items set forth in the audit of F. L. Worcester, the accountant employed by the orphanage.

The witness admitted numerous errors in each of the three exhibits introduced as evidence during his direct examination, which was commenced Friday afternoon, the fourth day of the trial. Cross-examination was started shortly after noon today.

When cross-examination on the first exhibit had been finished, Mr. Satterfield asked him if it were not true that 95 per cent of the items listed in that exhibit were inaccurate. Culbreth replied all but seven or eight were wrong, and admitted that approximately two-thirds of the items he had claimed as new credits in his direct examination were listed on the Jones orphanage cash book.

The last two hours of his direct testimony had been taken up with the introduction as evidence vouchers and receipts for money which, he said, was paid by Jones for the orphanage not credited to him in the Worcester report.

ALEXANDRIA WON, DEMOCRATS AVER

Declare Size of Majority Alone Left in Doubt as Vote Nears.

EARLY BALLOTING URGED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince-St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 522.

A large majority of the votes cast in Alexandria today will be for the Democratic nominees, according to predictions, and the only concern of the city Democratic committee is to see that a large vote is brought out. Senator Carter Glass, Democratic nominee for reelection to the Senate, and former Judge Howard W. Smith, who is slated to succeed R. Walton Moore as representative for the Eighth Virginia District, will each have two opponents, those who aspire to Senator Glass' seat being A. Cloyd Byars, of Arlington County, independent, and Joe Morgan, of Newington, Fairfax County, Socialist. Neither is expected to poll a substantial vote in Alexandria.

Judge Smith, for Congress, is opposed by Dr. F. M. Brooks, of Fairfax County, Republican nominee, and John M. Daniels, of Stafford, independent. When Judge Smith easily defeated four candidates in the Democratic primary for the nomination, his election was conceded. His victory will bring back to Alexandria the honor of having a representative which, since the resignation of C. C. Carlin in 1919, has been the privilege of Fairfax.

The city Democratic committee has urged that all voters go to the polls and cast their ballots, so as to swell the majorities of the Democratic candidates. The committee also has suggested that those whose employment is in Washington cast their ballots in the forenoon, since the polls will close at 5:04, too early for many Washington workers to cast their votes after working hours.

The voting places in the various wards of Alexandria are: First, Armory Hall, South Royal street; Second, 110 North Royal street; Third, Odd Fellows Hall, North Columbus street; Fourth, Friendship Engine House, South Alfred street; Fifth, Rosemont station; Sixth, Jefferson Clinic, Mount Vernon avenue, Potomac.

The suit for appointment of a receiver for the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation, in which Judge William P. Woolls, of the corporation court, heard arguments October 17 and subsequently denied the application for a receiver presentation of testimony, will be opened at 2 o'clock tomorrow, afternoon before Judge Woolls. Testimony in behalf of the plaintiffs then will be heard.

Attorney Harry F. Kennedy represents the plaintiffs, Robert B. Smythe, Theodore S. Grape and Charles D. Davis. Mr. Kennedy stated yesterday that the testimony will consume several days and that after tomorrow, hearings will be postponed until Friday, when additional testimony will be presented.

A conference will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Westminster Building of the Second Presbyterian Church. The address will be made by C. H. Gundersdorff. The subject of the conference and of his talk is to be "A Cure for Sick Bible Classes."

Mr. Gundersdorff, president of the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes, will be remembered by Alexandrians as the speaker for the Gideon Society when Bibles were placed in all the rooms of the George Mason Hotel here. He is teacher of the Lutheran Baracas, said to be the largest Bible class in Baltimore. All members of men's Bible classes in Alexandria and vicinity have been invited to attend tonight's conference.

Funeral services for William R. A. Kleysteuber, who died suddenly Sunday evening at his home, 401 Newton avenue, Potomac, will be held there at 3 o'clock this afternoon, conducted by the Rev. H. L. Hout, of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Irene White Kleysteuber, he is survived by a 14-year-old son, William Kleysteuber, jr., his mother, Mrs. Alexander A. Mills, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; a brother, Carl J. H. Kleysteuber, also of Brooklyn; a stepbrother, Robert A. Mills, of Jacksonville, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. Florence Summer, of Brooklyn.

The Rotary Club today, at its luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock in the George Mason Hotel, will receive the report of the district conference, held in Fredericksburg, Va., the past week.

The November term of Circuit Court for this city, with Judge Walter T. McCarthy presiding, began yesterday when the docket was called and cases were set for trial.

Representatives of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce who attended the meeting in Winchester, Va., last night in the interest of changing the name of Route 50 to the George Washington highway, included Dan S. Hollenga, business manager; Mr. and Mrs. Doll Zirkle, A. M. Remschel, George F. Downham, Fred C. Goodnow, Charles W. King and Charles T. Bowdoin.

Mrs. Rathbone Smith, regent of the Kate Waller Barrett Chapter, and Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair, regent, and Mrs. Charles Ellett Cabell, of Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, are in Lynchburg, Va., attending the State D. A. R. conference.

The November meeting of the Mary Custis Lee-17th Virginia Regiment Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Lee Camp Hill.

Increase in Duty Upon Tobacco Hit

Action by Germany Stirs Vain Protest on Part of U. S. Growers.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 3.—Cables advices from Germany today brought word to A. B. Carrington, president of the Tobacco Association of the United States, that the German government expects to raise the duty on foreign leaf tobacco from 80 to 400 marks.

Upon receipt of this intelligence, Mr. Carrington sent telegrams to Senators Carter Glass and Claude Swanson, informing them of this development and adding that such a duty would destroy the German market for American tobacco, with a consequent lessening of demand and lowering of prices.

"We urgently ask you," the telegrams read, "to take this matter up with the State Department and request them to enter a strong protest. Final decision will be rendered by the German government Wednesday."

Senator Glass almost immediately wired back to Carrington that the State Department already had informed him that it did not feel it had any right to protest the tariff activities of foreign countries with respect to tobacco or any other commodity.

Pawnbroker's Placard Advertises Robbery

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 3.—William McLaughlin, pawnbroker, whose shop was robbed early today when some one tossed a brick through the window and made away with the contents, took the robbery complacently and placed a placard with the following message over the hole in the window. "I have been in business a long time. I have been cussed and discussed, boycotted, talked about, held up and robbed and the only reason I am staying in business now is to see what the hell is going to happen next, and it did. Signed, Bill."

A Negro is under arrest and is being held as a suspect. Police said he was a stranger here and had confessed, implicating others.

TODAY'S ELECTION.

Every political campaign has its irregularities. Human nature is so diverse and conditions in different parts of the country are so varied that candidates can be expected to get out of line with the national parties now and then. But this year party lines in many States are as jagged as a seismographic tracing in a severe earthquake.

A stranger traveling about the country would find it impossible to get any intelligible idea of what either Republicanism or Democracy means. In New York he would listen to Al Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee of two years ago, exonerate the Republican party of blame for the economic depression. In Nebraska, Idaho or Wisconsin he would hear Republicans denounce the Hoover administration and all its economic policies. He would hear orators paid from the generous coffers of John J. Raskob pleading for the election of wets in one locality and drys in another. Republicans are supporting both wet and dry candidates.

Expediency has been the watchword of the 1930 campaign. The lack of a national issue has induced candidates to catch at every straw. In New York the Republican State ticket was split between the wets and drys in the hope of capturing the votes of both. The national and State tickets of the Democratic party in Ohio expose a similar schism. The tariff issue in the hands of the Democrats has been split into so many fragments for use in different States that it is doubtful whether the pieces can ever be reassembled.

Montana has more than its share of anomalies. Senator Thomas J. Walsh, a dry Democrat, is running against a wet Republican. Wet Democrats, among them Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, went to the aid of the Montana Walsh, reversing their addresses in their home States. Senator La Follette, nominal Republican, has been making Democratic speeches in Montana, and Senator Borah, who is running as a Republican, has been heaping anathema upon President Hoover.

The country has grown to expect political insanity in Nebraska. A considerable faction of the Democratic party is convinced that no one could more effectively obstruct the program of the administration than the bogus Republican, Senator Norris. On the other hand, thousands of Republicans who are outraged by the Norris brand of insurgency will vote for the Democratic nominee.

The cross currents in Illinois are too intricate to trace. With two women in the field against the gallant J. Ham Lewis, and with the bulky specter of Big Bill Thompson toying with political careers to suit his own whims, Illinois has enough political melodrama to last it a decade. Party lines in Pennsylvania have been badly smeared as a result of the nomination of the renegade Gifford Pinchot for governor on the Republican ticket. In such instances as this the election will be no measurement of Republican against Democratic strength, in a national sense.

It will be a relief to the public to have the political oracles quiet. Predictions are worthless. The fact is that the importance of the election of 1930 has been greatly exaggerated. As no national issue has emerged, the result of today's election may have no bearing whatever upon the vitally important election of 1932.

PUBLIC ORDER IN CUBA.

In contrast with the disturbances in South America, the election in Cuba has passed off peacefully, and President Machado and his party have been sustained by the vote. No doubt many opposition voters stayed away from the polls, and naturally the charge is made that the election does not reflect true public sentiment. Cuban agitators have done their best to convince Americans that President Machado is a despot who has strangled liberty in Cuba. But the attempt to stir up revolution in that country and to embroil the United States is a failure. Gen. Machado has at least maintained public order, which is the first requisite of liberty. The fact that the Cuban Congress gave him extraordinary powers preceding the election indicates that he is supported by the majority when he makes it known that he will not tolerate sedition and revolutionary conspiracies.

One reason why a revolution in Cuba is improbable under a reasonably competent government is that the army is officered by men who stick to their duties and are not politicians disguised as army officers. Many of them were educated in American military schools. They not only recognize the supremacy of the civil power, but are loyal to it. There are no political juntas in the Cuban army. The revolutions in Bolivia, Peru, Argentina and Brazil are all traceable to military interference in politics. Mexico's frequent revolutions have all been organized by army officers.

It is supposed that would-be Cuban revolutionists have found encouragement in certain circles in the United States. But the United States Government has kept an eye upon this aspect of the situation, and it would be very dangerous for Americans to become involved in a conspiracy against the Cuban government.

BRAZIL'S NEW REGIME.

Dr. Getulio Vargas, leader of the rebellion in Brazil, has set himself up as president. He plans to establish a regime of his own to succeed the military junta which deposed President Washington Luis, and is now engaged in selecting a cabinet. The new president announces that he will dissolve Congress at once "for an indefinite period," and will himself rule Brazil "with discretionary powers."

It is difficult to interpret the meaning of this latest turn of events in Brazil. Does Dr. Vargas intend to serve as president during the period for which his opponent, Dr. Julio Prestes, was elected? Or does he regard himself as merely a provisional president, holding office until the will of the people may be ascertained? If he plans to reestablish representative government, why does he dismiss the Legislature and make arrangements for imposition of his own program upon the country?

A regime set up through revolution may not be representative of the people. In this case Dr. Vargas was defeated in the presidential election shortly before the revolution broke out. He has forced his way to the presidency by resort to arms. He charges that the election was fraudulent, and he has won the sympathy of a considerable percentage of the people. But that does not give him the right to serve as president of Brazil. If there was any justification for the revolution, it was to establish the will of the people. That can not be done by elevating the defeated candidate to the presidency and dismissing the legislature.

The extreme danger of usurping the political authority in a nation of 40,000,000 people must be apparent to Vargas and his followers. They have set a precedent of overthrowing the constitutional government by violence. If they take immediate steps to restore constitutional authority and provide for an unbiased election the government probably will be stabilized again without further disturbance. But if Vargas intends to take advantage of the revolution to make himself dictator, future trouble is inevitable.

Until the program of the Vargas regime is definitely marked out conditions will remain unstable. A counter revolution may be initiated. The United States ought to be cautious about extending recognition to the new government.

NATIONAL SUPERHIGHWAYS.

John J. Raskob is on sound economic ground when he advocates as a measure for the relief of unemployment the increasing of the Federal highway aid fund. A point has been reached in this country, he says, where the highways are clogged. "We must build superhighways," he adds, "not only to provide work for millions of people over a long period of years, but also to make possible the further building up of our industries to care for an annual automobile demand of seven or eight million motor cars, requiring the production of millions of dollars' worth of materials of every kind." Thus Mr. Raskob expounds the new doctrine that consumption must be increased if prosperity is to be reestablished. Without question the tremendous expansion of highway facilities since 1900, to which is inseparably linked the development and expansion of the motor-car industry, has played a dominant role in the upbuilding of American prosperity.

The part the Government has played in the development of the American highway system is detailed in a brochure recently issued by the chief engineer of the Pennsylvania department of highways. Federal aid is appropriated under the section of the Constitution empowering Congress "to establish postoffices and postroads." At the time the Constitution was framed a "postroad" was understood to mean "a road over which speed could be made; a road prepared for speedy travel with posthorses or postchaise; a road upon which stations were located where relays of posthorses could be obtained." Under this provision a start was made on a national highway system. The best known highway was the Cumberland Trail, on which work was started westward from Cumberland in 1806 and suspended in 1844, when the trail had been pushed as far west as Vandalia, Ill. It was not until 1893, when the office of road inquiry was established, that the Government resumed interest in the highways.

In 1912 a Federal road aid appropriation of $500,000 was made. In 1916 $85,000,000 was appropriated to cover a 5-year program. In 1919 $200,000,000 was appropriated to cover a 3-year after-the-war program. Appropriations of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 were made annually until last spring, when Congress increased the amount to $125,000,000 a year for the next three years. Now Mr. Raskob suggests that the Federal appropriation be doubled, and in so doing he voices a demand that is becoming quite general.

Highways benefit all the people. It is proper that the Government should assist in their construction. The Federal allotments under the law must be matched by the States, and the highways thus financed are constructed under Federal supervision. Last year 9,330 miles of highway were constructed with Federal aid, while the States and counties constructed a total of 78,000 miles. But construction is not keeping pace with the demand for highways. Congestion is becoming greater throughout the country.

Possibly the time is ripe for the Nation to embark upon a stupendous program of highway construction. If the much-discussed transcontinental superhighways could be started now without neglecting other needs in the way of permanent improvements, work would be provided directly and indirectly for many men. But the enterprise should not be undertaken merely to relieve unemployment. If these highways would be capital improvements of the first importance upon which the American people would receive handsome return in the form of quickened transportation and enhanced taxable real estate values, there would be justification for building them. This question deserves investigation by Congress.

TREES AND DROUGHT

By OVID BUTLER,
Secretary, American Forestry Association.

Are the drought-stricken trees which spot the landscape in many regions of the country really dead? Why have some trees apparently died or turned a sickly brown, while their immediate neighbors remain green? What is the extent of tree damage throughout the Nation and what tree species have suffered most?

It will never be possible to set down in exact figures the 1930 drought damage to trees. If it were possible they would be grouped as trees killed outright by lack of water; trees weakened by drought and later killed by insects, disease or other external forces; reduced crops of fruit and seeds both in quantity and quality; arrested tree growth and vitality, and abnormal forest fire conditions.

While blighted trees dotting fields, woodlots, hillsides and city streets throughout the drought area have aroused the interest and concern of the public, foresters express the belief that the number of trees actually dead this fall is much smaller than appearances would lead one to believe. None of the foresters in the drought States places the loss of large trees today in excess of 1 per cent. The mortality of small trees, however, has been much heavier, particularly on dry sites and among baby trees growing wild and in plantations.

It appears that where the leaves have withered and fallen and winter buds have formed the trees will come out all right next spring. But in cases where the leaves have dried up and remain on the tree it indicates either that the tree has died or at least the terminal shoots have died back.

Fruit trees in the drought areas have been exceptionally hard hit, and, strange as it may seem, the old reliable Ben Davis apple tree has suffered the most. This was probably due to the fact that these trees were carrying an unusually heavy load of fruit which in turn levied an abnormal drain upon the reserve food supply of the trees.

Hundreds and thousands of dogwoods, particularly in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia, appear to have been badly whipped at the hands of the drought. Theirs is a shallow root system that keeps close to the surface of the soil. The soil is the water reservoir of all trees, and successive days of blazing sun with no rain intervening wreak vengeance first and longest on the water supply of shallow-rooted trees. The dogwood grows naturally under cover of larger trees, and its roots in their moisture-gathering work must compete with the voracious roots of these sturdier trees. In times of drought the competition for moisture becomes terrific and the tree with the larger, deeper root system has no mercy for its competitors.

Any attempt to measure the extent of tree damage at this time must at best be speculative, because the full effect of the drought upon tree life has not revealed itself and will not for a year at least, and perhaps several years. While the number of large trees actually dead at this time may be smaller than appearances indicate, there is no doubt that the number of trees entering the winter in a weakened condition is very much greater than shows on the surface. Favorable or adverse weather conditions during the winter or coming spring will determine the fate of great numbers of these trees.

The question naturally arises if first aid can be rendered drought-sick trees. With forests, treatment of individual trees is costly and impracticable because of the numbers involved, but street, shade and ornamental trees generally can be given individual attention without too great a cost. If extreme dryness continues throughout the winter the tree should be given feeding of easily assimilated nitrogenous fertilizer next spring when growth begins to stir. The fertilizer should be well worked into the soil from the base of the tree to the spread of the crown.

"I know the world is full of sin,"
Said Uncle Dan McWherry,
"But evenings when my friends drop in
I find it very merry.
And on the day your auntie died
In spite of sorrow's blindness
I saw the world outside
Was full of human kindness.

"'Tis pitiful what men will do
In ignorance or madness,
But I have lived the long years through
And see more good than badness.
I've always had to earn my pay
And do my share of giving,
But none has ever heard me say
That I was tired of living.

"I've had my various ups and downs.
I've oft been disappointed.
But why should I be spared from frowns?
I'm not the Lord's anointed.
And why should I be saved from toil
Or loss or hurt or sadness?
Not all the care I've had can spoil
My present hour of gladness.

Oh, I have wept and I have sighed
And I've been wronged and cheated,
At times no matter how I tried
My plans have been defeated,
But still in spite of hopes forlorn
And all the wrong that's done here
I'm very glad that I was born.

The Fence Built to Keep Others Out Serves to Keep You In.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONLY man is filled with greed. He alone labors all his years to assemble properties for which he will sacrifice his health and his life.

It is a trick Nature plays on him.

The other animals, whatever the reason for their existence, are free of responsibility. Nature requires nothing of them. They are footloose.

The savage, living on Nature's bounty as the beasts do, is almost equally free; and his innocence of greed makes him worthless as a builder.

Civilization is a product of greed.

If man was content with a full stomach and a skin coat, he would pave no roads, print no books, build no cathedrals. He would not so much as prune the trees in a garden.

"We must use man to build a civilization on earth," said the gods, "and we can't persuade him to build it or care for it unless we afflict him with a kind of madness. We must cause him to covet property and treasure it."

Observe now how the madness functions.

Without other property than a single garment, a fishhook and a spear, man might satisfy his needs and have leisure to meditate and invite his soul. But the madness convinces him that he must have much property in order to be free.

"Get rich," says the madness, "and you shall walk with kings and govern the earth."

The man gets rich. By hook or crook he accumulates properties and rejoices in his good fortune.

"I am a success," says he. Alas! he is a dupe. He has been tricked. Nature has saddled him.

His properties—the materials necessary to the building of a civilization—have countless enemies. They are attacked by rust, by decay, by storms, by fire, by devouring insects, by thieves.

Man fights the enemies. He wouldn't do it if he were innocent of greed. He wouldn't care. But now he labors to defend his accumulations. He builds machines, learns the earth's secrets, teaches morality, makes society orderly, pushes civilization forward—all to protect his property and increase its value.

The property that was to make him free has enslaved him. He is a steward—a caretaker—wearing himself out to keep his trinkets dusted.

Poor slave! When death releases him, some other man will plow the field he now "owns;" some other slave will rub rust from the hinges of the temple door.

What a sorry trick to make us willing slaves while other animals are free to live unburdened.

Renegades Ask for Loyal Votes.

The Schall camp warns Minnesota Republicans that election of Einar Hoidale may mean a Democratic United States Senate, and that a Democratic Senate will carry on against President Hoover and his policies "a campaign of frustration for two years, in the hope that a Democratic President can be elected in 1932."

Bless you, boys, the campaign of frustration has been in progress in the United States Senate now for some nineteen months, inaugurated by mugwump senators masquerading as Republicans, and carried on in the hope that an anti-Republican can be nominated for President on the Republican ticket, in place of Mr. Hoover, in 1932.

Senator Borah is the King Fish of this frustrative campaign. Uncle George Norris is the Amos and Tom Schall is the Andy, the blatant and futile posturer, strutting his stuff all over the place while his fellow frustrators do the plotting.

Stating the Democratic Case.

New York World.

At the end of two years these dogmas on which the Hoover campaign was built in 1928 are as completely shattered as if they had never existed. In place of a continuation of boom times we have a profound business depression, widespread unemployment and every prospect of the worst winter the country has experienced in years. It would be absurd to hold the Hoover administration responsible for the world-wide overproduction which is probably the most important single factor in causing business depression. It is none the less clear that the theory of continuing good times as the inevitable consequence of a Republican victory in 1928, the theory so sedulously cultivated by the Republican party and its candidate, has been exposed as fantastic nonsense. Mr. Hoover specifically and repeatedly promised a continuation of good times as the automatic result of a Republican victory. His messages to the country during the first few months of his administration showed no evidence of caution concerning the outlook for business, though security prices were obviously inflated and stock-market loans had reached alarming proportions. His efforts to allay the feeling of panic after the sudden collapse of values last October were prompt and praiseworthy, but the subsequent statements of his administration that the depression had run its course and the inexcusably misleading figures produced by his Cabinet officers in support of that contention have done irreparable damage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Thinker's Way of Looking at Economic Conditions—World Needs All It Can Produce.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to thank you for your able editorial entitled "No Depression Conference." You state that "the United States is more interested in increasing consumption than in curtailing production. The assumption that more goods are produced than can be consumed is the greatest economic absurdity of the age. The need is for increased buying power."

That is the true American philosophy of economics; therein lies our salvation and our power.

Every American knows that in this country there should be no such thing as able-bodied pauperism, and that until the last arable acre is brought to the highest possible cultivation, every mine developed, every forest made to contribute to the comfort of man, &c., there should be remunerative work for all. We know that with our wealth-creating machinery every one should be able to acquire a competence, and we also know that until that need is fully satisfied there can be no such thing as overproduction—that when there is a plethora of necessaries, the surplus energy turns to the creation of luxuries and the advancement of the standard of living. We all know that with our wonderful resources, touched by the magic of genius, the golden age should be even now at our door.

We all know that the masses are not poor because they have created too much wealth, but rather because they are not consuming enough of the wealth they create. We know that half of the world is not hungry because there is too much bread and beans, potatoes and pork; that it is not naked because there is too much wool and cotton; that it is not living in hovels because there is too much lumber and brick. If this theory were true the way to change our depression into prosperity would be to close every factory and let the fields lie fallow until the surplus was consumed; or simply to burn our foodstuffs, cloth and buildings so as to compel the return of "prosperity."

If the theory of "overproduction" and "surplus" be correct, and if with millions of idle hands we produce too much, then we are surely entering upon an age of agony and suffering such as the world has never seen. Fortunately, however, there never was and there never can be such a thing as overproduction. If every workman were regularly employed it would be impossible to create more wealth than the world wants and needs.

Products remain unsold and prices slump because those who produce are not permitted to consume. What we need are conditions that will enable every one to produce to the fullest capacity and enjoy the usufruct of his endeavor to the utmost. This is the ideal American industrial system, to the attainment of which we must bend all our energies.

Mrs. Rust Corrects Report Regarding Washington's Birthplace.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In pursuing investigations of the Wakefield property in the immediate vicinity of the birthplace of George Washington the Wakefield National Memorial Association discovered near the gate the foundations of the second of a number of outhouses appurtenant to the mansion. Such discoveries were anticipated by the association. Some persons immediately jumped to the conclusion that this was the original house and, therefore, that the building plans would have to be changed. This was absurd.

From the time the house was burned, during the occupancy of George Washington's nephew, the site of the original house was marked by the Washingtons themselves, and by them was deeded to the Commonwealth of Virginia, and then by Virginia to the United States, which built a monument on the site. Excavations made confirm this site beyond a doubt.

The building, the foundations of which have recently been discovered, shows that it could by no possibility have been the birthplace, but was a building quite subordinate to the mansion, and built piecemeal, as the increasing requirements of the family demanded. A full explanation prepared by the association's architect, Mr. Edward W. Donn, jr., shows the true character and status of this subordinate structure.

Vice Squad Should Suppress Sale of Cantaloupes and Alligator Pears—Pure Gambling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with great interest in The Post of the commendable action of the vice squad of the Washington police force in raiding two stores operating punch boards as games of chance. As a citizen deeply interested in the moral uplift, I wish to commend our gallant police in suppressing these demoralizing games of chance which are lowering the moral tone of the Nation.

Permit me also to suggest that the vice squad extend its work in the further suppression of games of chance by raiding all grocery stores and fruit stands now engaged in the selling of cantaloupes and alligator pears to innocent and unsuspecting housewives. After having made over twenty purchases in an effort to get a good one, I know that the purchase of either of these commodities is simply a game of chance.

BUILD NOW IS PLEA OF U. S. JOB FINDERS

Col. Woods States Cost of Construction Is Low at Present Time.

TRIO OF AIDS SELECTED

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's job-finding organization yesterday moved to stimulate public works construction by pointing out economies of from 9 to 20 per cent available for work initiated immediately.

Simultaneously three more names were added to the group seeking to alleviate unemployment suffering.

In announcing conclusion of a survey designed to show whether Federal, State and local governments could economize by building extensively at the present time, Chairman Woods of the President's emergency employment committee, said that it had shown that "substantial savings to the taxpayers" would result.

The survey included data gathered from three Government departments and covered various types of construction in all sections of the country.

Virginian Is Selected.

Frank Bane, of Richmond, commissioner of public welfare in Virginia, was the first named yesterday by Col. Woods to aid in his task of job finding. Mr. Bane will act as regional director, supervising unemployment relief in the Southeastern section comprised of Virginia, Maryland, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

James C. Lawrence, dean of administration of the University of Minnesota, was named by the unemployment chairman to act as a "clearing house for regional directors." Mr. Lawrence arrived in Washington yesterday to take up his duties.

Col. Woods made known plans to appoint four or possibly five other regional directors. He already has named Frederick C. Croxton, of Columbus, Ohio, to supervise affairs in the section comprised of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The third name added to the list of workers yesterday was that of John W. Flynn, of Prescott, Ariz. He telegraphed that he had been appointed by Gov. Phillips of Arizona as chairman of the State committee on unemployment and already had established volunteer agencies to register unemployed.

Economies of Building Now.

In discussing the survey of possible construction economies, Col. Woods said that supervising architects of the Treasury had reported that present construction bids at various points east of the Mississippi averaged between 14 and 15 per cent below 1929 estimates with greater economies of smaller buildings.

Army officials, he said reported decreases averaging about 9 per cent per cubic foot in costs of dwellings constructed since 1929, while the Bureau of Public Roads found that roadbuilding contracts could be let in many cases at decreases of from 10 to 15 per cent.

Meanwhile Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau, in a message to Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, in charge of the women's section of the President's emergency employment committee, urging speeding of relief, saying: "We must get the children out of the bread lines and no child must suffer in the United States."

Col. Woods said that he planned to go to New York last night to vote and that he might not return before tomorrow or Thursday.

LLOYD GEORGE'S PLAN LISTS JOBS FOR 650,000 NOW IDLE

ity in government bonds based on the net rent, that is, rent less tithe, management and maintenance costs (less reduction when maintenance has been neglected and capital expenditure is necessary to maintain rent, or plus allowance where special improvements have recently been made), or (c) by purchase in the open market."

Having done this, the state should, within three to five years, say the Liberal leaders, "create 100,000 family farms," running from 3 to 100 acres each, upon which poultry, eggs, pigs, vegetables and fruit should be produced, thus making Britain independent of foreign markets.

Paints Gloomy Picture.

The memorandum paints a gloomy picture of Great Britain's present position and declares that "high authorities whose views demand consideration predict a calamitous breakdown of our national life within the next two or three years." Lloyd George and Lord Lothian state that they fear not a cataclysm, but a gradual decline.

The Liberal leaders attack tariff proposals, declaring that free trade is necessary to maintain exports. Referring to the United States and the dominions, where "signs of the necessity for readjustment in their standards are becoming apparent," they say, "statistics show now that the United States can only secure an export trade at all at the present costs of production as she lends abroad. She practically pays for the goods she sells."

In demanding a cut of 10 per cent in the Government's expenditures, the memorandum points out that the admiralty and war office staffs are much larger than in 1914.

Want Guarantees Extended.

"In addition to the floating of a huge government loan, Lloyd George and Lothian urge extension of guarantees under the export credit system "especially with a view to increasing trade with Russia."

Any expenditure in carrying out the recapitalization of agriculture, the memorandum says, will be in the nature of an investment, not unproductive.

The Liberals point out that the dole and poor law relief now amount to nearly $500,000,000 yearly and that it is better to raise money to create jobs than to continue this system.

Lloyd George's proposals of last year for large expenditures on roads and public works are revived, but the new scheme is more radical and comprehensive than anything he hitherto has advanced.

The political effect of this memorandum is difficult to gauge in advance, but it is undoubtedly of importance as the boldest effort yet made from the free-trade side to put forward an alternative to tariffs. It forms a contrast with the almost total lack of constructive proposals from the Labor government, although, as Labor will point out, Lloyd George's imagination is unhampered by responsibility for carrying out his ideas.

As to the large expenditures that would be involved in carrying out their program, the Liberals say, "the money can be found; the nation's credit should be used. Raising the money will not prejudice enterprise in other directions, and the expenditure will be an investment." In some cases, they add, there will be "substantial assets or revenue to set against the expenditure."

Soviet Advances Chief Who Visited America

Moscow, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The central executive committee today removed Premier Sergei Syrtov from the presidency of the Council of People's Commissars of the Russian Federated Soviet Republics.

Syrtov was succeeded by Daniel Sulimov, former vice commissar of transportation and recently head of the Soviet Railway Inspecting Commission in America.

Nicaraguan Voting Favors Liberals

Majority in Senate and House of Deputies Apparently Won by Them.

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Seventeen of the 24 senate seats in the Nicaraguan Congress have been won by the Liberals, it appeared today from incomplete election returns. The Liberals also appeared to have won 27 of the 43 deputies. President Moncada characterized the vote as an indorsement of his administration.

Balloting in the congressional election was only half as heavy as in last year's presidential voting, but this was attributed to normal apathy of the voters in an nonpresidential year.

Capt. Alfred Johnson, U. S. N., who acted as supervisor of elections, said today he expected to return to the United States by the middle of this month, taking with him 58 officers who served as his aids and the 700 United States sailors and marines who guarded the polling places.

Few Mexicans Entering U. S., Stimson Finds

(Associated Press.)

The State Department yesterday reported that Mexican immigration into the United States had declined, during recent months, until "it is no longer a problem." Secretary Stimson, in analyzing the report at a press conference, characterized present immigration from Mexico as almost negligible.

The department said only 438 Mexicans had received visas for entry during September, and gave the figure for the last six months as only 2,486. Against these figures, it placed the Department of Labor enumeration of 56,747 for the last five years and said the reduction had been 91.3 per cent.

Inquiry on Postoffices To Begin November 12

(Associated Press.)

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, chairman of the Senate Postoffice lease investigating committee, announced yesterday his committee will begin hearings at Chicago on November 12.

From Chicago the committee will go to St. Paul to open hearings on November 17, which will continue for a week. Charges of fraud and corruption have been made in connection with the lease to the Government of a commercial Postoffice building in St. Paul. Blaine said witnesses had been subpenaed for the hearings, but their names would not be given out in advance.

BITTER FIGHT FACES TARDIEU IN CHAMBER

Old Grudges From Last Session Still Alive; Policy on Germany Attacked.

BRIAND PRESENTS ISSUE

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Premier Tardieu will face another bitter attack from the opposition in the Chamber of Deputies when Parliament assembles tomorrow.

The Radical party, the strongest in the chamber, which pronounced against him just before the reopening of Parliament a year ago, has reasserted its opposition and will continue its attempts to overthrow him.

The situation has changed since Tardieu interrupted the battle last July by putting an end to the session. All the old grudges are held against him by his political enemies and some new ones have developed during the recess.

Questions Carried Over.

The questions hanging over from the preceding session include the sanctions taken by the government against the postal employes who struck last summer; the government project to spend 17,000,000,000 francs in five years on public improvements; the financial policies of the government, and Premier Tardieu's personal action as minister of the interior in transferring a number of prefects.

At this session he also will be called to answer for the frequent aviation accidents and the alleged weakness of Foreign Minister Briand in dealing with Germany.

The general opinion is that Tardieu would ordinarily win in a final showdown with the radical and socialist opposition, but now he is in a new dilemma.

Briand Double Problem.

Part of his regular majority, since the German elections and the outburst by Hitler at Leipsic, has expressed determined opposition to Briand as minister of foreign affairs.

They criticize Briand's German policy as needlessly weak and as bringing consequences quite opposite to those which he promised.

Should Tardieu insist upon keeping Briand in the cabinet, it is said, he is likely to lose a number of moderate and conservative votes. Should he, on the other hand, not defend his minister of foreign affairs, he would lose a considerable number of votes in the radical left and independent radical groups. His margin is so small that it might disappear in either eventuality.

Chinese Federals Attack Red Forces

Gunboats and Planes Seek Out Communist Bands.

Shanghai, Nov 3 (A.P.).—One hundred thousand Chinese soldiers cooperated today with gunboats and airplanes in a campaign to crush Communist and bandit armies which have killed thousands and despoiled South China. One of several government armies advancing southward from the Yangtse River defeated a large number of Reds in western Kiangsi province and pursued them with hope of capture.

Gunboats cruised Tungting Lake in Hunan and Poyang Lake in Kiangsi, attempting to destroy nests of Communists infesting their shores. Bombing planes soared over northern Kiangsi near Nanchang to drop explosives upon Reds and direct infantry attack upon them.

Anxiety concerning thirteen missionaries immured in Kanchow since March was somewhat relieved by a message from Bishop O'Shea, of Deep River, Conn., reporting the present safety of himself and fellow missionaries, although Reds continued to be near Kanchow.

Grandi Named Lieutenant Colonel.

Japanese Prince Sees Peace Gains

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Prince Tokugawa, president of the Japanese Diet, told the Japan Society today that the United States and Japan are progressing toward complete understanding.

In spite of distrust expressed by the anti-American press, the prince said, friendly feeling in Japan for Americans is growing steadily. The Washington Conference, he asserted, had cleared a "cloudy diplomatic situation" and "produced a spirit of confidence and understanding."

"Japan, while standing squarely for international justice," the statesman averred, "is determined to throw her weight into the uplift of civilization, the promotion of human welfare and the preservation of peace in the Pacific."

BRITISH LABOR RULE FACES CRUCIAL TEST

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The MacDonald Labor government will face a crucial test tomorrow night at about the time American election judges and clerks are busy tallying the results of the off-year balloting.

Political circles expect the government to win, since the Liberal party announced today it would not support a Conservative amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne, although it is realized there is a remote chance of a defeat.

Sir Henry Samuel announced the Liberal stand, saying that his party—which has kept the Laborites in office thus far, since it holds the balance of power—would not back up the Conservative opposition in the first important division of the year.

Later news spread about the House of Commons that at a party meeting from which Sir Herbert just had come the Liberals decided not only to withhold support from the Conservatives, but to withhold it likewise from the administration.

Thus with Liberal abstention there would remain a clear-cut issue between Laborites and Conservatives. Labor has a majority of about 30 under these circumstances and its only danger in that case would lie in its own left wing of about 20 members, who are thoroughly dissatisfied with the present state of affairs. The general belief is, however, that the left-wingers would not vote with the Conservatives, although they might abstain.

The announcement of Liberal support, made after a bitter attack on the government's handling of unemployment by the Conservative Neville Chamberlain and a lengthy defence by William Graham, president of the board of trade, removed the tension so far as today was concerned.

The amendment invites the House to express its regret at "the failure of your majesty's government to propose any measure adequate to deal with the crisis in the industrial, agricultural and commercial situation, or to check the continued growth of unemployment."

DR. VARGAS BECOMES BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT

Assumes Provisional Office in Simple Ceremony at Cattete Palace.

PLANE FLIES OVERHEAD

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—With a brief and simple ceremony a short, thick-set man this afternoon took over the provisional presidency of Brazil shortly after 4 o'clock.

Dr. Getulio Vargas was generalissimo of the revolutionary movement which changed the government of Brazil in three weeks' time, but today he wore none of the trappings of the military—only plain afternoon dress.

As the time for the ceremony approached, Senhor Vargas descended from his third-floor apartments in Cattete Palace and entered a reception room on the second floor where was assembled the military junta and a few spectators.

Offers Short Speech.

The provisional president stood in front of a table behind which was posted the Junta, the body of army and navy officers which has ruled Brazil since President Washington Luis was forced out of office October 24.

Gen. Tasso Fragoso, head of the military group, with a few words turned over the provisional government to Vargas, who replied with a short speech, asking the Junta members as officers of the army and Navy to continue aiding in making the provisional government a success. Then he named the cabinet.

People Line Avenue.

The entire ceremony did not take more than fifteen minutes. Afterward the new president reviewed a regiment of the presidential guard drawn up in the square in front of the palace.

There was no military pomp, the guard regiment and a low-flying navy airplane being the only signs of armed force.

While the crowds around the palace were not large, salons of the edifice were crowded with officials and their families. Huge masses of people also lined the Avenida Rio Branco downtown, hearing that the new provisional president intended to make a motor tour of the city.

Economic Reform Plans.

Senhor Vargas, formerly president of the State of Rio Grande do Sul and defeated for president in the March elections, began the revolution October 3 which was made victorious October 24 by the assistance of army and navy forces in Rio de Janeiro. On the latter date President Washington Luis was removed from office by the junta and imprisoned in Fortress Copacabana, where he still is held and insists that he still is president of Brazil, refusing to resign.

Dr. Julio Prestes, declared president-elect in the March elections normally would have succeeded Washington Luis November 15, but the revolution changed that and he now is a refugee in the British consulate general at Sao Paulo.

The Vargas program consists principally of plans for economic reform, free elections and the simplification of administrative and legal procedure.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Wrights Plan To Make Brief Capital Visit

New Minister to Uruguay Will Come Soon to Washington.

THAT Mr. J. Butler Wright, retiring Minister to Hungary, and Mrs. Wright, should arrive in the United States just as the hunting season gets well under way has an element of nice timeliness inasmuch as both have a keen appreciation of fine horsemanship. Although the Minister and Mrs. Wright will be in America but a short period before going on to Montevideo where the minister will take up his new post as envoy to Uruguay, they will be here during the height of the hunting season. They are expected on the Vulcania on Saturday and will be in New York part of the time during their holiday, although they will come to Washington also.

Several years spent on a great ranch in Wyoming during his youth only served to increase Mr. Butler's innate love of riding, a hobby which found happy outlet in gay Budapest where splendid feats in horsemanship form a fascinating part of life in the Hungarian capital. Frequent visits to Vienna for the horse shows were a part of the schedule of excursions planned by the Minister and Mrs. Wright, whose pleasure in things equestrian was not the least of the reasons for their widely recognized popularity in that part of the world.

In the Imperial Riding Academy in Vienna amazing exhibitions of Bedouin riding generally top the attractions to these so-called "Arab fantasies," as priceless steeds from the desert wastes form a picturesque note of the ring.

A welcome awaits Mr. and Mrs. Wright in Washington, the latter a Washingtonian, and as Miss Harriet Southerland, daughter of Rear Admiral William Henry Southerland, she was a favorite in naval and social circles. Admiral Southerland was appointed Governor of Guam shortly after the island passed into possession of the United States and during his stay there his family also enjoyed its romance and adventure.

The minister has been in the foreign service for some years having first served in Honduras and later in the Balkan countries. A succession of years in the Netherlands, Brazil, London, Petrograd, Chile and many other parts of the world has introduced the captivating Mr. and Mrs. Wright to society in many of the interesting cities of the globe. In whatever capital they were stationed Mr. and Mrs. Wright exercised their love of riding and friends here are anticipating a continuation of their hobby for the autumn hunts in Virginia and Maryland.

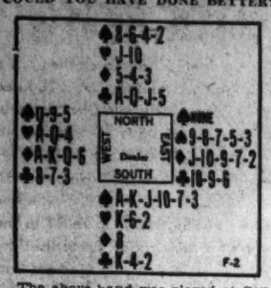
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?



The above hand was played at Contract Bridge. The bidding: South, two Spades; West, three Diamonds; North, four Spades. Had West doubled, North's bid would have shut out East.

At Auction, South would bid one Spade; West, two Diamonds or double (informatorily); if the former, North's two Spade bid would be apt to end the auction; if the latter, East would bid three Hearts and South three Spades.

In the Contract game, with Spades the trump and South the Declarer, West led two Diamonds and South trumped the second. South then led two rounds of trumps, but failed to drop the adverse Queen. He then led two Clubs, winning the second in dummy, after which he led the Jack of Hearts from dummy and finessed. West won with the Queen, cashed the Ace of Hearts and the Queen of trumps, saving game.

Could Declarer have done better?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When East refused on the first trump trick, Declarer, having lost one Diamond trick and being unable to avoid losing one Spade and one Heart, must limit his losses to those tricks. With the Heart honors on the wrong side, two tricks in that suit would be lost; but the uncertainty of the finesse could be avoided by playing the hand as follows:

Trick 4 should have been a Club, won in dummy. Trick 5, a third Diamond, should have been led from dummy and ruffed with South's Jack or Ten. South then could lead the King of trumps (the Ace having been played on trick 3), and two more rounds of Clubs (tricks 7 and 8), the last won in dummy. If West ruffed either of these Clubs it would be satisfactory to the Declarer; but West would follow suit and dummy be left with the thirteenth Club, which he could lead to tempt West to trump, South discarding a Heart. If West declined to trump, dummy should lead a trump, putting West in the lead, or accomplish the same result by leading the trump before the thirteenth Club.

With Diamonds eliminated from the South and North hands, and Clubs from the West hand, putting West in the lead with a trump would oblige him to lead a Diamond, which the Declarer could trump in one hand while he discarded from the other; or a Heart, which South would win with his King. After West was put in the lead, game would be assured for Declarer.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 3.

THIS just goes to show you how careful you have to be where you get your fashion information! I quote an article which appeared in several newspapers: "New fall displays of headwear show that women are to hide their hair."

"The fifteenth century custom which decried that it was bad form for any lady to show her hair is returning."

"Fashion has decreed that hats will be as tight as onion skins, hair is tucked away for the time being, &c."

The only trouble with the article was that it was dated October 7, 1930. Had it been dated October 7, 1928, it would have been all right. No, I'm not being catty—it just makes me sore to see a thing like that when I work as hard as I do to help women with the problem of their clothing, and then something like this comes along and causes a certain number of million women to doubt their own ears and eyes, and throws them back into that hopeless confusion which has always attended fashions and which has no reason to exist today.

Not a single hat in any of the collections of the smart modistes is bonnet-shaped and completely ear and hair covering. It is decidedly the fashion to show quite an expanse of hair, at least on one side if not on both sides. Head coverings still stay high on the forehead, but do not attempt to compensate themselves by hugging the face and coming low around the jaw, as they did so charmingly two years ago.

• • • •

Now that I've gotten that e-r- temper-e-mental load off of my mind, I must take time off to investigate the mysteries of an electric cooker in about a million parts that has just arrived to grace my studio kitchen. If you ever hear from your Dah-ray again, you'll know that she got so exhausted trying to put all the pieces together that she jumped in the broiler part, put the lid on and turned the switch.

• • • •

Maybe I won't, though, but will live to tell the tale and eat a carefully caloric-counted "dejeuner" on my new peasant-embroidered linen luncheon cloth. Or shall I get very luxurious and eat it on hand-hemstitched and monogrammed crepe de chine?

No, these gestures are not as extravagant as they sound, although they are as soul-satisfying as though they were extravagagnt and luxurious because I have made all of these delightful breakfast, tea and lunch sets myself, in odd moments while dictating these articles to La Chic Secretaire, or entertaining friends conversationally who do not demand that my fingers lie idly in my lap while I'm talking to them. Wouldn't you like to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post telling you how to make these delightful tablecloth and napkin sets?

O-o-o-oh, I want to tell you all about the bee-you-tiful pearl-gray dyed ermine, which fashions the Heim coat I've sketched for you today, but we'll have to do it tomorrow, because there isn't a tiny scrap of room—not even time to rave about the shiny gray crepe evening bag set in jet and strass which the Lovely Lady might carry with this coat, illustrated up in the corner—the bag, I mean, not the lady.

• • • •

By all means look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in each Sunday's Washington Post.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

Pickled Beets.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Select beets of uniform size, cut off the stems, allowing at least 1 inch to remain on the beets so that they will not bleed and lose color and sweetness. Wash them well and cook in a covered pan until tender, in enough water to cover. For young beets that will require about one-half hour. When tender plunge into cold water, remove the skins, and when cool, cut in dice or thin slices. Fill the beets into jars and to each pint add one-half teaspoon of salt. Fill up the jars with a mixture of vinegar and brown sugar in equal proportions by measure, heated to boiling, so that the sugar is thoroughly dissolved. If this is too acid, the vinegar may be diluted one-fourth with water. Process immediately containers of all sizes for 30 minutes in boiling water. Pickled beets may be processed in the water bath because of the high percentage of acid.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO"

IF November 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Vexing incidents are forecast for this date, and your innermost feelings will be harrowed. Do not be discouraged if fate seems against you, and remember "The gods help those who help themselves." Contention with relatives.

Children born on this November 4 will have quiet and unimpulsive natures, persistence and determination. They will be skillful and dexterous with their hands, and should be fitted for some trade. They will be friendly and sociable in manner and will easily make friends.

You venture through life with a faltering, timid step, and you seem afraid to thrust your mind into the conflict. Your superior mental gifts should yield you self-development and happiness, but as it is they do neither, because you do not know how or dare not, use them. Life is like the sea on a cold morning, not so bad if you plunge bravely in. Hesitancy is often your undoing. You need some one to push you over the brink, for necessity always brings your latent abilities to the fore. When in a corner you are a magnificent fighter—a lion, not a rabbit. No one is more anxious to achieve success than you are, but you do not have the state of mind that alone can insure it.

You have a very credulous nature, and a very plastic one—you always reflect the color of your associates and environment. The attraction of opposites is true in your case, and you always choose positive types of people for your friends. As a result, you are somewhat at their mercy, and you do not seem to mind being led around by the nose. You are usually very sweet-tempered, and are too unselfish for your own good. You have no physical fear, but your mental and moral courage is below par. It takes very little to make you happy and contented, and your life wil not be a spiritual failure. Your material ambitions are modest ones.

Successful people born November 4:

Thomas Johnson, first State governor of Maryland.
James Douglas, mining engineer.
Edward S. Abeles, actor.
George F. Shaver, inventor.
Ernest H. Crosby, lawyer.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to care for the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. It loses its leaves almost as soon as they develop.

MRS. ROSE K.

When a begonia begins to lose its leaves it is usually due to too much or too little water, too much or too little sun, or too little fresh air. Begonias do best in a soil composed of good loam and leafmold, with just enough sand to complete the drainage. The flowering varieties demand sunshine; the other kinds do best in a shady window. There is no definite rule about the amount of water to give a begonia, as each plant is a law unto itself. Generally, in a warm room they require water every day. Never permit water to collect about the heart of the plant, as this may cause the main stems to start to decay.

Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am enclosing a leaf and blossom. Please also tell me if Chinese forget-me-nots are annuals or perennials. K. M. B.

Althea (rose of Sharon) is a hardy shrub which does best in a sunny location. The althea will grow in any soil, but demands a generous amount of water during prolonged dry spells. Chinese forget-me-nots are annuals, recently introduced from China. They produce sprays of intensely blue flowers, delicately sweet scented.

Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. It has a blue flower.

LETTER WITHOUT SIGNATURE.

Lupine, a hardy perennial.

Please tell me of a good fertilizer to use about dahlia plants.

A NEW GARDENER.

Let me tell you what one of the largest commerical growers says about feeding dahlias: "The dahlia is a gross feeder and any kind of good fertilizer that is available may be used. Ground bone (bonemeal) and tobacco dust are best and any good fertilizer next. We use potato fertilizer. Apply broadcast when preparing the soil. Later apply broadcast when flowers are coming into bud and again when flowers commence to grow smaller."

Please tell me how to care for a fuchsia and a Boston fern.

MRS. R. R.

A fuchsia requires a warm, sunny location. When in the house it should always be in a place where the temperature remains at about 68 degrees. It must have fresh air at all times, but must never be in a draft. Sudden changes of temperature or drafts will cause the leaves and buds to drop. It must be watered every day; if the roots become dry for even a few hours the buds and leaves will begin to fall off. Do not, however, allow it to stand in a saucer of water. Once a week spray the foliage with cold, soapy water. A Boston fern demands a light but not sunny location, and in a room where the temperature remains around 70 degrees it must be watered every day. Spray the foliage once a week with cold soapy water. Change the air in the room where you have any fern three times a day. Keep the surface soil in the pote quite loose and remove all dead or dying fronds.

The leaves of my grafted red maple tree turn a reddish green as the summer advances. Can you tell me the cause of this and of any way to prevent it? F. G. C.

Kindly tell me the name of the inclosed flower, also if it is hardy.

MRS. G.

The flower you inclosed was a lily, so badly withered that it is impossible to tell definitely whether it is a hardy or tender variety.

Please tell me whether or not I can transplant a rubber plant at this time. ANN P. K.

Yes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

PNEUMONIA VACCINE.

THE most promising proposal for a vaccine against pneumonia that has ever appeared comes from Dr. Victor Koss. The method he is trying is easily applied. It is taken out of a teaspoon, and the taste is not bad. Possibly it can be so flavored that children cry for it. It acts quickly.

There is some protection at the end of 24 hours, and all there is to be at the end of 48 hours. The protection lasts for several weeks, probably longer than the pneumonia season. When protection wears out it can be renewed by another treatment without danger. It does not sensitize. One, or a few doses, is all there is to one treatment. It works on lower animals. As far as the trials have gone, it has worked on man.

There are reasons for thinking it is also a specific cure for pneumonia if given within the first 48 hours after the attack of pneumonia begins. Since pneumonia is the outstanding exception to the rule that infectious diseases are being brought under control, all of this sounds too good to be true. Let us hope and pray.

What is this substance that is being experimented with, and what is the evidence which promises so well? It is a culture of the pneumococcus. Again our friends, the disciples of Hahnemann, say, "Similia similibus curantur." This culture is grown in milk or a mixture containing bile. In some instances the bacilli are broken up; in others, not. The dose is regulated by counts or estimates of the number of bacilli. There is no danger in taking a dose several times as large as the dose needed to protect. In fact, so far as concerns symptoms that can be noted there is no effect from the dose.

Within 24 hours after the dose is swallowed scientific tests show that the test animal is becoming resistant to pneumonia. In 48 hours resistance is at its maximum and it continues high for several weeks. There is no gain in giving any more so long as that resistance keeps up. This quick action gives time to protect an animal against pneumonia if given as a cold starts, or to cure a pneumonia that is just getting under way.

If the method works with human beings, children with measles and whooping cough can be vaccinated against pneumonia, as can people who are to take anesthetics, or as can old people. Perhaps it may become the habit of important men and women to be vaccinated every January that they and their dependents may be spared the hazards of the next three months. Perhaps persons developing colds would take pneumonia vaccine as a routine treatment.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, November 1, 1930, on shipments sold out ranged from 10.00 cents to 20.50 cents per pound and averaged 13.77 cents per pound.—Adv.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

The Niceties of Life.

Just what are the "niceties" of life? Pauline is a teacher and she loves nice things. She is also a woman and she loves a man. She wants to marry the man but fears the outcome. If her estimate of the man is correct need she fear what she call "barbarities?" If she frankly makes known her ideas and ideals, is there much fear that such a man as she describes, would ever deliberately "let her down?" Pauline's chief difficulty seems to be lack of faith in the man. What do you think of Pauline's problem, and what do you consider the important "niceties" of life? Faith in your friends, sweet thoughts of them and theirs—or parlor tricks, and accept?

Dear Mrs. McDonald: I am a teacher 26 years old and desperately in love with a man I met when I came here to teach. He is just about everything a girl dreams that her "prince" will be. Good-looking, clean, clever—a big success. At the end of a month's acquaintance I had decided to marry him. Now at the end of the second year I am wondering. For I have met his people.

He told me as soon as we met that he had worked from the time he was "able to walk." I was in some measure prepared. But I loved him so much and he was so much more than I had ever hoped to find in any one man that his people did not seem to make much difference. Months of sheer devotion passed. He wanted to marry, and brought me to visit his folks. He warned me they were "plain." Well, I would call them downright primitive. They do not evn speak a comprehensible language, so far as I can see. They grimace and curtsey, and talk in monosyllables. Their faces are wather beaten, their hands misshapen and ugly beyond description. They have no bath tub in their home and will not have one. They eat in the kitchen. The wife removes her husband's shoes when he enters the kitchen. For what reason I can not guess, and am not interested. The kitchen is also the dining room, living room and spare bed room.

Here is the point. I have been gently bred. I have been born to the niceties of life. I am not unacquainted with its barbarities but do I want to be thus closely associated with the barbarities rather than the niceties? I have delayed my answer. He probably senses the truth. He has with great embarrassment attempted to "explain" his parents. All that he can say is that they came here without funds, settled way back in the country and have toiled like truck horses ever since, never acquiring the ways of the land. They are not even typical foreign peasants. They are a couple of terrified strange animals, so far as I can judge. I spent one night there, due to storm. The bed I occupied was a stifling mass of quilts and ticks. I sat up. They are like a nightmare to me. I told mother about them. She advised me to use caution in taking an irrevocable step. For marriage with him would be an irrevocable step. He has told me from the first not to marry him thinking in terms of divorce. He will never give me a divorce. I really worship him. If this unspeakable situation had not arisen, there would be no question in my mind. As it is, I do not know what to say or do. He is changed of course. He does not come so often. Never offers a caress. What should I do? A clean break? Or What? PAULINE.

Well, readers, what price the niceties? And what price the pride of a man or his love? And what price living?

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

HOLLYWOOD.—Filmland's social season will be a gayer, less formal one than last year's.

The big opening event was the Pickford-Fairbanks charity ball and that went over with a bang, in fact, a couple of them.

EDDIE CANTOR

Ernst Lubitsch, the director, and a writer, also a German, named Hans Kraly, exchanged a blow or two in the middle of the dance floor.

A fight always helps to make the evening lively and besides, there is something to talk about afterward.

Last year social life was at its lowest ebb. The difficulties that many encountered in the stock market took the edge off the gayer night life.

At the same time work demanded full attention. Players were staying home nights to learn dialogue, but this year they are learning it with less study or else there are fewer words to memorize.

Mr. Cantor Bows.

Musical pictures have been faring so badly at the box offices lately that few in Hollywood expected "Whoopee" would be a big success. But it seems destined for the hit class, if its reception here is any indication.

Eddie Cantor makes his first appearance in a full length talkie and he is the whole show. His wisecracks are fast and funny and the highlight of his comedy is the sequence in which he and another character compare operation scars.

"Whoopee" moves more rapidly than most filmusicals, proving that Messrs. Goldwyn and Ziegfeld have spent profitable evenings looking at other moving pictures.

A dozen or so two-reel comedies gave Cantor his first talkie try-out. His success in them probably had much to do with his choice as star of "Whoopee."

Mrs. Barrymore's Fans.

Marian Marsh, a recent film addition, closely resembles Dolores Costello. She may be groomed to succeed Miss Costello, who apparently is giving up pictures for her husband and her baby.

Notwithstanding the fact that the present Mrs. John Barrymore has been off the screen for months, she still gets several hundred fan letters a month.

Norman Kerry still uses his real name of Norman Kaiser, but only for business purposes. He changed his name soon after the war at the suggestion of a director.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

CHAPTER XXX.

In the short forty-eight or less hours that Robin had been alone in his cell, he had grown years older. There was even a lock of white hair; hardly discernible, to be sure, in the great mass of sandy hair about it, but there, nevertheless. It had come during the first night. Robin looked at that lock in the tiny mirror with which he had been provided. It changed him, gave him added distinction; he was not unaware of this. God, if he should ever come out of this alive, he would show them! By "them" he meant the world, but particularly the portion of the world represented at the inquest. He would show them, he vowed again and again! He would be the greatest poet England ever had and the bravest man as well. Until that fatal escapade of his he had only given consideration to the poetry aspect of life, but now he saw the necessity for the bravery.

He spent his days and nights pacing restlessly about the narrow cell, pausing often to raise his hands above his head and pray for strength and courage. Then he would sit down and write and write until he fell from exhaustion into a disturbed sleep. He scarcely seemed to notice the food or flowers or books which Lady Dorothy brought; he scarcely even noticed her when she came, except to be very kind and gentle, as if it were she who were suffering and who must be comforted.

The two country jailers thought him daft. "He's a queer 'un, he is," one of them said. "Here's a noose hangin' over his head like, and he writin' and writin', as if writin' would save him!" What, indeed, was one to think of him?

Lady Dorothy was more worried about him than she had admitted.

It was only Robin himself who knew that he was saner than he had ever been before, saner and bigger, with his feet on the ground at last. Not that he ever meant to give up reaching for the moon. It was only the unattainable which was worth attaining.

And that made him think of Lady Gwendolen.

He seldom thought of her these days. It was too unbearable! The girl whom he adored bereft of her only relative, alone, and he in jail as the cause of it all. It was hell!

And he thought not at all about the trial which would come off in the future, the trial of Smith versus the King. It didn't bear thinking of. He had refused to see a lawyer, refused to see any one. Thank God, he had no near relatives to disgrace. His mother and father had died long ago and there were no brothers and sisters; only an uncle or two with whom he had obstinately refused to have anything to do. They hadn't understood him or appreciated his efforts at verse. That had been enough to condemn them at the time. Now he was chastened. He no longer believed his poetry to be the most important thing in the world, although it still held a high place. It was himself as a human being that was demanding his attention. And he prayed again for courage and strength to act the part of a man to the last . . . whatever that last might prove to be.

Robin heard light footsteps approaching.

"Ah, Lady Dorothy," he called cheerily without looking up. "Come in!"

"I'm sorry to disappoint you," returned a low, sweet voice which set every nerve in his body quivering. "But it's only me."

"Lady Gwendolen!" he exclaimed hoarsely. "You! Here!" He drew his hand across his eyes.

She bent over and took his other hand in both hers.

"I had to come," she explained simply with a catch in the deep voice. "I wanted to tell you how brave you are and how I admire you. . . ."

Robin stood speechless and trembling slightly from shock.

"I know you are innocent, Mr. Smith. And I mean to prove it and save you. . . ."

"You! Save me!" interrupted Robin with a puzzled frown as if he couldn't quite grasp the purport of her words.

"Yes," she continued, "I'm going to make up for every thoughtless laugh and every . . ."

"You mustn't! You mustn't!" begged Robin in a husky voice. "I can't bear it!"

Lady Gwendolen was nonplussed for an instant. She had not expected such a change . . . the white hair over his right eye startled her. It made him look so mature. And there were lines in the face, lines of pain and grief. He seemed to have grown up since she last saw him. Dignity had replaced the awkwardness and bumptiousness she had known. He was moved by her visit as she had never seen him moved except over his poems.

"I've brought offerings galore from Lady Dorothy, and her best love." Lady Gwendolen announced with a deliberate attempt to be cheerful. "You must open them and see . . ."

"They can wait . . ." Robin stared his visitor as if she were a ghost. often he had dreamed . . . and she was here! He didn't intend a waste any of the precious moments looking at Lady Dorothy's gifts.

"You really believe me innocent? . . . I thought every one agreed with the jury. . . ."

"Hasn't Lady Dorothy told you? Why, Inspector Linscott and every one is on your side! They've gone to London today to——" She stopped in confusion. "Perhaps I oughtn't to say anything. . . ."

Robin's first bewilderment had given way to such an overwhelming thankfulness that his eyes caught something of their old gleam and a new note of hope was discernible in his voice.

"Oh, I'm so glad! Glad! I'd thought——" He stopped suddenly and looked questioningly at Lady Gwendolen. "Er . . . I hope Mr. Flint is well," he said.

A flicker of a smile played about the full red lips as Lady Gwendolen replied gravely: "He is quite well. I heard from him this morning. We are the best of friends again, but we both decided that the engagement was a mistake."

"You're not going to marry him?" Robin couldn't have kept the exhilaration from his voice if he'd died for it.

"I'm not going to marry any one . . ."

For quite two minutes the young couple stared at each other in silence, then Lady Gwendolen rose from the single wooden chair on which she had been sitting.

"I must go now," she said huskily, holding out her hand.

Robin took it in his larger one and pressed it long, but he made no effort to keep her. It had all been so overwhelming, he wanted to be alone and get it straight. The engagement was broken; she was free! Free! And many people thought him innocent. She thought so! And there was hope that he soon would be free! Free! It was more than he could bear for very joy.

He watched the slim, black, hatless figure as she walked down the narrow passage. Then he went over to his cot and threw himself down on his back, staring with sightless eyes at the low ceiling.

How long he lay there he did not afterward remember. But quite suddenly he sprang up from his cot in a state of exultation he had never before experienced, and began to pace up and down the small cell, too small to allow his new-born energy full scope. Up and down, up and down, he paced the floor of his cell, like a caged lion suddenly awakened from his sleep and scenting free life outside.

It was as if Robin only now suddenly realized the full import of Lady Gwendolen's revelation. Before her he had forgotten everything, his poems, his confined life, the threat which hung over him. All these things had vanished before her. And nothing mattered but that she was there. And now, collecting his wits, he suddenly remembered. Three distinct things he remembered. One was the genuine deference she showed him; she believed in his innocence and admired his behavior. Next he remembered that she and Flint had parted company; this news alone—that she was free—was enough to make him deliciously happy. Last, but not least, he remembered that they were making violent efforts on his behalf; that Inspector Linscott himself was working to set him free. A new wild hope fluttered in the poet's breast, and in his exultation—worth a hundred poems, he said to himself—he continued to pace his small cell, up and down, up and down. . . .

Duchess de Nemours Wears Brown at Race

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Duchess de Nemours appeared at Longchamps race course recently wearing a brown three-piece ensemble which includes a long cape. The cape goes over a one-piece dress and short jacket.

The duchess, formerly Miss Peggy Watson, of Washington, D. C., was married in 1928 to the son of the Duc de Vendome. Her husband's mother is a princess of Belgium and her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. P. Kingsland, of New York City, forfeited a Bourbon title to marry an American business man.

Novel Fur Ribbon Makes Paris Belts

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Fur ribbon, to make belts for women who don't care to invest in real fur, is a last-minute novelty put forth here. The fur ribbon resembles no animal in particular. The simulated pelt is short-haired and usually black, white or beige.

Imitation broadtail is the most realistic of the ribbons. Astrakhan fabric is being made up into belts for over-the-counter sales.

Miniature Parrot Perches Upon Hat

Paris, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A miniature parrot or a 2-inch-high flower pot and plant, embroidered in gay-colored ostrich feather fronds on the top side of a felt sport hat brim are new emblems of Parisian influence.

A sportswoman may also have her initials embroidered with feather thread on the ribbon band of her golf hat. If feathers are lacking, a feather effect can be produced with chenille thread.

HOW IT BEGAN... By Russ Murphy

To The Bitter End..

One of the first duties imposed on a young fellow about to embark on a seafaring existence was to chip away the rust from the anchor chains...One of these embryo seamen, after his hands were worn to the bone and his back about to break, asked the skipper how long he had to stay on this job, whereupon the skipper replied, "To the bitter end"... (The bitter end is the inboard end of the chain where it passes through the bitts)...

Swastika...

This is one of the oldest symbols of the human race, having been used as the emblem of Indra, Baal, Zeus and various ancient gods... The word comes from the Sanskrit "Sv," good, and "asti," being... Because it represented the gods, it became a good luck symbol in many nations.

Catsup or Ketchup... Pussy cats deserve no credit for this delightful condiment... It was named after "ke'tiab," an Eastern sauce, made from soy-beans.

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH. D.

The family name "Walcott" (also spelled "Walcott") is derived from the Old English "weall," meaning "wall," and "cot," meaning "cottage." Its full significance is "he who lives in the cottage inclosed by a wall." Five villages called Walcott in England have given rise to the family name in many cases. The name is a very old one. A certain Savaric de Walcote and a Symon de Walcote are mentioned in English records even before the time of the Hundred Rolls. This name has frequently become confused with "Woolcot" and "Wolcot."

The family name "Wolcot" (also spelled "Wolcott," "Woolcot" and "Woolcott") is very often merely a variation of "Walcot." However, in many cases it means "he who lives at or near Wulfa's cottage." "Wulfa" was an Old English personal name meaning "wolf." Some of the families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in Woolcot, Somerset.

The family name "Lederer" is the modern form of the middle high German "lederaere," and means "he who prepares leather."

The family name "Churchill" is one of the relatively few names whose original meanings are obviously indicated by their present forms. It is derived from the Old English "cirice-hyll," and its full signicance is "he who lives at or near the hill by the church." There are at least six villages called Churchill in England. As a family name it is one of the earliest recorded in English documents. A certain Richard de Churchuille is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Proper Playmates.

There probably is no one thing that contributes more to good character development than daily contact with the right sort of playmates.

But what are the right sort of playmates? Mothers worry a good deal about just this thing.

Often rather than subject their child to what they consider undesirable influences they compel him to play by himself.

Generally speaking, a child's proper playmates are whatever children happen to live in his immediate neighborhood, regardless of race, religion and refinement or the lack of it; represented in their home backgrounds.

All children at play are primarily crude young savages whose antecedents and cultural background make no difference to speak of in the business of their games. Their qualifications as good playmates have therefore little to do with adult taste and prejudice.

Who their fathers and mothers are does not matter, but it does matter a great deal that they are active, that they represent different types of interests, that each makes his characteristic contribution in play ideas and in the mutual polishing off of their most grossly antisocial attributes.

The kind of children with whom it is important that your child should not play except occasionally are children who are very much older, very much younger, very much bigger and stronger, very much more immature and weak. For a child learns most, develops best, when he strives now with, now against, those with whom he is evenly matched.

You would be wise to forget all social prejudice and welcome for him any and all contacts that will contribute to his development as a social being.

Mohammedan Girls Now Use Cosmetics

Women in Rug Factories Even Unveil While Working.

Sarajevo, Jugoslavia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Rug factories are divorcing Mohammedan women from their veils, a custom centuries old. Formerly rugs were a home industry, but factories now employ as many as 100 girls.

In the beginning the girls insisted on covering their faces, but the veils interfered with the delicate work of tieing the 384,000 knots that make up a square yard of carpet. Then the veils were put aside, to be hastily donned at the sound of man's footsteps.

A few of the girls have gone further. Although they carry veils, they may be seen on their way to work with faces bared to the gaze of men. Any attempt to speak to them means instant covering. Coquettish as their sisters in other lands are these factory girls. They use face powder and lip stick and seldom fail to have fingernails manicured and henna-painted.

THIRD SUSPECT HELD IN YOKUM KIDNAPING

GRAND JURY GETS CASE

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A third member of the quartet suspected in the kidnaping of Earl Yocum, Galva, Ill., banker, was under arrest tonight and Henry County officers expected to close in and capture Orville Whiskers, the fourth member, within a few hours.

With Harry Whiskers and Vernon Ahlgren in custody, Sheriff Charles Nash was notified during the day that Detroit police had arrested Lloyd Winslow, who has been sought in the plot ever since Mr. Yocum returned home. The sheriff said that he would leave without delay to extradite Winslow.

Winslow, the sheriff was informed, denied to Detroit police any knowledge of the kidnaping and announced that he would resist extradition. He told police that Roland Schimmel, of Stark County, Ill., had invited him to take an automobile trip to Detroit to visit Schimmel's son, Elmer, and that they left that night.

Sheriff Nash said that Detroit's chief of detectives notified him that although Winslow denied any part in the kidnaping he had admitted that he had operated a 15,000-gallon still on the John H. Buswell farm, 4 miles southeast of Kewanee. The sheriff also announced that Charles Black, arrested at Bradford, Ill., had confessed to aiding Orville Whiskers to escape in an automobile last Friday night. He expressed belief that this Whiskers is still in hiding near Kewanee.

Mrs. Frank Stockers, held at Lacon, Ill., on a charge of having furnished a hide-out for Yocum's abductors, was released on an $8,000 bond yesterday. Her husband, held on the same charge, has been unable to furnish his bond of $5,000. Meanwhile the grand jury convened during the day at Cambridge with the sensational kidnaping case as the leading business before it.

Behind the Screens

—With NELSON B. BELL—

THE supremacy of Waring's Pennsylvanians as the most accomplished novelty orchestra ever to be heard in the National Capital is put in jeopardy this week by Henry Santrey and his Soldiers of Fortune, providing the stage portion of the current entertainment at Loew's Palace. I say this after due deliberation and in spite of the fact that Mr. Santrey and his men get off to a slow start.

The instrumentation of the Santrey band is unlike any other I can recall at the moment, including as it does a beautifully played harp and four gorgeously inlaid guitars, to say nothing of a brass section which in its entirety can double in saxophones when the desirability for mellow effects presents itself. The result of all this versatility of personnel and wide range of instrumentation is to make possible not only every familiar jazz effect that may be needed, but also a richness and melodic beauty in the legato passages that few syncopated orchestras can approach.

And even without the full ensemble, the sheer musicianship of the organization is productive of extraordinarily beautiful tonal combinations—as take, for example, "The Rosary," played on the silver guitar, accompanied by harp, celeste, vibraphone and string bass. There, my music lovers, is something to listen to!

Not all of Mr. Santrey's conceits, however, are as fresh and as novel as this. For his drum corps finale, he goes clear back to Dr. Ziegfeld's first production of the "Follies," in 1907—save that he keeps his girls on the stage instead of parading them down the aisles—and how does he get like that when he announces the "Song of the Pool" as a new number?

Speaking of old Dr. Ziegfeld, never since the days when he managed Sandow, the strong man, has he conceived pictorial effects any more lavish than those visualized in Technicolor during the "Setting Sun" sequence of "Whoopee," now on view at the Columbia. I seriously doubt that any such Indian maidens ever traipsed down the side of any mountain, habited in precisely such "blankets" as the Messrs. Ziegfeld and Goldwyn have provided, but if they did, it makes plain the origin of the red man's legend of the happy hunting ground!

Eddie Cantor's business while singing "My Baby Just Cares for Me"—and wotta song—I take to be his own idea.

The midnight preview is again becoming epidemic. Last night, Mr. Meakin entertained a considerable audience of night owls at the Fox for a premature glimpse of "The Big Trail," and tomorrow night at the Rialto Jimmie Carrier and Rodney Collier will be hosts to an invited list of sufferers from insomnia at an advance showing of "The Cat Creeps"—after which no one need ever expect to sleep again!

Yes, "The Cat Creeps" is the audible screen version of "The Cat and the Canary," originally produced for the stage by Kilbourne Gordon, a native Washingtonian, who at one time was a member of this department's theatrical reviewing staff.

About that "Big Trail," Mrs. Harriet Hawley Locher will be heard in a radio talk over station WOL this afternoon at 5 o'clock, the subject of which will be, "Stories of the Oregon Trail." Many of these, I take it, were related to her by Ezra Meeker, the late pioneer of the original trek, to whom I once listened for hours in her studio while he compared his first transcontinental hike with his then recent retracing of the old route by airplane. Mr. Meeker's personal recollection almost spanned a century.

Jack Hurford, newly appointed house manager at the Fox, arrived in Washington yesterday at 1:30 p. m., and at 2 was on the job receiving preliminary instructions from Hardie Meakin, managing director—well, maybe 2:05.

Mr. Hurford comes from Niagara Falls (pronounced "Niffles") and succeeds W. Clyde Gardner, who resigned the privilege of a transfer to Niagara Falls to remain in Washington.

Another newcomer to the Fox staff is Walter Clinton, who assumes charge of a newly established poster and ad art department that will function exclusively for the Fox Theater. Mr. Clinton hails from the West Coast, having served in similar capacities in various San Francisco and Los Angeles theaters.

As this is being written late Monday afternoon, Leon Brusiloff and his men in the orchestra trench have played fourteen overtures since the opening of the new bill last Friday. For the first time ever, so far as I am aware, the audience is being given its choice of two selections—"Go Home and Tell Your Mother," popular hit, and a medley of melodies from the opera "Il Pagliacci."

And how do you think the choice has been?

Well, I'll tell you. Twelve times out of the fourteen, applause—by which the determination is made—has been overwhelmingly in favor of "Pagliacci;" twice in favor of "Go Home and Tell Your Mother."

Concerning what—if anything—that may signify as to Washington's discriminating taste and good judgment, you may write your own ticket.

By the way, have you filled out your questionnaire in The Post's prize contest today? Easy money here, friends; all you have to do is know all the answers!

A little of the pathos of the war is manifesting itself in the Hearst Metrotone News being shown at the Palace this week. Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, of Austria, now an elderly man upon whom recent hardships have not failed to leave their mark, tells in remarkably good English something of his experiences since the debacle of 1914 swept away his wealth.

It is not possible to listen to his brief recital and not respect and admire his fortitude.

By the way, can this be spring?

Three Prisoners Killed in Cave-In Ohio Honor Farm Inmates Buried Under Tons of Rock and Shale.

Zanesville, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three prisoners at the Roseville brick plant, honor farm of Ohio Penitentiary, were killed and a fourth was injured today when caught under a slide of rocks and shale from a hillside.

Chan Hulbert, 36, serving seven years for larceny, and Thomas Jackson, 30, Negro, serving seven to 20 years for manslaughter, died instantly under the avalanche, which was believed loosened by drilling operations. John Maddock, 42, serving two to fifteen years for burglary and larceny, died of injuries while en route to the Pennsylvania Hospital at Columbus. The fourth man was not believed seriously hurt.

The victims were buried under tons of earth but were dug out in a few minutes by a score of other "trusties" who narrowly escaped the slide.

Liner in New York Harbor Refloated

Four Tugs, Aided by Rising Tide, Free Vessel After Passengers Go Ashore.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—With the aid of four tugs and a rising tide, the Panama mail liner Colombia was refloated late today from the rocky shelf on which she grounded this morning at the entrance to the harbor off Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

The liner proceeded up the harbor under her own power and tied up at her Brooklyn dock. The 58 passengers and their baggage were removed by tug at noon when it became apparent that the steamship could not be dislodged until high tide.

Steaming through a thick haze to Quarantine, the Colombia ran aground 25 yards off the sea wall at the edge of Ambrose Channel and hung suspended with a slight list. She was bound from San Francisco by way of the Panama Canal and Havana.

Haynes Assigned To Capital Post

Rev. C. H. Watson Chosen Head of College Regents.

Omaha, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Appointments and transfers of officers of the Seventh Day Adventist Church were announced today before the annual fall conference. The Rev. C. B. Haynes has been called to Washington, D. C., to become general conference evangelist.

Dr. J. F. Piper, of Holly, Mich., accepted an invitation to become president of the Colorado Conference, succeeding M. L. Rice, who is to be president of the Upper Columbia Conference, with headquarters in Spokane, Wash.

The Council approved a list of 28 men who will serve as a board of regents for all the Adventist colleges and secondary schools in the United States and who will be charged with reshaping their policy to meet the requirements in the States in which they are located. The Rev. C. H. Watson, of Washington, D. C., president of the World Conference, heads this board.

Mate Takes Own Life After Killing His Wife

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—In a room littered with the scraps of a destroyed marriage certificate, the bodies of Thomas R. Thompson, 35, and his bride of five months were found in their dwelling here today. Thompson had shot his wife and then killed himself, police said.

Mrs. Thompson, who was 26 years old, had been married before and was the mother of two children. A woman with whom the couple resided said that she heard them talking this morning and then heard shots. Mrs. Thompson was struck by three bullets and Thompson was shot once.

Youth Held as Slayer Of Father in Quarrel

Hamlin, W. Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—William Brumfield, jr., 21 years old, was held here today in the killing of his father last night.

The elder Brumfield, aged 54, was shot in his home on Harts Creek, near the Logan County line. County officers said the son had slain his father during a quarrel.

California Halts Great Brush Fire

Flames Blacken 70,000 Acres; 1,100 Men Left on Guard.

Los Angeles, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Small columns of smoke from mountainsides and canyon remained as the last vestige today of the terrific brush fire which had blackened more than 70,000 acres since last Tuesday.

At strategic points, 1,100 men were on guard in Los Angeles and Ventura Counties against the ever-present possibility of a new outbreak. Officials charge that a portion of the fire in the Malibu section of Los Angeles County was caused by the unauthorized backfires set by frightened residents.

Spence D. Turner, Los Angeles County fire warden, declared that the fire in this section "was directly due to backfiring, set Thursday night and Friday morning by parties on the Malibu Ranch."

"This backfire was set without any warning whatsoever being given to residents in Decer Canyon," he said, "or to the fire warden's office, thereby jeopardizing property and the lives of many persons."

'SPITE FENCE' LAW MUST BE CLARIFIED

Police Court Interpretation Held Discriminatory in Appeal Ruling.

DUNIGAN CASE REVERSED

As a result of the decision handed down yesterday by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, the District is faced with the necessity of clarifying the "spite fence" regulation, which prohibits the erection of any fence on a boundary line to a height of more than 7 feet from the street level unless the adjoining property owner consents.

The court held that the law, as now constituted, works a discrimination against property owners whose lots are above the street level and "unlawfully tends to invade the property rights of such owners."

This opinion, written by Chief Justice George E. Martin, reverses Police Court action in fining D. J. Dunigan, Inc., for failure to remove a wall between property formerly occupied by the late David J. Dunigan and Henry F. Woodward, an attorney. The latter had complained that the wall was erected without his permission.

According to the record, the wall was under construction when in April, 1928, Mr. Woodward called attention to the fact it was more than 7 feet above the street level. He cited the regulation aimed at "spite fences" and the firm was ordered to dismantle as much of the wall as rose above the 7-foot mark. At the Police Court hearing, it was shown that the property sloped and that at some points the wall was 13 feet above the street. Conviction followed.

The higher court held that the interpretation of the regulation made in Police Court was arbitrary and unreasonable, and pointed out that if the property should be 7 or 8 feet below the street level, a wall 14 or more feet high could be built without the consent of the adjoining owner.

The Chief Justice pointed out that there was no question of "spite or malice" in the Dunigan wall, and declared that although a regulation may be lawful on its face and apparently fair in its terms, yet if it is enforced in such a manner as to discriminate against a person for no lawful reason, such exercise of power will be invalidated by the courts.

Alcohol Deaths Decreased in '29

Total of 4,339 Has 288 Less Than That Recorded Previous Year.

(Associated Press.)

Both a numerical and a proportional decline in deaths from alcohol were said yesterday by the Census Bureau to have occurred in the United States during 1929 as compared with 1928.

The total number of deaths from alcoholism in 1929 was given as 4,339, or a death rate from that cause of 3.7 per 100,000 of population, while in 1928 the total was 4,627, or a rate of 4.1.

The figures apply only to that portion of the continental area which officially registers births and deaths. This registration area now comprises 46 States, 9 cities in nonregistration States and the District of Columbia, in which it is estimated that 95 per cent of the total population of the country now reside.

He said that he met the girl several weeks ago at the roadhouse in the company of her father, Otis Winters.

MAN WHO SAW R-101 CRASH TAKES STAND

BUCKLING THEORY IS HIT

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The only man who saw the tragic end of the dirigible R-101 sat in the witness chair today and told in halting English how the big ship came at him out of the night careening at a crazy angle before she crashed into the hillside near Beauvias and burst into flames which took 48 lives.

Alfred Rabouille had never been away from Beauvias since his childhood before they brought him to London to tell his story. On that night when the R-101 dived to destruction he had been poaching for rabbits in the woods near the Beauvias hillside.

Today he told the board of inquiry which is investigating the loss of the dirigible that he had fled in a panic when the ship fell and had kept silent in fear of the penalty reserved for poachers.

"But we are not interested in why you were out that night," Attorney General Jowett told him.

Blast After Crash.

Then Rabouille told his graphic story.

The dirigible he said, seemed to be tilted at a sharp angle and heading downward when he first saw her. Her lights flashed on and off twice. Then the big ship struck the hillside, there was a loud explosion, a burst of flame and Rabouille found himself on his back in the underbrush.

"Then she bounced and seemed to go up in the air," he said. "She fell and that was the end of her."

Five other witnesses brought from France also told of the few minutes which preceded the crash, although none of them actually saw the dirigible strike. They agreed that the ship seemed to be having trouble maintaining altitude.

Crew Member Testifies.

Their testimony followed that of J. M. Binks, a member of the dirigible's crew, who came into the courtroom in bandages. He was under considerable emotional strain and at one point the proceedings were halted to permit him to regain his composure. Much of his testimony was in the form of a prepared statement from which, in the ineloquent speech of the mechanic emerged another ghastly version of the tragedy.

"The explosion left us in darkness," Binks said. "I turned to Artie Bell, my mate, and said to him 'It looks as though its all up with us, Artie.' Then the flames came and the water tanks burst. It was a regular flood but it probably saved our lives."

Maj. J. P. C. Cooper, inspector of accidents for the air ministry, also testified today. He said his examination of the wreckage gave "no grounds at all" for believing the dirigible broke in two in the air.

Tempest Holds Up Air Liner DO-X

Altenrhein, Switzerland, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The huge air liner DO-X, big as she is, could not weather the tempest which swept across western Europe today, and she lay in her big white aerie tonight, with little likelihood that she could start for Amsterdam before Wednesday.

Meanwhile, more letters and postcards addressed to the United States "via DO-X" piled into the Friedrichshafen postoffice against the day when the plane takes off from Lisbon for a transatlantic flight via the Azores and Bermuda to New York.

Officials connected with the Dornier plant indicated today that they hope to get the DO-X to Lisbon by November 12, when they will decide definitely upon the date of departure for the Azores. Before that flight begins there will be a thorough overhauling of motors.

Girl Cashier Outwits Bandits, Saves $12,000

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Miss Shirley McCarthy, cashier at the Briar Hotel, outwitted two robbers here tonight by pretending to faint in front of the vault, which contained $12,000.

Frightened, the robbers fled with $600 they had obtained from the cash register. They escaped in a taxicab, whose driver, witnesses said, did not wear the regulation uniform.

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde I. Sherman, R. #1, Lickdale, Pennsylvania.

Budget Your Buying

Everybody wants to get ahead. They can do this, financially, by earning more or saving more. While it is generally good policy to try to increase your earning power, there are limits to the benefits to be secured through saving.

If it is foolish to save on doctor's bills, it is equally unwise to save at the expense of your good digestion or your appearance, or in the proper upkeep of your home and family.

Budgeting your buying helps you to increase your purchasing power in the long run by reducing unnecessary items and by leaving a proper margin for saving.

It also makes funds available to buy when prices are low.

STOCK SALES SINK; INDEX UP SLIGHTLY

COCA COLA DECLINES 4

New York, November 3 (A.P.).—With an eye on the elections, Wall street left the stock market largely to the floor traders today. It was the usual dull premonday market, irregular and narrow. Enough of the leaders were fractionally higher on the day to lift the composite price of 90 issues nearly half a point.

Trends were lacking on the stock exchange, but the grains were heavy. May wheat made a new seasonal low, closing 1¾ cents off which was about the extent of the decline in other positions. Corn sagged slightly more in response to fine weather and a weak southwest market. Cotton gained 4 to 12 points, net. Bonds, like stocks, were dull and irregular.

The extent of the October deflation was brought forcefully to the financial community's attention in the figures on collateral loans to stock exchange member firms, published after the close. The enormous decline of more than $925,000,000 last month brought the total of these borrowings to the new low of $2,556,124,087, and compared with a drop of $710,000,000 in the less inclusive Federal Reserve Brokers Loan figures during virtually the same period.

Ease of Credit Emphasized.

Although the extremely easy credit position has so far failed to have an effect marketwise, brokerage circles point out that from the longer term view this liquidation must be regarded as an outstanding, if not the most important, development of the year.

The business news was mostly in the form of earnings reports. Coca Cola made a favorable statement, showing a gain in the third quarter over the same period a year ago, but the stock was again heavy. Compilations of earnings for the third three months of 1930 failed to have an effect marketwise. Brokerage circles point out that from the longer term view this liquidation must be regarded as an outstanding, if not the most important, development of the year.

The business news was mostly in the form of earnings reports. Coca Cola made a favorable statement, showing a gain in the third quarter over the same period a year ago, but the stock was again heavy.

Earnings Stress Depression.

Compilations of earnings for the third three months of 1930 emphasize the extent of the depression: the National City Bank, for instance, finds in its monthly business review that the income of 200 corporations decreased 45 per cent during that quarter in comparison with a year ago, and Standard Statistics Co. estimated that industrial earnings as a whole would show a decline of 30 to 35 per cent for the year. It is believed in brokerage circles, however, that poor earnings figures have been discounted by the market as a whole and that further returns will bring little, if any, general unsettlement.

Montgomery Ward's October sales were 41 per cent above September's, but 6.5 per cent under those of October, 1929. However, sales for the first ten months were only 2 per cent less than for the same period last year.

Many of the stocks that varied more than a point, either up or down, were low-priced shares which exercise comparatively little influence on the market. There was enough selling to bring out numerous new lows, notably in Simmons, Gillette, Burroughs Adding Machine, Timken, Kennecott, "Katy" preferred, Wabash "A" preferred, Missouri Pacific, Atlantic Refining, American Radiator and Foster Wheeler. Most of these stocks closed heavy.

U. S. Steel Unchanged.

The industrial and utility favorites moved narrowly. U. S. Steel closed unchanged at 145¾, after selling down to 145 and up to 146¾. Fractional net gains appeared in American Can, General Motors, General Electric, Du Pont, American Telephone and Standard Oil of New Jersey. The latter failed to respond to the declaration of a special dividend by Imperial Oil, which will amount to 37 cents a share on Standard. The latter's directors declared the usual extra of 25 cents.

American Tobacco, Nash Motors, New York Central, Allied Chemical and American Water Works finished 1 to 2 points higher after some early irregularity. Westinghouse was off a point, Atchison lost nearly 2, and the net decline in Coca Cola amounted to about 4 points.

Foreign exchanges were dull and inclined to ease. Sterling cables ruled at $4.85¾, off three thirty-seconds.

1,572 New Oil Wells In East Are Reported

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Derrick says new oil wells completed east of the Rocky Mountains during October numbered 1,572 with initial production of 900,642 barrels.

In September there were 1,553 completions with initial production of 1,049,123 barrels. October initial production in Oklahoma was 300,000 barrels less than in September. There were 529 dry holes and 283 gassers reported in October. At the end of October there were 3,412 rigs building and wells drilling, a loss of 185 compared with September.

LA BARBA PUMMELS CHOCOLATE TO WIN DECISION

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A New York paper suggests that President Hoover order the Army and Navy to play a football game in some city with a big stadium and a liberal population, perhaps Chicago or Philadelphia, but not New York, as an act in relief of the national emergency of unemployment. The President could do this with the utmost ease, because he would have only to telephone the commanding officers of the two academies and say, "Play."

The graduate managers of athletics undoubtedly would think of objections because each team would have to cancel some game for which the contracts were signed a long time ago. But, if the President ordered the superintendents to play, the superintendents would order the graduate managers to play, and they would tell the teams to play, and the teams would play.

Teams Could Go Back to Glaring After Game.

If the unemployment problem is as critical as the President himself has said, then the game is as good as on, because none of the objections which have been offered from time to time when politicians were trying to coerce the teams into resuming their old football rivalry would be worth considering. Incidentally, the teams have never been consulted as to whether they wished to continue or resume playing, but there is no need of going into the sequence of events which led to the estrangement nor to discuss the merits of the case, because the one game now contemplated would not have to be regarded as a precedent.

After playing once, to help in an emergency, the officers of the Military and Naval Academies, who conducted the row in the first place, could have their grievance back again and settle down to their glaring back and forth as though nothing had occurred to interrupt the serenity of their great sporting feud.

The receipts of an Army-Navy game in Chicago would be at least a million dollars and, if Mysterious Mike Jacobs, the fidgety genius of the Garden Corporation, could be induced to plot a graduated scale of prices and superintend the ticket sales, the revenue might amount to half a million more. Mr. Jacobs undoubtedly would be willing to do this for no more reward than a certificate of gratitude signed by the President and the sheer pleasure of handling another million dollar show.

Workout at Big Sport Production Needed by Jacobs.

It has been a long time since his talents have had any worth-while exercise, and, from his jumpy, restless manner, I judge that Mr. Jacobs is becoming stable-weary. A workout at a sport production involving a gate of a million or more would renew the blush of youth in his cheeks and the light of enthusiasm in his gloomy orbs, which have not glowed with their wonted brilliance since the night of the regrettable flop of the Tunney-Heeney execution.

The pallor of Mr. Jacobs' cheeks and the lusterless state of his gaze do not constitute a national emergency in themselves, perhaps, but the restoration of his blush and luster would be a very worthy work and the graduate managers might take this into consideration as an added incentive if the unemployment crisis does not quite outweigh their objections.

Mr. Jacobs' implication in the Army-Navy show, which is now agreed upon so far as I am concerned, considering the triviality of objections compared to the good to be done, would be certain to confer some progressive ideas on the football business worthy of adoption by the colleges generally.

The colleges all are trying to preserve some incongruous notions of amateurism in a commercial game, adhering to a flat rate of admission, regardless of the location of the seats, as though this would impart an appearance of indifference to the financial returns.

Jacob Would Scale Seat Prices And Get Maximum.

Still, the returns are such that this indifference becomes a laborious affectation, and Mr. Jacobs could show them something to their advantage. He would never think of selling off his seats in the first 50 rows, between the 35-yard lines, for the same price that he would demand for the seats in the end ones. He would divide his arena into sections, scale the seats from a $3 or $5 minimum at the ends to $100 or more per ticket, in the two presidential boxes, and he would have at least 500 seats in each of the presidential boxes.

Rockne Squad Views Penn System

Notre Dame Has Only 3 Days to Drill for Battle.

Light Work Is Rule in East; Columbia Star Injured.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—With only three days in which to organize for the Pennsylvania contest at Philadelphia Saturday, Coach Rockne today had his first and second teams on the field. They did little, however, except watch the rest of the squad work on Penn formations.

Dobie Tells Cornell Of Mistakes.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Coach Gil Dobie added verbal fireworks to his usual Monday program of passing, kicking and signals as the Red team began preparations for the Dartmouth game, two weeks hence. Dobie's observations on what the team did wrong against Columbia were the biggest part of the drill.

Battered Pitt Squad Primes For Carnegie.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Still battered from the struggle with Nebraska, Pitt went through a long practice session today in preparation for the clash with Carnegie Saturday.

Carnegie Linemen Out With Injuries.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Coach Bob Waddell today began the task of building up Carngeie's morale for the city title game with Pitt after the Tartans' unexpected defeat by New York University. Fletcher, right tackle, and Burzio, right guard, were kept out by injuries.

Hewitt, of Columbia, On Hospital List.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Ralph Hewitt and six of his Columbia varsity teammates were on the hospital list today as the result of the Cornell game, so practice for the first team was called off. It is not certain how many of them will be able to face Colgate.

Princeton Regains Two Players.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Princeton Varsity had its second successive Monday off today, although no injuries from the Chicago game were reported. Zundel and Galey, out since the Brown clash, are expected to be able to play against Lehigh.

Fordham Rests for Detroit Game.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Tired from four hard games in succession, the Fordham squad was let off with a light practice today, although the Rams must face Detroit Saturday. Coach Cavanaugh said he expects to give very little hard work this week.

Horween Shakes Up Harvard Eleven.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Still surprised at the tie with William and Mary, Coach Arnold Horween shook up his Harvard Team today. Eddie Mays was the only back who kept his post while the line also went through several changes. Fundamental work and a hard scrimmage against a freshman eleven constituted today's drill.

Dartmouth Given Rest by Cannell.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Coach Jackson Cannell told his Dartmouth players today to forget all

Steeplechase Race Attracts Entries

With the date set for the running of the first Grasslands International Steeplechase still more than a month away and 28 days remaining before the close of nominations on December 1, nine entries have been received, a dozen more have been promised and another dozen are considered definite possibilities.

It is now considered a certainty that at least a score of horses will line up at the starting line at Grasslands Downs, Gallatin, Tenn., on December 6 for the inauguration of this event, which is attracting great attention from followers of steeplechasing in this country and abroad.

Of the nine signed entries in the hands of the racing committee, three are of English horses, with English owners.

You may have questioned our statement yesterday that Pershing did not make his famous statement. Here is the story:

Col. Charles E. Stanton, not Gen. Pershing, made the statement, "Lafayette, we are here." Stanton, chief disbursing officer of the A. E. F., had been sent by Pershing to make an address at the tomb of Lafayette, in France, July 4, 1917. Though Stanton was representing Gen. Pershing, he prepared the oration himself, according to George Simpson, author of Nuggets of Knowledge, who states he obtained verification from the War Department and Col. Stanton.

"Charlie," the dog with the false teeth depicted yesterday, received a broken jaw when hit by a motor bus. A veterinary surgeon, a dental surgeon and a medical surgeon worked together to repair the jaw and make the teeth. The dog has to wear a muzzle-like strap to hold the plates in place until he becomes accustomed to them.

While Bobby Jones can claim to be the world's greatest golfer, another Southerner, Doe Graham, from Mobile, Ala., makes his bid for fame by setting his unique endurance record of 200 holes continuous play. His record was made on a standard course and it is estimated he knocked his golf ball 130,000 yards in the course of his playing. JOHN HIX.

NAVY VIEWS OHIO STATE PLAYS

Light Drill Staged in Preparation for Baltimore Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 3.—A light workout that usually marks the program of Monday football practice at the Naval Academy again was in order today as the Middies launched upon preparations for the game with Ohio State in Baltimore Stadium on Saturday. Next to Notre Dame this contest is viewed by coaches as the hardest of the season thus far, and more especially in view of the Ohioans' scoreless tie against Wisconsin Saturday.

Dummy scrimmaging, kicking and general handling of the ball was the main line of work for the regulars. Three back field men practiced punting, in addition to Capt. Bowstrom, the big tackle, who has done most of the booting. Meanwhile, the shock troops of squad B went through a rehearsal of Ohio State plays and formations as outlined by John Wilson, scout, who saw the Buckeyes play Wisconsin, and these will be unleashed for the benefit of the varsity defense in scrimmage sessions during the next few days.

Campbell Steffanides Miss Practice.

Two varsity players were absent from today's drill, namely, Campbell, substitute half back, and Steffanides, right end. Lou Kirn, star of the back field, for whom Campbell substituted last Saturday against West Virginia Wesleyan, was on the field along with Dale Bauer at quarter, Tschirgi at the other half, and Hagberg at full back.

Torgeson ran through signals with Byng on the other flanks, Capt. Bowstrom and Bryan were the tackles, Underwood and Gray, the guards, and Tuttle, center. The team will not be worked hard this week, Commander Frederick G. Reinicke, director of football, said.

Navy expects to be able to muster its full strength for the Buckeyes, led by the great Wesley Fesler, alternate full back and end.

Cubs Sign O'Leary, Schalk as Coaches

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Cubs today signed Charles O'Leary and Ray Schalk as coaches for 1930.

Schalk was with the Cubs as a coach during the 1929 campaign, while O'Leary coached the New York Yankees. The employment of O'Leary was something akin to a coaching trade, as Jimmy Burke, another Cub coach this year, joinedy the Yankees with Joe McCarthy, former Cub manager.

NO TARS INJURED.

CHAMP TARPON ANGLER.

W. Ashby Jones, 72 years old, is hailed as the world's champion tarpon angler, with 1,750 caught in 26 years at Fort Myers, Fla. Jones is from Richmond, Va.

N. Dakota, New River Stage Practices Here

Two out-of-town football squads held practice here yesterday. New River State, conqueror of Catholic University last Saturday, and North Dakota University, Army's latest victim, worked out at the same time in Central High School Stadium.

New River State departs today for Worcester, Mass., where it meets Holy Cross on Saturday, and North Dakota leaves for Pittsburgh to play Duquesne Friday night.

Barnard's Term Ends; Reelection Probable

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League, has finished his first term as head of the junior major baseball circuit.

Barnard, who succeeded Ban Johnson in 1927, when the league was rocked by questions of policy, ended his three-year term yesterday, but will carry over until December 9, when he undoubtedly will be reelected for a similar term.

The American League, under his regime, has won three world championships.

Size of Gallant Fox Recorded in Museum

N.Y.U. OFFERS TO PLAY FOR CHARITY

Asks Newspapers to Select Foe as Aid to Unemployed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—New York University today volunteered the services of its football team for a post-season game for the benefit of the unemployed, the opponent, date and place of the game to be chosen by a committee of city officials and newspapermen.

After a conference with Head Coach "Chick" Meehan and members of the athletic committee, Albert B. Nixon, graduate manager of athletics at New York University, issued the following statement:

"In view of the unemployment situation, New York University gladly volunteers the services of its football team to play a game for the benefit of the unemployed and suggests that a committee be formed by city officials and representative newspapermen to make the necessary arrangements such as selection of the opponent, date and place of the game."

New York University, represented by one of the strongest teams in the East, ends its regular season November 22 against Rutgers and would be in a position to play the benefit game on Thanksgiving Day or on the following Saturday, November 29.

Pirates Sell Frazier, Recruit, to Coast Club

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Purchase of Roy Frazier, outfielder, from the Pittsburgh Pirates was announced today by George A. Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco Seals. Frazier, a left-hander, was picked up by the Pirates last spring and farmed out to the Indianapolis Club, of the American Association, where he hit .345 for the season. He formerly played for Oakland in the Pacific Coast League.

Brill Returning to Penn As Star for Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Nov. 3 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Marty Brill, it seems, is getting ready for Penn. On runs of 33 and 7 yards Saturday he scored touchdowns against Indiana, which were the first he has made, although he is playing his second year as a Notre Dame varsity right half back. And in these two runs there may be something ominous for Lud Wray and his boys, whom the fighting Irish play next Saturday at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

The story of how Marty became riled when Lou Young and Lud Wray decided that he didn't fit in with the Penn system three years ago and put him on the second team is quite well known. Marty and his dad, Edward F. Brill, the Philadelphia street car magnate, talked things over and one day Marty left school. Marty said, "I'd rather play third string at Notre Dame than second at Penn anyhow."

His father's parting shot to Penn coaches was:

"Huh, not good enough? Marty'll be playing regular with the best team in the country in two years."

Observes One-Year Residence Rule.

Accepting this responsibility gladly, Marty, after starring with the Freshman team while observing the one-year residence rule, stepped in at right half back with the national champions last year and opened the path for Elder, Savoldi and Mullins on many a long run, which resulted in victory.

Seldom did he take the ball himself, but his average for the year, even at that, was something like 9 yards a trip. This year, Coach Rockne has let him take the ball on more and

Tunney Asks Mara Suit Dismissal

Earned $1,742,282 in Two Years as Champion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The complaint against Billy Gibson, codefendant with Gene Tunney in Timothy J. Mara's suit to take a $500,000 slice out of the former champion's bank roll, was dismissed today, and Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hatting took under advisement a motion to throw out also the suit against Tunney.

Gibson was eliminated immediately after Mara's lawyers rested their case. Counsel for the guardians of Gibson, who has been declared incompetent to handle his affairs, moved to dismiss on the grounds the plaintiff has failed to prove a case against him. Martin Littleton, counsel for Mara, announced he concurred.

Emory R. Buckner, chief counsel for Tunney, then moved the case against his client also be dismissed, citing common law whereby, he said, if a case against a codefendant in a suit of indebtedness was thrown out because of failure of proof, then there must of necessity be no case against the other defendant.

Adjourns Trial Until Tomorrow.

Justice Hatting adjourned the trial until Wednesday. In the meantime Buckner will submit a brief and Littleton an answer.

Mara was the only witness in his own behalf. On his testimony and on a sheaf of letters and contracts—some of them unsigned by Tunney—he rests his case.

This forenoon Buckner hammered away at him on two points. It is Tunney's contention that his sole agreement with Mara was that Mara should succeed in breaking down the opposition of the State Boxing Commission, which had taken the stand that because Jack Dempsey had not fought Harry Wills, a Dempsey-Tunney match could not be staged in the State.

Mara insisted today, as he insisted on Friday, he had never agreed to this, nor had even been asked to do so by Tunney, but he had made with Tunney an oral agreement whereby he was to get 10 per cent of Tunney's purse from a Tunney-Dempsey match and 25 per cent of his earnings as champion.

Used Wills Match As Strategy.

The other point involved an account of what Mara considered he did to help bring about the fight with Dempsey. This, Mara said, consisted chiefly of having arranged a bout for Tunney with Wills—a measure which he said, he used as strategy to force Tex Rickard's hand in the negotiations for the Dempsey match. He had succeeded in getting Charles A. Stoneham, principal owner of the Giants, to promote the Tunney-Wills match at the Polo Grounds, he said.

Under questioning by Lloyd Striker counselor for Gibson, however, Mara said he had been sincere in his efforts to arrange a match with Wills.

160-Piece Illini Band To Play at Army Game

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The University of Illinois Band will lend support to the Illini when they tangle with the Army at the Yankee Stadium, New York, Saturday.

Definite assurance that the 160-piece band would accompany the team was given today when the Illini Club of New York sent in a sizeable check that gained the $8,000 fund necessary to send the band to the game.

U. S. Municipal Golf Awarded St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The National Public Links Golf Championship tournament for 1931 has been awarded to the Keller Course, St. Paul, it was announced today by the United States Golf Association. The dates are August 4 to 8, inclusive.

Boston was the chief bidder against St. Paul for next year's event, which will be played over the same course where the first annual St. Paul $10,000 open last summer attracted most of the Nation's leading golfers.

Three English Jumpers Arrive for Tenn. Meet

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Seeking honors in the first Grasslands international steeplechase to be run December 6 at Gallatin, Tenn., three British horses and the owners of two of them arrived in New York today.

Lieut. W. L. Newell and Lieut. E. B. Skey, owners of St. Roy and Manambar, respectively, will be astride their own horses over the gruelling Grasslands Downs course. Kilbairn, the third of the jumpers, is owned by Mrs. G. Alexander Brown, of England and will be ridden by Eric W. L. Atterbury, one of the designers of the recently constructed Tennessee course.

Of the three horses, Kilbairn is the best known of the trio, having won nine steeplechases and one hurdle race in England. He finished ninth in the 1929 grand National, at Aintree in a record field of 66 starters. St. Roy is a young but promising jumper while Manambar has raced successfully both on the flat and over fences.

The Grasslands course, laid out similar to the famous Aintree course, is a part of the project started by leading sportsmen to revive fox hunting in this country.

BOSTON GAME NOW GOAL OF G. U.

Mills' Scouts Return; Eagles Lost, 47-0, in 1927 Game.

GEORGETOWN yesterday began preparations for the Boston College game in Boston Saturday with a light workout consisting mainly of signal drill in Griffith Stadium. The Hilltop squad as a whole appeared in good physical condition despite the bruising encounter with Michigan State.

Emile Bozek, right half back, belied reports that he was done for the season by romping around the stadium turf in his customary peppery manner. Emile has an ailing shoulder, but is expected to be ready for combat within a week. He may get into the Boston clash.

Antos and Kelly Eagles' Aces.

Antos, a broken field runner, and Kelly, a line lunger, are said to be the chief offensive threats of the Eagles. Ways and means of stopping this pair will be imparted to the Hilltoppers between now and the time they depart for the Hub City Thursday night.

Mills is bearing in mind that Boston College took a sound beating from Georgetown in their last clash in 1927, and he anticipates meeting a vengeful foe. Georgetown trampled B. C. three years ago to the tune of 47 to 0.

First Punch Gives Colgate Advantage

Colgate now boasts a record for fast attacking play covering last season and the current campaign to date, which supporters of the Maroon believe is unequaled.

Starting with the opening game with St. Lawrence in September, 1929, Colgate has scored in the first five minutes of play in twelve consecutive games, eleven of which were won by the Maroon. The team against which Andy Kerr's men have compiled this string in order are St. Lawrence, Wisconsin, Michigan State, Indiana, Hampden-Sidney, Providence College, Columbia, Syracuse and Brown in 1929, and St. Lawrence, Bethany and Lafayette, in the present season.

Incidentally, Colgate's victory string mounted to ten straight with the 41-to-0 triumph over Lafayette in the homecoming feature last Saturday. This, by the way, was Colgate's first conquest in four starts against the Leopards.

Chicago Field House Under Construction

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Work has started on clearing the ground for the University of Chicago's new $750,000 field house, a project which has been contemplated since 1925.

The structure, which will measure 356 by 615 feet, will be completed within a year.

It will have a seating capacity of 7,200. More than 50,000 square feet will be inclosed within the four walls.

Cuban Meets Master in Italian

La Barba Maintains Body Attack for Clear-Cut Win.

Shows Little Respect for Boxing Ability of Chocolate.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, GARDEN, New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Fidel La Barba, curley-haired Italian warrior from Los Angeles, tonight burst the bubble of invincibility that has surrounded Kid Chocolate in the featherweight division for the past two years and whipped the ebony flash from Cuba rather decisively in a torrid 10-round battle.

Once before La Barba, former king of the flyweights, and the dazzling "keed," fought 10 rounds in New York and the decision, amid considerable protest, went to the battling bomb bomb. Since that night, almost two years ago, Chocolate has come on to great things, fighting lightweights on a basis of equality, while La Barba has busily gone about cleaning up the remainder of the 126-pound division.

So tonight, they met again, this time as the foremost battlers of the featherweight class although another holds the championship. And for the second time this year, the third time in his meteoric career, Chocolate left the ring a beaten battler. The decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and two judges was unanimous in La Barba's favor.

Shows Little Respect For Chocolate.

The fire and dash went out of the "Keed's" legs, his stamina faded, and, except for fiery flashes, the little Negro was caught in the strength, courage, and doggedness of the game Westerner—caught so that he could never quite get away and do the damage he is accustomed to levy at long range.

La Barba Wins Five Rounds Cleanly.

The Associated Press score card gave La Barba a clear margin of five rounds, with three for Chocolate and two even. Each had one glorious round. La Barba in the third, when he first made the Negro lad cringe under solid thumps to the ribs; Chocolate in the seventh, as he drove the sturdy Italian before him with a volley of rights to the head that left the former collegian weak and dizzy. Fidel came back fresh to continue the fight, however, and won the battle decisively for himself with a surging, battering rally in the tenth that left Chicolate holding desperately for the final gong.

Once La Barba found the range of Chocolate's body with his thumping hooks in the third round, he never stopped piling up points. He drove around the ring, pounding ris sides, occasionally shooting sweeping lefts to the head, fighting off every Chocolate rally to win the fourth, fifth and sixth as well as the third round. Adding the tenth and final session to the win column merely clinched the victory for La Barba.

The first round was even, as the flashy "Keed" warmed slowly to his work, but Chocolate had a neat margin on the second, dropped the next four as La Barba worked on his body, rallied to take the seventh and held the eighth even. Chocolate won the ninth with the cleaner punching, but could not quite carry a rally through the tenth that possibly would have earned him a draw. There were no knockdowns and neither was marked or bleeding at the end of the struggle. Chocolate weighed 123 pounds, La Barba 124.

The crowd was the best of the indoor season so far, numbering around 16,000.

13 to Start in Race; Ned O., Conclave Also in Field.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A purse of $25,000 dangled in front of thirteen of the turf's best 3-year-olds tonight as they prepared to answer the bugle call in the Riggs Handicap—the feature of the opening of the historic Pimlico Track tomorrow.

Despite the top weight of 123 pounds, William Ziegler, jr.'s Spinach is expected to go to the post the favorite. The Ziegler ace will have no easy time, however, if he leads the band over the mile-and-a-half hill-top course.

A. C. Bostwick's Yarn will carry only 2 pounds less, but he is rated as a colt that can run all day and should furnish Spinach a stiff argument. The two high weights of the party have met twice before with honors all even. Yarn defeated Spinach in the Jockey Gold Cup, won by Gallant Fox, while the Ziegler colt turned the tables in the Latonia championship two weeks ago.

Ned O., Conclave
Among Field.

Included in the remainder of the field are such high-class routers as W. G. Foreman's Ned O., W. R. Coe's Conclave, the Audley Farms' Woodcraft and Marshall Field's Escutcheon.

All signs point to a field of twelve going postward in the Futurity, mile and one-sixteenth race, exclusively for 2-year-olds, to be run Wednesday. The probable make-up of the field consists of Twenty Grand, Equipoise, Mate, Ormesby, Tarpaulin, Risque, High Day, B'ar Hunter, Siskin, Aegis, Tambour and Backgammon.

Pari-mutuel Manager Mortimer M. Mahoney has a force of 400 ready to serve all those of a speculative turn of mind tomorrow. One hundred are sellers, with 106 serving as cashiers. The rest are calculators, money changers, sheet writers, messengers, telephone, ticket and office men.

H. G. Bedwell, who operates the Yarrow Brae Farm near Laurel, will send a carload of horses to New Orleans on November 15. The remainder of Bedwell's stable will go to the winter racing at the Crescent City at the conclusion of the Bowie session.

Jockey J. O'Malley, who was injured when Daisy Buck fell at Timonium last September, is here with the Justa Farm stable.

Steeplechase Jockey Charles Mergler, of Havre de Grace, announced today that he has severed his connection with the Foxcatcher Farms and had quit riding. Mergler has just been appointed trainer of the string which A. Edwards, of Red Bank, N. J., is gathering together.

F. K. Sturgis, Chairman, Quits N. Y. Jockey Club

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Frank K. Sturgis, an officer in the Jockey Club for 36 years, today resigned as chairman, and William Woodward, owner of Gallant Fox, the 3-year-old champion, was elected to fill the office.

Mr. Sturgis, who was elected chairman after the death of August Belmont in 1924, gave no reason for his resignation. The general opinion among the stewards, however, was that Mr. Sturgis desired to retire from active participation in the sport.

His successor has served several years as vice chairman of the turf body and jumped into prominence this year when Gallant Fox, a homebred, won the 3-year-old title and established a new money winning record.

The Beasel, Odds-On, Scores at Empire

The Cedar Handicap, six furlongs for all ages, was won by G. A. Cochran's The Beasel, making three victories for Jockey Bill Kelsay, he having ridden Sepoy and Beton in the preceding races, bringing his total scores for the day to three out of four.

Five high-class fillies paraded for the Cedar Handicap with The Beasel odds-on favorite. She got away fast and led by a length to the middle of the turn, where Pennant Lass moved up and into lead in the stretch. Pennant Lass had a two lengths' advantage coming into the final furlong but Kelsay sat down and rode a great finish. He brought The Beasel up again and in a drive The Beasel was up to win by a head. Pennant Lass beat Chalice a head for the place.

Jack Howe Truimphs In Latonia Sprint

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Jack Howe, from J. C. Ellis' stable, racing to his true form, won the Westwood Purse, the attraction here today in one of the closest finishes of the meeting. Fairy Ring, from B. O. Hickman's Stable, was next under the wire with Jem, from Mrs. E. Denemark's string, a close-up third.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward over the 6-furlong distance and was worth $900 to the winner. Neglected in the betting, Jack Howe rewarded his admirers at $12.52 to $2 in the mutuels. Jack Howe covered the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

Jack Howe was sent out into a long lead right after the start, maintained his advantage until entering the stretch where he lost some ground, and although weakening in the stretch run held on to win in a stirring, driving finish by half a length. Fairy Ring, always closest in pursuit of the winner, closed gamely to take the place by a nose over Jem. The latter, the heavily played favorite, outgamed The Southerner to take the short end of the purse by a length.

—Pimlico Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, MD., Nov. 3.—The $25,000 Riggs Handicap, Pimlico's introductory feature, appears to be another winning spot for William Ziegler's crack 3-year-old SPINACH, which returned to Maryland after gaining the Latonia championship.

The distance of the Riggs, a mile and a half, is suited to the Ziegler colt, which will probably be the favorite. YARN, another router, who will have 121 pounds up, may be the second choice.

He was backed to beat SPINACH in the Latonia race, but his conquest by the Ziegler colt was easy. He may be the contender, but it may turn out that the W. R. Coe filly CONCLAVE, which is at her best, and which won the Laurel stakes, will give SPINACH a hard battle. NED O. also is an improved horse, and if the track were heavy would be a dangerous factor. HER GRACE, winner of the Maryland, should figure prominently in the race. While thirteen horses are eligible to start, it seems that several of these are below the class for such a race. ERIN might be surprise.

FIRST RACE—The first race for 2-year-olds has a capacity field and several on the eligible list. J. E. Widener's CHRISTMAS showed a good effort last out and is selected to win, but RUBIO, impressive in recent races, will be a dangerous contender and probably the favorite. STREET SINGER'S last race was good, and she may be closer than rated.

SECOND RACE—Mr. Widener is given preference in the Towson Steeplechase with MACCARTHY MOORE. LORENZO also will carry his colors, but he has shown little improvement, and is 9 years old, rather late to try for a comeback. STONEY LONESOME is quite dangerous. He has won two races like a classy jumper and is improving. BALLY WEAVER is not out of it, and should be no worse than third.

THIRD RACE—Two-year-olds are required to go a mile and seventy yards in the third race—RIP VAN WINKLE, if he runs back to his best efforts, will win. OUTCRY and CHATTY should be highly regarded. A good one that is coming around to winning form is ALBAZANO. H's last Laurel race was impressive. The distance may suit.

FOURTH RACE—The fourth race is for 3-year-olds and upward, called the Country Club Purse. TUSKEGEE has the speed of the field at the weights, but the race is an open one. FIRST LADY has been running close up with good company, and LADY CAPULET has beaten SWEEPOUT, THE SPARE and other speedsters. OESEL had a good conditioning race at Laurel.

SIXTH RACE—AMSTERDAM failed at Laurel, but his last race there, when beaten in the last race on the last day by a head by CANDY PIG, showed the campaigner was about ready for brackets. He may take to this track. It is not as hard as the Laurel track. He is selected to win the gallop of a mile and one-sixteenth. MY SCOOP will be at his heels all the way. He is an improved plater. VIMONT ran some races at Laurel which would give him a look-in.

SEVENTH RACE—SOLACE stands out in the seventh. FRUMPER should be the contender. SUN SHADOW has run his best races on this track and may surprise. His New York races this season have not been good.

Illinois Tracks Give $2,376,145 in Purses

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Illinois race tracks distributed $2,376,145 to purse winners during the 1930 season, a new record sum since the return of the sport in this State. The most valuable stake was the Arlington classic, which paid Gallant Fox's owner a gross of $64,750.

BETON, under good handling, was kept close to the early pace, came around field in stretch and, closing gamely, won nicely in hand. ONCORA was kept well up from the start, showed good speed and held on well. CALWICK lacked his usual early speed, showed the way for three furlongs, then quit. GENIUS closed a big gap. WASHINGTON-LEE AND MARYLAND PLAY SATURDAY

Generals Out To Trounce Old Liners

Coach Oberst Plans Hard Workouts This Week.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 3.—Washington and Lee's Generals will resume their annual jaunt to College Park, Md., next Saturday to face the strong Old Liners of the University of Maryland in a Southern Conference clash. Last year, the Old Liners did not have a place on the Washington and Lee schedule, but interest in the District has mounted steadily since the inception of the series and athletic authorities of the schools arranged the continuation of the contest this year.

The last time that the Old Liners and Generals met was in 1928, when the Marylanders nosed out a 6-0 victory. It will be the eighth game for Washington and Lee. Three victories and three losses and a tie with V. P. I. have marked the season's record.

Generals Have Divided Six Games, Tied One.

Randolph-Macon, Hampden-Sidney and Richmond have fallen before the Generals, while Kentucky and West Virginia won last-quarter victories, and St. John's came down and caught the Generals napping to win, 7-0.

A Maryland boy, Capt. Page Bledsoe, jr., Sykesville, Md., a son of a former Washington and Lee captain, Dr. E. P. Bledsoe, will lead the Generals against the Terrapins. Bledsoe is an end and dotes on defensive play. Another Marylander, Gene Martin, Baltimore, Md., a former star Baltimore Poly athlete, will in all likelihood direct the plays for the Washington and Lee Team. Plenty of work will be assigned the squad by Coach Gene Oberst during the week's practice, so that the offensive will be running smoothly by Saturday.

Wolverines Seek 2d Victory Over Harvard

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 3.—The Michigan squad will run through intensive workouts the first three days of this week, with the idea of polishing off the attack and ironing out the weak spots in the defense before Saturday's game with Harvard. Coach Kipke not only is anxious to make the East understand that Michigan's 1929 win was something more than a fluke, but also wishes to display a smooth attack and tight defense.

Coach Kipke, in simply having his regulars run through the plays, is hardly satisfied that they have had sufficient rough work since the Illinois game, but prefers a lack of that sort of drill to a crippled football team. Injuries have been more than a mere bogey to the young coach all season.

Harvard appeared far more machine-like than did Michigan a year ago, yet lacked the dash and enthusiasm to win. Kipke's charges have the same dash now, but the effete East is accustomed to precision more than to enthusiasm, and Kipke is quite anxious to please in that regard.

G. U. Prep Jrs. Win 26-6 Over St. Alban's Jrs.

The Georgetown Prep Junior Football Team clicked off another victory yesterday when they routed the St. Alban's Junior by the score of 26 to 6. The game was played at Garrett Park, Md.

George M. Cohan, jr., led the winners to the front in no uncertain fashion, scoring three of his team's touchdowns and passing to Full Back Campbell for the fourth. One of Cohan's sprints to a touchdown was from midfield.

Tells of "Kibosh" Jones Puts on Golf Rivals

How good golfers slump when they play Bobby Jones and how a lot of them play what for them is unthinkably poor golf in the qualifying rounds of a national championship is one of the thoughts which always arise after a title tournament, observes that keen assayer of golf values, Linde Fowler of the Boston Transcript.

Here were golfers such as Bill Blaney, Jot Batchelder and Emery Stratton, nonqualifiers at Merion, and them they go to the Pine Valley course in New Jersey, about as difficult a layout as any in the world, and Blaney ties for the low gross, and Batchelder wins the Crump Memorial Cup. Stratton also qualified, breaking 80 both rounds. There was a fast field, made up chiefly from the ranks of the golfers who played in the national.

THE POST'S TROPHIES PRESENTED TAKOMA TIGERS

Acme Photo.

Miniature gold baseballs, the gift of The Washingt on Post in recognition of their championship in the Capital City Baseball League sponsored by The P ost, were presented to the individual members of the Takoma Tigers last night at a banquet tendered the team by the Lions Club of Takoma. In the center of the picture—Ray Davidson, star pitcher of the team, is seen accepting one of the balls from J. B. Simpson, manager. In the center background are Gil Simpson (left), outfielder, and Clark Griffith, Washington club owner, who addressed the dinner.

W. VA. MEETS KANSAS TEAM

McMillan's Aggies Promise Fight on Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 3. The West Virginia and "Dads' Day" clash between the Kansas Aggies and the West Virginia Mountaineers next Saturday on Mountaineer Field here will provide Coach Ira Rodgers' machine another opportunity to test its ability against stiff Midwestern competition.

In four intersectional games during the past few years with teams from the Missouri Valley the Mountaineers have gained an even break by losing two to Missouri and winning two from the Oklahoma Aggies.

McMillan's Arrival Boosted Aggies' Stock.

Kansas State College football took a decided spurt with the arrival of Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillan at the big Kansas Agricultural institution three years ago. Blessed for years with a large, husky football squad, the Aggies found the going rough against Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa State.

However, McMillan, famed Centre College gridder and All-American quarter back in 1919, took over the reins in 1928 and had the Aggies playing good football that season. Not a game was won in the "Big Six" Conference, but Iowa State was the victor by only a 7-to-0 score, Kansas by the same count; Oklahoma, 33 to 21 and Nebraska, 8 to 0. Oklahoma A. & M., not a conference member, was trounced, 13 to 6. The consensus of opinion in the West was that McMillan got the best out of his material and that his team showed the result of excellent coaching and handling.

Steady Improvement Means Fight for West Va.

Last year McMillan had a snappy team at Manhattan, Kans. The season was made successful for the Aggies by their 7 to 0 victory over the Jayhawks of the University of Kansas, their ancient and most-cherished enemy. A triple pass play, from which a long forward pass was negotiated, gave the Aggies their triumph. The powerful Missouri eleven was also added to the list of Kansas State grid victims when McMillan's team conquered the Missouri Tigers, 7 to 6. Iowa State was downed, 3 to 2, but Nebraska nosed out the Aggies by a 10-to-6 count.

The steady improvement of the Kansas Aggies against stiff opposition and under the direction of the colorful McMillan rates them as one of the major elevens of the Middle West, where the brand of football played by Nebraska, Oklahoma University and Missouri is well known in the East, since these elevens have played several intersectional contests to the edification of "Big Six" football.

Navy in Good Shape To Meet Ohio State

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—With every man in the best of condition, Coach Bill Ingram put his Navy football charges through a light limbering-up practice today and gave them a diagnosis of the plays which scouts reported may be used against them by Ohio State Saturday in Baltimore. Kirn, who rested Saturday, has fully recovered from bruises received in the Princeton game.

"Magic Toes" Big Help To Michigan Eleven

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—That magic toe of the Michigan Wolverines is commanding more and more respect as the seasons roll along.

In fact, it's getting to be a much feared weapon by opposing teams.

When little Harry Newman placekicked two extra points to beat Purdue, 14 to 13, he kept intact a Michigan record which has held away in the Western Conference for quite a while.

Since the war the Wolverines have chalked up many a triumph through their toe artists. Frank Steketee, Paul Gosbel, Jack Blott, Harry Kipke, Benny Friedman and Joe Gembis are some of the Maize and Blue warriors who have gained fame as kickers.

In the last 10 seasons Michigan has won 12 games on either field goals or points after touchdowns. Four of them were by one-point margins. In 1928 the Wolverines won three games, all on field goals.

Last year Harvard was beaten, 14 to 12, and Minnesota, 7 to 6. In 1926 Ohio State fell, 17 to 16, and Minnesota, 7 to 6, despite the fact Michigan made but two first downs to the Gophers' nineteen.

Michigan has met defeat but once in the last 10 years through failure to kick the extra point. That was in the 1920 Illinois fray, Zuppke's men winning, 7 to 6.

TANK MEETS FOR COLGATE.

Capital City League's Champions Feted by Lions Club.

TOASTED roundly for the impressive manner in which they won the Montgomery County League baseball championship for the second year and then went on to win the Capital City League title in the unlimietid class, the Takoma Tigers were honored at a dinner tendered by the Lions Club at Takoma last night, when each member of the team was presented with a miniature gold baseball, the gift of The Washington Post, sponsor of the Capital City League.

Clark C. Griffith, owner of the Washington ball club, was the principal speaker to address the gathering and felicitated the team upon its victory. Griffith regaled his audience with stories of his baseball life and declared it his wish to win one more pennant with the Washington club before he stepped down from active administration of the team. There is a good chance that Washington will win the pennant next season, Griffith said.

Dr. Shannon, president of the Lions Club, toastmaster of the dinner, had high praise for the members of the team and assured the Tigers that they would not lack for the backing of the Takoma community in the future. He indorsed a plan to place a representative basket ball team in competition.

For the team Manager J. B. Simpson expressed the Tigers' appreciation of the manner in which the township had supported the games and lauded the conduct of the league by The Washington Post which made it possible to give the Tigers a clear claim to the section championship in the play-off against the champions of Prince Georges County, northern Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Paul Rosser, catcher, was awarded a baseball autographed by the members of the club, as his reward for being selected as the most valuable player to the team. The following players received gold baseballs.

VA. POINTING FOR V. P. I. BATTLE

Team That Lost to Maryland Will Face Gobblers.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Nov. 3.—Virginia's varsity faces four afternoons of strenuous work this week in preparation for the game with Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg next Saturday afternoon.

Defeat at the hands of Maryland makes it all the more important to the Cavaliers that they crash through to a victory on Miles Field. They've never won a game in Tech's new stadium and they intend to do it this time.

Some of the Cavaliers are badly battered and bruised as a result of their thrilling gridiron scrap on Lambeth Field against the Old Liners. But none of them show serious injury and it is likely that Coach Earl Abell will find it possible to use all who played in the last game.

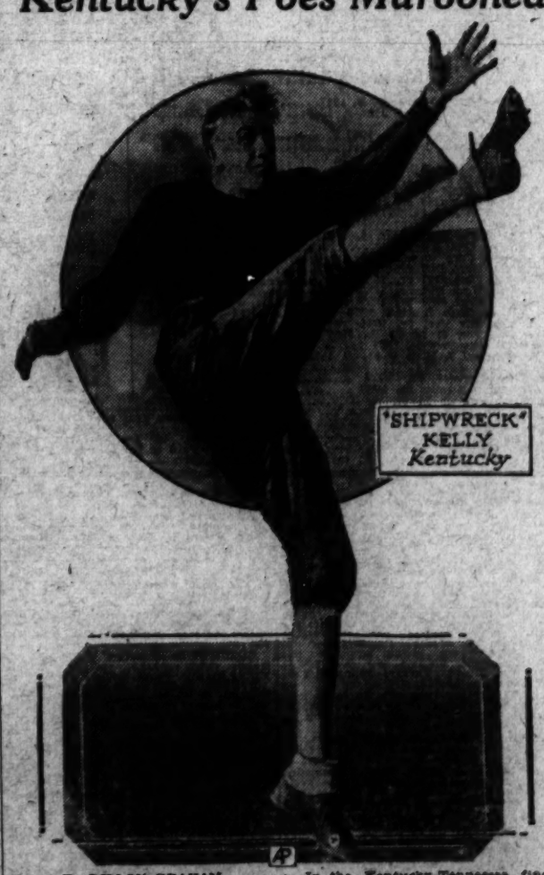
Virginia's Line Improves.

Virginia's line—Capt. Hunter Motley and Buck Foss in the tackles, Bill DeButts and George Cameron at guard, and Lewis Reis in center—performed much better than they have for weeks. Their defense was never tighter than when Marland had first down on the 4-yard line and ran four smashing plays without making a dent.

Cavalier end play was also much better than it showed earlier in the season. By their performances against the Old Liners the two new wingmen, Bill Condon and Segar Gravatt, have just about earned the right to be started on the flanks next Saturday.

Virginia will need good ends and tackles to stop the 1930 edition of the Gobblers, according to Joe McConnell, who scouted the V. P. I.-W. and L. game. There will be much work against Tech formations on Lambeth Field this week.

'Shipwreck' Kelly Leaves Kentucky's Foes Marooned



By DILLON GRAHAM.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Kentucky's "blond express" is gathering momentum in another dash through Dixie's gridiron ranks. He is John Sims "Shipwreck" Kelly.

Packing 175 pounds of trick muscles, this junior half back from Springfield, Ky., has the speed of a sprinter and the power and drive of a heavyweight. His poundage is well distributed over a 6-foot frame anchored by a pair of powerful legs.

Kelly started his gridiron cut-ups as a sophomore when he scored three touchdowns the first four times he carried the ball. In every other game he was a dangerous threat, breaking loose for long scoring runs and piling up one of the highest individual records in the South.

Kelly is labeled as a quadruple threat. His passes are unerring, his boots long and his runs spectacular, while he can receive tosses as well as he can carry and fling them.

For sheer speed he is the fastest man in the South. He is captain of the track team and ran the furlong this summer in the New York A. C.

In spite of his speed, Kelly is an awkward runner and puffs like a porpoise as he races along, but he surely kicks up divots in the face of those who would stop him.

He is a fair student, prominent in campus activities and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

Florida Next Hurdle for Alabama

Tulane, Co-Leader in Conference, Faces Georgia.

Coach Wade Machine Attempting Hardest Schedule of Circuit.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—November's first gridiron explosions left four teams in the Southern Conference race and each succeeding week offers a major game between these with each contest thinning the ranks. Alabama and Tulane take top rank because they are unbeaten and untied. Alabama has five conference victories, while Tulane, 1929 conference champions, has two. Neither Georgia nor Florida has been beaten within the loop, but these teams struggled to a scoreless tie last week.

The first of the new series of eliminations comes next Saturday as Alabama plays Florida at Gainesville. Saturday, November 15, finds Georgia arrayed against Tulane at New Orleans.

The results of these games—except in the case of ties—will reduce the field to two.

Thanksgiving Game Looms Important.

Should Alabama beat Florida and get by Louisiana State the following week and should Georgia beat Tulane, Wallace Wade's big red team would face the Athens Bulldogs in a titular struggle at Birmingham on Thanksgiving Day.

In the event Tulane's Green Wave defeats Georgia—and wins an earlier game this week with Auburn—the Greenies have only Louisiana State to face to finish the conference season unbeaten and with five victories.

Florida's big battle comes this week against Alabama. Should the Alligators stage an upset and down the Crimson Tide, Coach Charles Bachman's men would have Clemson, Georgia Tech and Tennessee ahead and triumphs in all these games would give them a season's mark of six wins and one tie in the conference.

In addition to the Alabama and Tulane games, Georgia still faces its annual fight-to-the-finish with its old State rival, Georgia Tech.

Alabama's Schedule Hardest.

Should Alabama and Tulane complete their campaigns with perfect conference slates, Alabama probably would have the best claim to the title, for the Tide would have eight victories against five for the Greenies.

Close examination of schedules of past years gives the impression that no Southern team has ever tackled a Dixie program as thick with potential champions as the one Alabama is wading through this season.

Wade's machine beat Mississippi and Sewanee and then polished off three of the strongest teams in the South—Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Kntucky—on successive week-ends. And the path ahead is still rocky, with Florida, Louisiana State and Georgia to be repulsed.

Notre Dame Eleven Has "Jinx" on Pitt

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The University of Pittsburgh never has defeated Notre Dame at football, and if Knute Rockne keeps turning out teams like the one which defeated the Panthers, 35-19, here it doesn't look like it ever will.

Prior to the late debacle the last meeting of the schools was in 1912 Rockne played end, and Charley Dorais dropkicked for a 3-0 win for the Irish. In 1909 Notre Dame won, 6-0, and two years later the teams played a scoreless tie.

The teams have played no other football games.

New Scratch Golf Trophy in Britain

An important new scratch event in the golfing calendar is scheduled for the links of the Royal St. David's golf course at Harlech, in North Wales.

It will be on the lines of the Gold Vase at St. George's, Sandwich—36 holes medal play from the "tiger tees," as the super-back tees are known, says the London Mail. The "tiger tees" at Harlech are, suitably enough, painted yellow and black in stripes.

Alexandria Sports

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 3.—Alexandria's first major wrestling bouts of the 1930 season will be staged in Elks Hall, on Prince street, Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

The bouts will be under the auspices of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks.

In the feature engagement, Bobby Mainfort, light heavyweight, will meet Mario Giglio, of Italy. Two other matches have been listed.

The St. Mary's Celtic football team will oppose the Frederick A. C., of Frederick, Md., in next Sunday's attraction at Baggett's Stadium. Tuesday night the Green and Gold warriors will hold a special drill at 8 o'clock. Rube Hayman, coach, is anxious for all players to attend.

Joe Hamilton, star end with the Alpha Delta Omega eleven, is lost to his team for the season. Joe secured a broken finger and badly sprained wrist in one of the contests.

Manager Cleveland Shaw, of the Engine Company No. 5 Football team, is casting about for a game Sunday with some club in the 150-pound division. He can be reached by phoning Alexandria 811.

"Shorty" Scrivener, hustling leader of the Alpha Delta Omega Football team, is attempting to book a football game for his club in this city on Armistice Day, November 11. The Praters may meet the Nat'onal Training School or some other D. C. eleven.

Leslie Lane, president of the Baraca Bible class, is making plans to place a basket ball team on the floor this coming season. The Baracas were represented in the national pastime by a baseball team, which won the week-day league title here.

Plans are going ahead here for the organizing of a Jewish Community Center. An important meeting to discuss plans for this project will be held next Wednesday, John Goldstein, a local attorney, will speak at the session. The meeting will be held at 501 Wolfe street.

Kelley Warns Tech, Central To Beware of Eastern Team

Coach Says Youths Are Spurred by Position as Underdogs; School Has Never Beaten Hardell-Coached Eleven.

By MIKE KELLEY
(Eastern High School Coach).

THE interhigh school football series having reached the half-way mark, only Tech and Eastern remain undefeated and consequently these two teams still find the championship bee buzzing around them. Of course, Tech remains the predominant favorite to cop the 1930 title but over at Eastern a strange feeling prevails that the youngsters who make up the present edition of the Lincoln Parkers, improving in each game, will refuse to be counted out of the series until someone comes along and gives them a good licking.

That's the way they feel about this series and so long as they refuse to be licked, they are very liable to make things interesting for Central and Tech in the two remaining contests on their schedule.

Eastern, by whipping Central and Tech, could give the school on Capitol Hill, its first interhigh football championship in 32 years. Quite a large order, no doubt, for any under-dog to whip Central and Tech in the same season, but that's the situation presented to the wearers of the Light Blue and White this season and stranger things have happened in series play.

First Victory Over Tech Is Goal.

If that isn't sufficient inducement to cause the hearts of the Eastern eleven to flutter, why there's another angle that surely will hit the spot. It's this. In all the years of the local high school gridiron series, Eastern has yet to show a football victory over Tech. There's a good talking point to an eleven that concedes superiority to no series rival this year.

This may be called the height of optimism by the dopesters who have already inscribed Tech's name on the 1930 championship trophy, especially after the Maroon and Gray's signal victory over its arch-rival, Central, but the fact remains that Eastern can win the 1930 title by beating Central and Tech in order and the writer believes that such a thing is not outside the realm of possibility.

This Eastern Eleven is a pretty good defensive team, though lacking the scoring punch of Tech. They have absorbed a great deal of football since the season opened and are showing improvement each time out. The lack of experienced material has been a boon to the morale of the squad and being the under-dog in each game, they have played, hasn't hindered the good sport and willingness of the players.

Tech has Western and Eastern to beat before copping its third successive interhigh title in football. Most critics feel that this is comparatively easy to do. However, despite what Western may do against the Manual Trainers, Eastern intends to fight them to the last ditch. Some day an Eastern eleven will take Tech's measure and make history for the Lincoln Park institution. Who knows but that this rank outsider, the 1930 Blue and White squad, may turn the trick.

Hardell Teams Superior In Fundamentals.

"Hap" Hardell has another sterling eleven this season. Each season to come, Tech will be the team to beat for the football crown. Manpower and good coaching will be characteristic of every Tech squad just as long as Hardell tutors the team. Whether one dubs him a "Rockne" or a "Dobie" the fact remains that his teams play excellent football and are superior to the others in the fundamentals of the game, blocking on offense and tackling on defense. These two fundamentals, the one the essence of offense, the other the essence of defense, are best attained by Tech squads.

In common with the other coaches of local high school elevens the writer would rather trim Tech than any other team because in trimming Tech, one accomplishes a worthwhile feat. The writer pays tribute to Hardell's conscientousness with his squad and his truly remarkable record with Tech teams in the years since 1923.

But he advises him not to take this present Eastern eleven too lightly because they have set a high mark to shoot at and they're determined to reach it.

CUE WIZARD NOT TO SEEK TITLE

Entries for 3-Cushion Play Close; Hoppe, Cochran Out.

WILLIE HOPPE and Welker Cochran will not be in the competition this season for the world's three-cushion championship. A check-up of the entries for the four sectional tournaments, which open on November 10, discloses that neither Hoppe nor Cochran, who had been invited to participate in the Eastern sectional, signed the entry blanks.

The sixteen players who will compete in the Eastern sectionals have been named and there will be no last-minute changes to make room for Hoppe and Cochran.

Hoppe has been out of world's championship play for almost three years in three cushions and almost four years in balkline. Hoppe last took part in the world's three-cushion championship in Chicago in December, 1928, when he finished second to Johnny Layton, present world's titleholder. Just a year previous he also finished second to Layton in the title clash.

Hoppe's last attempt to win the world's 18.2 crown was in the international tournament in Washington in March, 1927, when he finished sixth in a field of seven. He won only two games, beating Cochran and Kinrey Matsuyama.

Hoppe Decisively Beaten By Johnny Layton.

Hoppe has played some fine three-cushions in exhibitions and for a time many believed he was the best three-cushion player in the game, but in the two title clashes with Layton he was decisively beaten. Cochran also has been playing a strong game at three-cushions and many critics believed he would have been a genuine contender had he entered this season.

Alfredo de Oro, former holder of the world three-cushion and pocket billiard crowns, again will be a contender. He will be soon in the Northeast division of the Eastern sectional at the Twentieth Century Billard Room in Boston, Charles Seaback, who took part in the Eastern pocket billiard section, will be seen in the three-cushion qualifying meet.

Charles Ellis, of Pittsburgh, a former world three-cushion champion, will return to title play. He heads the entry list for the Southwest division of the Eastern section, which will be played at the Ellis Recreation in Pittsburgh. Harry Oswald, who took part in the Eastern pocket billiard sectional, will be in the three-cushion divisional.

Coach Calls Team's Plays From Aloft

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 3.—Coach Frank J. Murray, of the Marquette University Golden Avalanche football machine, pulled a new wrinkle in varsity coaching circles when he forsook his usual seat on the players' bench and climbed high atop the press stands to direct the game.

It is Murray's theory that the play of an entire team can be seen better from above and as a consequence he chose the high perch in the west stands.

Telephone connections were established to John L. Taylor, the Marquette line coach on the bench, and substitutions and suggestions were made by wire. Murray and two assistants watched play from above and the new system was introduced with the Golden Avalanche victory.

"Whenever possible," Murray said after the game, "I am going to direct my team in this fashion. I'm thoroughly sold on the idea after this experiment and had my eyes opened as I watched the play of the far side of the line, a feature of the game not easily seen from a bench at the side lines."

SORT OF FAMILY TRAIT.

A member of the Morris family has been captain of the high school football team of Seymour, in West Texas, eight out of nine years.

V. P. I. PLAYS VIRGINIA ON SATURDAY

Teams Will Meet at Blacksburg in Home-coming Feature.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 3.—Virginia Polytechnic Institute Eleven will meet University of Virginia gridmen this week in the thirty-fifth anniversary game as the feature of V. P. I.'s homecoming program.

Eevens of the two institutions first met in 1895, and V. P. I. won its first victory in 1905, with Hunter Carpenter, greatest of all Poly backs, leading the attack. In the new series of games, which began in 1923, V. P. I. has won four games and Virginia three.

Varsity Game Homecoming Feature.

The varsity game with the Cavaliers will be the climax to a full weekend of homecoming activities, which are to include formal and informal alumni gatherings, a State title series game between V. P. I. and Virginia undefeated freshmen elevens in the morning, the big game in the afternoon, and dances in the evening.

With both Virginia and V. P. I. in the running for the Old Dominion football title this fall, and the Cavaliers eager to avenge two successive defeats by V. P. I. with their first triumph in Miles Stadium, the stage is set for another worthy chapter in the history of the long rivalry. The bright hues of the red, blue and gray uniforms of V. P. I.'s cadet regiment of thirteen companies will lend additional color to the game as the cadets put on a parade and review on the field. Headed by their crack band, the cadets will pass in review before visiting notables and go through maneuvers in salute to the rival team and alumni of the University of Virginia just before marching into the stands to cheer the Poly eleven.

Starts "Foundation" To Develop Boxers

An important step in the search for a new British heavyweight champion fit to rank with the world's best boxers is the decision by the Ring, a famous boxing hall in London, to set aside a fund of 2,000 pounds for the purpose of providing expert tuition free of cost for young men who are anxious to enter pugilism.

The men must be of the right stamp physically, of course, but those chosen for instruction will, if necessary, be relieved for a certain period of financial responsibilities so that they may be free to devote their whole time to training.

Any young man will be given a chance to show what he can do with his fists, and if he reveals promise he will be given daily lessons by an old-time boxer of repute.

The Ring officials believe that there is a wealth of hidden talent in Britain from flyweights to heavyweights.

A suitable gymnasium adjoining the Ring will be opened. This will be fitted with every modern athletic appliance and a good sized boxing ring, and will be an open house for any young man who cares to try his hand at boxing.

Army-Illinois Game Reported a Sell-Out

West Point, New York, Nov. 3.—For the Army-Illinois football game next Saturday at the Yankee Stadium, Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, announced today that the corps of cadets would march into the stadium at 1:15 p. m., and that the game would start promptly at 1:45 p. m.

Maj. Fleming also announced that the Army quota of tickets had been entirely distributed and that all signs indicate a capacity crowd for the only appearance of the Corps of Cadets in New York City this year. Police officials advise football fans to start for the game early as with another big game at the Polo Grounds, traffic will be materially slowed up.

New Central Line-Up in Series

Rauber Shuffles Array for Business Game Today.

Orange Hopes Borne by Duryee; Central Has Kicking Find.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

CENTRAL may have lost much of its chance of scaling the top of the high school series by its loss to Tech, but the intensity of yesterday's practice session at the Thirteenth street stadium showed that Coach Rauber and his charges are still battling for a high place in the standings.

Today the Blue and White meets Coach Lynn Woodworth's Business Eleven in the first tussle of the second half of the series. Business held a stiff workout yesterday in Potomac Park near the Lincoln Memorial. Only Bill Duryee, ace ball carrier of the Orange, was not present. Duryee will be on hand today, however, as he was only being given a rest by the genial coach of the Stenographers.

Duryee is counted on as heavily today to keep Business in the game as he has been since the start of the season. No outstanding backs have sprung up in Business ranks to aid the work of Duryee to any appreciable extent. Johnson, Strasser and Cavanaugh, while fast and keen, are too light to nick local high school lines for gains, and the brunt of the line plunging falls on them. Duryee is at his best around end.

Central Line-Up Yet Undetermined.

Coach Rauber dealt a new hand yesterday and Central will probably face the opening whistle today with a line-up which Rauber admits he does not know. Today will probably see changes on the ends, perhaps one in the back field, and surely one at right guard. Rauber concentrated mostly on passing yesterday, with a scrub team attempting to break up the aerial attack.

Larry Pinckney, no doubt Centrals best all-around performer, looked freshened yesterday despite a season which has been tough for him. Business' line must show unlooked for strength if Central's big full back is to be stopped today.

Paul Hinkel and Whitey Cumberland are definitely out for the year. Central has found a kicker at last. Mirman's booting was inferior in the Tech game, and Pinckney's, while better, still left something to be desired. Hence the presence of Henry Gibbons is welcomed on all sides. Gibbons, a 175-pound huskie, who became eligible to represent Central a few days ago and who will probably see service today at right tackle, is the son of an Army officer stationed in Honolulu. He has spent much of his life there.

New Central Kicker Gets 50 Yards on Boots.

Gibbons learned to play football at Honolulu High. He is a sophomore, which argues well for Central's immediate future. He is a shifty lad, who looks like he'll be worked into a back before long. Yesterday, with the aid of only a zephyr at his back, his practice boots were spiraling 50 and 60 yards before coming to earth.

Coach Ty Rauber's decision to play with the Apaches is in no way significant, if one is attempting to connect this action and the possibility that he may leave Central. Rauber will not finish his law work until February, with the bar examination after that, and will be at the helm of Central's football destiny until the time when he receives an offer for a legal post that he can not well ignore.

Devitt Pinspillers Defeat Central High

The bowlers of Devitt Prep are anxious to form a high school and scholastic bowling circuit, with regularly scheduled matches and recognition from the school officials. Yesterday at the Rendezvous drives Devitt defeated Central High 2 out of 3 games in a match which may be the forerunner of organized scholastic bowling. A match against Western High has also been obtained by the Devitt pin spillers.

Gallaudet at Peak For Shepherd Game

Gallaudet will have its full strength available for its game Saturday with Shepherd College at Kendall Green. The Blues escaped the Army Medical battle at Carlisle, Pa., last Saturday with nothing more than bruises and scratches.

Temporarily halted by the Medicos, who tied them, the Blues again will strive to score their fourth victory of the season, thus equaling their 1929 record. It was Shepherd that fell before the Blues last year in their fourth triumph by a score of 25 to 7.

Coach Teddy Hughes was dissatisfied with the interference against Army Medical. Lack of "clearing the way" prevented Johnny Ringle, his best open field bet, from getting loose for touchdowns.

BOND MARKET SALES REACH LOWER LEVEL

Changes Are Inconsequential as Interest of Traders Shifts to Politics.

INVESTMENT RAILS FIRM

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Turnover in the bond market dwindled to the smallest proportions for a full session in many weeks today as the eve of the election found many traders absent and investors indifferent. Total sales were only $6,390,000.

A few investment rails and public utilities attracted most of the inquiry and were a little firmer, but domestic bonds generally were dull and subject to small fluctuations either way. United States Governments receded slightly from the high levels reached last week, although the Treasury 3½s of 1940-43 established a new 1930 maximum on one sale. Changes in the foreign list were mixed, with leading European and South American issues firm.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 5s, St. Paul 5s of 2000, Denver & Rio Grande construction 4s, Erie 5s of 1967 and International Telephone debenture 4½s advanced more than ½ point each in active trading.

Industrials were soft, while speculative and stock privilege issues were mixed. In the latter group, American Natural Gas 6½s dropped 11 points to 55, a new low. Atchison 4½s, Allegheny Corporation 5s of 1950, Rock Island 4½s and Reading Coal & Iron 4s were improved. Pathe 7s, with warrants, rallied 7½ points to 57½, compared with a recent low of 36.

The foreign list was liberally sprinkled with gains of a point or more. Among them were Australia 5s, Belgian 8s, Brazil 8s, Chinese Railway 8s, Greek Government 6s, North German Lloyd 6s, Sao Paulo 7s and Santa Fe Argentine 7s. Queensland 6s reacted 11 points.

GIRL ADMITS STORY OF ABDUCTION WAS TO STIR BOY FRIEND

Demure Treasury Department Clerk Confesses After Grill.

CHARACTERIZES ACTION INNOCENT FABRICATION

In a simple, 50-word statement given Detective Sergts. Richard Cox and H. K. Wilson last night, Miss Mary Ruth Johnstone, demure Treasury Department clerk, who aroused police with a weird story of having been abducted Sunday from L street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets northwest, admitted that the story was "untrue" and that a "boy friend" whose interest she was seeking to augment, was the cause of it all.

Miss Johnstone, who lives in an apartment at 1301 Fifteenth street northwest, was subjected to a two-hour quizzing by the detectives last night. She was asked to tell and retell her story three times and the varying stories she told led to the shattering of her alleged abduction tale.

Terming her abduction just an "innocent story," Miss Johnstone told the detectives she was attempting to arouse one Troy McCurdy, whom she designates "my boy friend," into a more avid display of affections.

She related how she alighted from a street car at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, walked into a drug store and telephoned Miss Flossie Tillotson, her room mate, the first story of the kidnaping. Then she took another street car and visited friends, Mrs. Mary Haight, at 6604 Second street northwest, where she again related the story.

Accompanied by the Haights, she went back to her apartment, and there was interviewed by detectives.

Miss Johnstone clung tenaciously to her original story, with variations, until the detectives told her frankly they did not believe her. Her admission that the story was made up to arouse the interest of Mr. McCurdy followed and she wrote out and signed a confession that her entire "escapade" was untrue.

Oscar C. Thomas Loses Fight on Disbarment

Oscar C. Thomas, attorney, lost his fight to save himself from disbarment yesterday when the District of Columbia Court of Appeals affirmed the verdict of the general term of the District Supreme Court. Thomas' disbarment was ordered to become effective April 29, 1929, and he appealed.

The action of the lower court followed hearing of charges preferred by the grievance committee of the local bar association. It was charged that Thomas had collected money from a client in one instance and for a client in another and had failed to account for it except by worthless checks which were not honored until after the grievance committee had received complaints. Justice Robb held that the evidence was sufficient to support the disbarment verdict.

AREA OF CANADA GROWS EACH YEAR

Government Explorers Map New Frozen Outpost Every Fall.

AIRPLANE IS GREAT AID

Special to The Washington Post.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Canada's area gets larger each year. Every fall, when exploration parties of the Dominion government emerge from the far North, they bring word of newly mapped and charted coast lines, unknown islands plotted in the Arctic Archipelago and entirely new areas added to the map of Canada.

In a few short weeks these parties will be reporting back to Ottawa. Some of them, of course, do not "come out" in the fall, but stay in the far North for the long and severe winter season. This fact applies particularly to such remote areas as Baffin Land, which is an interesting island to the geologist and the meteorologist. Survey parties remain there at times for a year or more, securing data on weatner conditions and possible mineral wealth and doing mapping and general survey work.

Canada's northern empire is of such great magnitude that its mere mapping is a task in itself This work is hampered because of the comparatively short working year. The long winter spells the end to all but necessary traveling. The deep snows, the terrific winds and the never-ending fight for food put all else to one side.

Slowly but surely the far North is being mastered. Intrepid men are throwing back the barriers. They are mapping and opening up thousands and thousands of square miles of territory that not so many years ago knew no human beings but the Eskimos.

The coming of the airplane solved many problems for these modern explorers. With its aid they now travel in a few hours distances that would have taken them weeks by dog team or canoe.

Maj. L. T. Burwash is now on a trip to King William's Land by air, which was quite impossible in the summer months by other means of travel. He will take a census of the Eskimo population in some sections of the Arctic coastline and supervise the prospecting now being done on the Coppermine River.

This area was thrown open for prospecting this year for the first time, and in some sections it is believed to hold the secret of the legendary copper deposits referred to by Indians and Eskimos for a great many years.

Fine Arts Commission Studies New Projects

Plans for development of Meridian Hill Park will be taken up at a meeting of the Fine Arts Commission on Friday, it is announced.

Other matters for consideration include location of the proposed Navy-Marine Memorial in Potomac Park, selection of a new site for the Rawlins statue, now located in front of Center Market, and various problems concerning completion of Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Bell Captain Is Found Guilty of Manslaughter

John B. Blueford, Negro, former captain of bell boys at the Roosevelt Hotel, was found guilty by a jury before Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday in District Supreme Court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Fred Howard, colored bell boy, last September 3.

The fatal stabbing, according to testimony, occurred in the rear of the hotel. Blueford pleaded self-defense. Assistant United States Attorney James P. Hughes appeared for the Government.

EYEWITNESS CLEW IN BAKER MYSTERY FAILS TO STAND UP

STORY AT VARIANCE WITH KNOWN FACTS

Army's Ordnance Officer Declines Challenge of Campbell for Test.

The newest "lead" in the Mary Baker murder case fell flat last night when an 80-year-old Negress, who claimed to have witnessed the girl's slaying, failed in several important instances to substantiate her story.

The woman, brought to the attention of police by a newspaperman, was questioned and so many discrepencies between her story and proven facts were developed, the "lead" was dropped.

Story Told by Woman.

The woman told a story of having seen Mary Baker enter her home with two Negroes. She alleged that she peeked through a crack in a door and saw the two men beat the girl. Her timing of the so-called incident, 4 o'clock in the afternoon, was at variance with the records in the case, as Mary Baker attended church until 6:20 in company with friends, and had worked in the Navy Department until 4:30.

Police believe that the woman was the victim of a vivid imagination.

Campbell Challenge Refused.

Maj. Julian S. Hatcher, ordnance officer of the Army, announced yesterday that he would not accept Herbert M. Campbell's challenge to prove ballistics an exact science. The major said he had no interest in Campbell's opinion of ballistics, had not followed the trial in which the real estate man was exonerated on a charge of killing Mary Baker, and was too busy to take up Campbell's proposal that he decide which of ten test bullets were fired from five revolvers.

Maj. Hatcher further explained that he had been drawn into the controversy merely through telling a newspaperman that Col. Calvin Goddard, prosecution ballistics expert, could have proved the accuracy of the science had he completed his tests.

Alleged Slot Machine Operator Freed on Bail

Justice Wendell P. Stafford, in District Supreme Court yesterday ordered Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to release Ernest G. Shockey, who was arrested Saturday night by Seventh Precinct police on a charge of having operated a slot machine. The release was made pending hearing November 24 on a petition for habeas corpus. Bond of $500 was fixed by the justice.

In the petition for habeas corpus filed through Attorney Crandall Mackey, Shockey, who operates a lunchroom concession at the Arlington & Fairfax Railway Co. station at Rosslyn, Va., claims that he was arrested in Arlington County and charges that the District police had no jurisdiction over him, Capt. Maurice Collins, of the Seventh Precinct, and a group of precinct policemen are alleged in the petition to have made the raid and the arrest Saturday without a warrant.

Hurley to Be Guest At Officers' Luncheon

Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, will be guest of honor at the monthly luncheon of officers of the Quartermaster Corps today at the Carlton Hotel. Brig. Gen. H. C. Whitehead is chairman of the committee in charge.

Other distinguished guests will include Maj. Gen. E. A. Kreger, judge advocate general; Maj. Gen. H. L. Gilchrist, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service; Maj. Gen. E. E. Booth, deputy chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Samuel Hof, chief of ordnance, and Maj. Gen. J. L. DeWitt, quartermaster general.

Indian Gets Suspended Term on Rum Charge

Thomas Spybuck, an Indian, who gave his age as 39 years, and his address as Irving street, near Twelfth street northwest, was given a suspended sentence of $25 or 30 days and placed on probation for one year on a drunkenness charge yesterday in Police Court.

Spybuck declared that he was given the "firewater" by friends, and he did not realize that he was taking so much until he was wobbly and tried to go home. He was arrested on the street.

Carpenter Falls From Church.

Suffering from a fractured pelvis and abrasions to his right side, Richard Ross, 29 years old, a carpenter, living at 3406 Fifteenth street northeast, was in Casualty Hospital last night in an undetermined condition, the result of a fall from a scaffold. He was working on a church on Massachusetts avenue southeast, near Thirteenth street, when the accident occurred.

Georgetown Student Dies Of Poisoning After "Joke"

Brother and Others at Party Thought 23-Year-Old Collegian Jesting About Having Taken Roach Powder; Inquest to Be Held Today.

A playful whim was thought by police to have been the cause of the death of Charles F. Brandler, 23 years old, who was found dead in bed yesterday morning after he was believed to have swallowed a quantity of roach powder.

Robert Brandler, a brother, told investigators that the youth had come into a room where they were having a party in their apartment in Clifton terrace and announced that he had swallowed some of the powder. They thought he was joking, the brother said, and paid no attention to the statement.

An autopsy at the District Morgue revealed what was thought to be a large quantity of the poison insecticide, although it had not been definitely analyzed last night. An inquest will be held this morning at the morgue.

Sunday night Brandler, with his brother, Peter Toner, a friend living in the same apartment building, and Charles Hommer, of W street near Thirty-fifth street northwest, were said to have entertained women visitors in their apartment, and Brandler drank the powder mixed with an intoxicant at this time.

The youth was a student at Georgetown University, and the others who were with him at the time are all students in Washington schools. Brandler was said to live in Johnstown, Pa.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AS FOOTBALL MAY BE REPORTED

BILOXI won the toss and chose the north goal, with the court of appeals at its back. Scroggs kicked off, the ball going over the sideline but bounding back off a spectator's shoulder. Time was taken out while counsel for both teams went into a huddle. It was finally ruled (McGuiness vs. Halliday) that a ball interfered with by a spectator must be kicked over again, the first kick being held immaterial and irrelevant.

* * * *

On the second kick the ball was caught by Wigginbotham, who, seeing himself surrounded, called for his counsel, Hallahan, Kolinsky, Goldstein & O'Hara. The lawyers asked for a change of venue. Motion overruled. Exception taken. On the next play Dimmock was thrown for a loss of seven yards. An appeal was immediately taken. The contention is that the tackle was unconstitutional. (Gattle vs. Wallabout).

* * * *

* * * *

When play was resumed, Breen attempted a forward pass to Steukle. Steukel, however, failed to get to the appointed spot in time to receive it. Breen telephoned his lawyer to see if he had grounds for action on a claim of breach of contract. The point is a most interesting one.

* * * *

At this point "Eel" Feitelbaum, the elusive full back of the Biloxi eleven, was given the ball and seemed about to get away for a touchdown, when he was hit hard by three Tulane men and thrown so hard he lost four upper teeth. On a question of whether or not this constituted a violation of the Monroe Doctrine play was suspended while the coaches went into a huddle with the Attorney General.

* * * *

The Attorney General handed down a ruling at 3:45 that it was a matter of State rights.

* * * *

Here "Red" Betts was given the ball and made one yard through center. There was great amazement in the stands when no point of law was raised. Grogans then made three yards around left end, but fumbled the ball. It was recovered by Pete Dolan on a writ of habeas corpus.

* * * *

Three hundred attorneys in the cheering section arose as one man and filed a demurrer. So far it has been the most involved game of the football season. The betting is 7 to 5 for acquittal.

Racketeers have now invaded midget golf. Presumably they take their victims "for a ride" in a batam car.

New York bandits held up a jewelry store in the heart of Broadway while the Great White Way was crowded. Probably thousands of Broadwayites saw the robbery but didn't do anything because there were no photographers present.

Ad similes: As busy as a photographer at the grand opera opening.

NOW that Henry Ford is back from Europe there must be numerous elder statesmen who, knowing his craze for antiques, must feel greatly relieved.

George Bernard Shaw and Prof. Albert Einstein went so big on the air that two ginger ale firms, a cigarette house and a couple of toothpaste corporations are reported to be after them.

"After all," says Elmer Twitchell, "it was a lot easier to be impressed by the average political candidate in the days before the radio made it practically obligatory to listen to him."

GIRL IS VERY FOND OF CHUTE LEAPING

DROP TAKES 35 MINUTES

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—She's just a tiny girl barely heavy enough to open a parachute, but she isn't afraid to jump from a plane three and a half miles above the earth.

That's June Babe Smith, who is believed to have set a new women's parachute jump record with a leap of more than 18,000 feet.

She stepped out of the plane while it soared above St. Joseph and after dropping for 35 minutes landed unhurt in a cornfield nearly six miles from the city. The altimeter of the ship registered 18,350 feet when she leaped.

The record Babe is believed to have broken was set by Billie Brown at El Monte, Calif., who made a jump of 16,340 feet. An official of the National Aeronautical Association was official observer at the St. Joseph girl's leap, and after a cursory calibration of the barograph carried by her, announced she had dropped nearly 19,000 feet. The barograph has been sent to Washington, D. C., for official calibration.

Cool and collected, making her jumps with no more apparent worry than if she were embarking on a shopping excursion, Babe has been making parachute leaps since 1927. During that time she has made more than 60 jumps.

"I don't get shaky at all," Babe said.

Babe is of slight build and weighs scarcely 100 pounds. She always takes candy bars with her when she starts out in a plane for a parachute jump. She was born in Youngstown, Ohio. Her husband, Sig Smith, is head of a flying circus which plans to leave soon on a goodwill tour of Central and South America. The tour will be sponsored by the City of St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce.

Modern Tarzan Lives in Forest

Armed With Camera He Gets Remarkable Record.

Seattle, Nov. 3.—Talk about adventures—H. B. Crisler, mountaineer and cameraman, had 'em in bunches And all he started out to get was a hike.

Crisler went out with just a back pack a month ago to pass a few days in the Olympic wilds. He carried no firearms and no food. His only armament was a movie camera, a "still" box and a pocket knife. And he stayed out 26 days, playing Tarzan, raising whiskers, eating with his fingers, and having a real vacation.

Once he stalked an elk all day in the hope of killing it with his knife for food. He knocked over grouse with stones and broiled them on a spit. He ate frogs and wood berries. He set up his camera to take a picture of himself crossing an ice field, fell in a crevasse and was nearly killed. The camera, equipped with an automatic device, clicked away, recording what is probably the first picture of a man saving his life in a glacier fissure.

During his trip Crisler made the acquaintance of an entire bear family, father, mother and children. Crisler took three carrier pigeons with him to send for help if he needed any. Two of the pigeons reached Seattle after being driven hundreds of miles off their course by hawks. The third never arrived. Footsore, gaunt, hungry and tired, but with movies probably unduplicated in picture history, Crisler returned to civilization, a warm bath and a knife and fork.

LIQUOR CHARGES PEND

Action of Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of District of Columbia Supreme Court, in padlocking for one year premises at 2104 Fourteenth street northwest and 1419 L street northwest, which were occupied as garages by Herbert Glassman, who is under indictment with twelve other men on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, was upheld yesterday by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

In the opinion written by Justice Josiah H. Van Orsdell the court held that the action of Justice Stafford was not arbitrary, but was adequately supported by the evidence. The appeal was taken when Francis W. Hill, sr., and Harry Sherby, respective owners of the premises, were denied the privilege to post bond against future unlawful use of their properties.

In dwelling on the evidence adduced at the padlock hearing, Justice Van Orsdell pointed out that Hill had made an investigation to determine if his property was being illegally used and then had taken remedial steps, but the court stated that action of this nature is not sufficient to control the action of the District Supreme Court in issuing the padlock order.

Glassman has never been brought to trial and Justice Van Orsdell stated that under a decision of the United States Supreme Court padlock proceedings do not necessarily have to be preceded by a criminal conviction of the tenant. All that is necessary is to establish that a nuisance, as defined by the prohibition act, is established.

Hailstones Timed; Fall 9-Mile Rate

Special to The Washington Post.

London, Nov. 3.—Giant hailstones that fell mysteriously but fortunately, much less rapidly than they should have done as calculated from the law of falling bodies, were observed recently in Irak, the former Babylonia, and have been reported to the British weather authorities by the meteorological section of that government's forces in Irak.

The storm happened April 24, when numerous hailstones were collected up to more than an inch and a half in diameter. A novel observation in weather lore was the successful timing of the rate of fall of some of these large stones just before they hit the ground, the fall being timed as they passed two fixed points on the wall of a building. The rate of fall thus found worked out, it is reported, as only about 9 miles an hour, whereas a hailstone of this same size falling freely in the air would increase in speed up to a velocity of about 30 miles an hour.

The only explanation which weather authorities can suggest for this curiously slow speed with which these hailstones completed their journey is that there may have existed in the air, a few hundred feet above the ground, a violent upward gale, so that the fall of the giant stones was retarded by air resistance more than would happen in still air. Had the stones actually fallen with the larger velocity, the damage done by the storm undoubtedly would have been much greater than it was.

MILK CANS SERVE AS BALLOT BOXES

SHOW UP IN RECOUNT

Special to The Washington Post.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 3.—Michigan has found that learning how the other fellow lives isn't half as strange as learning how he votes.

It took the recount of 800,000 votes cast in the Republican race for gubernatorial nomination at the fall primaries to disclose strange things about machinery and the exercise of franchise at the polls.

Alexander J. Groesbeck, of Detroit, former governor, found himself lagging 4,000 votes behind his youthful opponent, Attorney General Wilber M. Brucker, after tabulation by the State board of canvassers. He petitioned for the recount, charging election irregularities in various counties, and Lansing became the scene of the greatest circus of its political history. Around a skeleton clerical organization, hastily recruited from offices in the State capitol, there sprung up overnight a milling mob that filled the largest hall in town—the gymnasium of the State Boys' Vocational School.

When county and township clerks were ordered to deliver their ballot boxes, little did election officials known that the strangest collection of receptacles ever made was to grow into a huge mountain overnight.

Michigan's voting, they learned, depended upon milk cans, bee hives, old trunks—every conceivable container which might be equipped with a cover and fitted with a lock. Cans, boxes, safes, chests, trunks and garbage pails were the depositories of Michigan's electorate at the polls. There were cases with glass sides in the pile of ballot boxes from Hillsdale County. Calhoun sent ballot boxes which represented the finest skill of the cabinetmaker. From Antrim County came boxes squared with the naked eye by a builder, whose only tools were a hammer and a buck saw.

Revision of Michigan's election laws and a standardization of equipment used at the polls may be among the benefits Michigan is to derive from the $250,000 it has spent to recount the votes cast at the primary election.

Girls Ask Retrial On Vice Charges

Special to The Washington Post.

Cleveland, Nov. 3.—Bewildered at finding themselves in the workhouse when, they said, they did not understand that they had pleaded guilty, Marie Gillis, 23, and Myrtle Rayburn, 24, hired themselves a new attorney and Municipal Judge Marv B. Grossman granted them a hearing on a motion for a new trial.

The motion made by Attorney Peter E. Klein charges "misconduct of the attorney representing the defendant." The lawyer originally hired by the girls was Thomas C. Brinsmade, who practices frequently in police court. When the case came to trial he sent in his stead a young attorney in his office, Leonard Maresh.

The two girls, both waitresses, were arrested on vice charges. Immediately after their arrest, they engaged Attorney Brinsmade and were released from jail on $200 bonds.

They say that just before the trial, without consulting their wishes, Brinsmade informed them that "someone from his office would look after their interests." This "someone," they state, then proceeded to plead them guilty to the charge and Judge Grossman gave them sentences of costs and 90 days, with 30 days suspended, and placed them on one year's probation.

The girls said that they had never been in a courtroom before, knew nothing of the procedure, and didn't understand the meaning of pleading guilty.

BETSY WARREN WINS REELECTION BY BODY

OTHER OFFICERS NAMED

Miss Betsy Warren was reelected for her second term as president of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association at its meeting in Congress Heights School last night.

D. H. Cole was chosen first vice president to succeed P. H. Magruder, who has moved away from the District, while W. W. Bird was elected second vice president to replace Mr. Cole.

Mrs. Carrie L. Davidson was reelected secretary, while Mrs. Mary L. Cole was retained as financial secretary and E. J. Newcomb and D. H. Cole were continued as delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The association voted to petition the District Commissioners for a new hose wagon to replace the antquated machine which has seen service for the past fifteen years in No. 25 Engine Company of the Fire Department.

An invitation from the telephone company to inspect the workings of the new dial system was accepted, and members of the association will visit one of the exchanges in a body on November 10.

The playground committee reported that Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, director of the Office of Public Parks and Public Buildings, had signified his willingness to establish a playground in the Washington Highlands section whenever a suitable site is made available. The committee was instructed to locate such property and report back to the association.

It was decided to invite Col. Charles I. Stengle who opposed Dr. George A. Havenner for the presidency of the federation at its recent election, to address the association at its next meeting.

Herson, of 1706 Seventh street northwest.

Allegation is made that Bellmore was injured when the automobile in which he was riding was in collision at Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest with a machine said to have been driven by Herson's agent. Attorneys Abe Shefferman and Amax H. Aronson appear for the plaintiff.

DUPONT CIRCLE BODY OPPOSES EXTENDING HEIGHT OF BUILDINGS

Association Goes on Record Against Destruction of Center Market.

WORK OF C. W. DARR ON MATTER IS LAUDED

Commerce Chamber Officer Addresses Meeting on "Buy Now" Drive.

Opposing any increase in the height of buildings located in the residential sections of the city, the Dupont Circle Citizens Association, at a meeting held in the Mayflower Hotel yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution asking the Zoning Commission to reconsider its action extending the height from 60 to 90 feet of structures situated on streets 110 feet wide.

The former height regulation was adequate, it was stated, as these streets are found principally in the residential sections.

Oppose Razing of Center Market.

The association went on record as opposing the destruction of Center Market until the necessary plans are completed for the housing of merchants now operating on that site.

Charles W. Darr, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, was commended by the organization for his efforts in delaying the tearing down of the market.

Dorsey J. Hyde, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed the meeting on the "Buy Now" campaign being conducted throughout the city.

He told the association of the large number of persons who daily apply to the chamber for positions, and asked that the association cooperate with them in every way possible.

Alley Conditions Discussed.

Deploring the conditions now existing in alleys in all parts of the city, the organization asked that the authorities take proper steps to remedy the situation.

Bankrupt Auction Sale Questioned

Questioning the manner in which the bankrupt stock of Berry & Co., jewelers, is being disposed of at public outcry, the Better Business Bureau, through Louis Rothschild, director, yesterday asked and obtained permission of the District Supreme Court to intervene in the receivership action under which the auction is being held.

In the petition which Justice Jesse C. Adkins permitted it to file, the bureau asks that the court fix a reasonable time limit for the disposal of the stock, limit the stock sold to that of the company, and to require that an auctioneer, licensed in the District, be employed.

The petitioners also ask the court to compel the receivers and the auctioneer to show cause why the order, signed October 18, appointing the latter to sell the stock, should not be vacated.

The auctioneer, it is claimed, is not a resident of the District and does not hold a local auctioneering license, except inasmuch as he is empowered by the court. It is alleged that jewelry and articles other than those in the store of the company at the time the court order was signed, October 18, is being sold.

Intent to Kill Officer Charged, Man Is Held

Louis Williams, colored, of Twenty-seventh street near P street northwest, was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday in Police Court when he was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Bond was set at $10,000.

Mail Theft Loss Is Put at $3,338

Registered letters and parcels stolen from a mail truck in front of the substation at 1438 U street northwest last Thursday night were valued at $3,338, not counting a number of papers which have not been estimated, Inspector W. F. Chester, of the Post-office Department, reported yesterday.

Postal inspectors and police are still working on the case, but have been unable to secure a real clew to the robber or robbers. The driver of the mail truck was inside the substation collecting other mail when the theft occurred.

Among the articles in the sack stolen were drafts drawn by the French Ambassador, several Edison Electric Co. bonds, three absentee voting ballots, canceled traveler's checks, medicine and several promissory notes.

Camp Meade Prisoner Returned to Atlanta

(Associated Press.)

The Department of Justice yesterday announced that Josiah Kirby, convicted in Ohio and now serving in the Federal prison road camp at Camp Meade, Md., had been ordered returned to the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta for violating rules of the road camp.

Reports from the camp said that Kirby sought to have a guard smuggle out private mail for him. The violation, department officials said, would cause Kirby to lose his right to apply for parole, which he could have done when he had served one-third of his sentence with good behavior.
